RUSSIA BREAKS OFF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH TINY FINLAND

Representative Dies Says Agents of Stalin Hold Key Positions in Government

Chairman of UnAmerican Committee Class on Roosevelt Administration To "Come Out Openly" in a Stand "for or against" Investigation of UnAmericanism; 12,000 Hear Speech

New York, Nov. 29. (AP)—Amid the blare of martial music and the cheers of thousands, Rep. Martin Dies (D-Tex) strode to a flag-bedecked rostrum in Madison Square Garden tonight and challenged the Roosevelt Administration to "come out openly" in a stand "for or against" his investigation of Un-Americanism.

The tall, broad Texan addressed a crowd estimated by Garden officials at 12,000 persons at a "mass meeting for America" sponsored by two dozen patriotic, religious, military and other organizations.

Saying he deplored a "trend toward centralization of power in Washington as the first stage towards dictatorship," Dies asserted, "these issues rise above partisan political expediency. This is no time for pussy-footing and cowardly politicians."

Three hundred uniformed policemen mingled with the crowd, but there were no signs of disturbances.

A roar rose from the assemblage when a speaker announced that German-American Bund — leader Fritz Kuhn, who had appeared before Dies' committee, had been convicted on charges of larceny and forgery. Dies himself withheld comment.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Merwin K. Hart, president of the New York State Economic Council, an organization fostering private enterprise.

Sponsors of the meeting included the American Legion, Daughters of the American Revolution, Knights of Columbus, and Protestant, Catholic and Jewish Societies.

With a voice vote, the meeting approved a resolution asking Congress to reappoint the Dies' Committee immediately after convening in January and finance it for another two years "to the end that every UnAmerican activity be laid bare before the people of the United States."

"The people must be warned that an organized campaign, composed of the Reds and Pinks in all walks of life, is about to be launched for the purpose of discrediting the work of our committee," Dies said in an address prepared for a mass meeting at Madison Square Garden.

"This is Moscow's last stand against exposure. The people must also be warned against the racketeers who would capitalize for their own selfish gain upon a rebirth of Americanism.

"So far as the continuation of our investigation is concerned, I here and now beseech the administration to come out openly and say whether it is for or against our committee. If it is against the committee, let it boldly assume the responsibility for opposing the continuation of our investigation. If it is for the committee, let it support with the necessary funds and other assistance the work which we are trying to do in exposing the menace of 'isms.'"

The committee will expire when Congress convenes in January unless the House adopts a resolution

Nazis To Disrupt Exports of Allies To Neutral Nations

Germany Will Make Counter-move to British-French Blockade

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER

Berlin, Nov. 29. (AP)—Germany indicated tonight she would reply in kind to the British-French blockade against German exports, which becomes effective Monday.

The government announced it "reserves all measures" to meet "the new situation created by England and France," and thus was interpreted meaning the Nazis so far as possible would disrupt British and French exports to neutrals.

A communique stated that the Allies broke International law, and especially the Paris convention of 1856 on Maritime law, and that Germany no longer was bound to observe it .

The communique said "this new breach of International law affects neutrals as well as Germany," and authorities asserted that the protests of neutrals against the British-French action were identical with Germany's stand.

German counteraction, it was reported, may await a possible combined neutral protest to the Allies.

Informed quarters expressed Germany's sympathy with Russia in the Finnish conflict, bringing out more clearly the Pro-Russion position taken by the press.

Germany, these quarters said, considers that Russia got a "raw deal" in the Baltic after the World war and now has a right to rectify the wrongs then inflicted. Russia was pictured as having an unquestionalble right to access to the Baltic, with Finland so placed strategically as to be able to hinder this access.

These informed quarters said, however, that officially Germany is merely an on-looker in the Finnish-Russian dispute and does not intend to take direct action.

Detailed accounts of yesterday's British air raid on the German airplane base on Borkum Island at the mouth of the Ems river, showed today that the Germans were taken by surprise and were unable to get their anti-aircraft guns in action before the British were directly overhead.

Flying only ten or twelve feet above the water and almost touching the wave tops so that they were invisible from a distance, eight British Blenheims reached the island, machine-gunned the air base and curved back westward.

London, Nov. 29 (AP) — United States merchant ships, banned from the European war zone by the American Neutrality law, still are being brought into British ports—in the war zone—for examination.

This disclosure today by the Ministry of Economic Warfare was followed quickly by the declaration in neutral circles that vessels thus concentrated for examination by the British contraband control were exposed to bombing by enemy craft.

50,000 Chrysler Workers Eager To Return to Jobs

Fifty-four Day Old Shutdown Ends as New Contract Is Signed

Detroit, Nov. 29. (AP)—More than 50,000 Chrysler Corporation employes who haven't had a pay-day for seven weeks eagerly waited tonight for a chance to resume work under a new contract announced today.

Corporation officials, hoping to recoup an estimated $100,000,000 sales loss caused by the fifty-four-day shutdown which marked the automobile industry's longest labor dispute, rushed plans to get final assembly lines operating again. Spokesmen said all plants would be open by Monday.

The corporation instructed thousands of employes to resume work at several plants tomorrow morning for "regular shifts." These included the Dodge, Plymouth and DeSoto plants. Additional thousands were called back for Friday, Saturday and Monday mornings.

Cleveland Relief Clients Ask for Food and Coal

Tell City Interviewers Landlords Threaten To Evict Them

Cleveland, Nov. 29 (AP)—Harassed relief clients told city interviewers today landlords were threatening evicition for want of rent.

Destitute persons crowded six district relief stations. They complained food orders were insufficient, that they needed coal, some repairs, and street car tickets for trips to hospitals.

"We have enough money to pay November rents, but if we use it we won't have enough to pay for December food," said Sydney Rowley, assistant relief commissioner. Payments to landlords are about ninety days in arrears.

Mayor Harold H. Burton predicted:

"They won't actually throw the people out while payment of rent is a moral obligation of the city. Nobody is being evicted and the situation hasn't gotten to the point yet where we have to choose between food and rent."

One woman relief client complained at a relief office interview-window:

"What am I going to do? My landlord says he will put me out tomorrow unless the rent is paid."

One answer, officials explained tonight, is to telephone the landlord and assure him the city will pay after Jan. 1, when 1940 moneys will relieve the current situation. The city is dispensing relief with $300,000 found last week through a state attorney general's ruling — about $700,000 short for normal needs to the first of the year.

It hopes another ruling will release $200,000 more through issuance of special bonds against delinquent taxes. Officials last week cut 15,000 persons—including sin-

Molotoff Says Russia Compelled To Take Immediate Steps against Finns To Safeguard Security of the Soviet

Finland Profoundly Disturbed at Rupture of Diplomatic Relations but Is Determined To Stand Fast

By LYNN HEINZERLING

Helsinki, Nov. 30 (Thursday) (AP) — Profoundly disturbed by Moscow's action rupturing diplomatic relations but still determined to stand fast, Finns uneasily awaited developments today, fearing the beginning of hostilities at any time.

But up to 12:45 a. m. (5:45 p. m., E.S.T.), officials said, there had been no troop movements across the borders so far as they could learn.

It was all the more shocking to the Finns because the Moscow action came before they could deliver a note to the Kremlin offering to withdraw Finnish defense forces from the frontier as a gesture towards settling their quarrel.

The offer was made by Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko in his reply to Russia's denunciation of the 1932 Finnish-Soviet nonaggression treaty.

"My government is ready to settle with the Soviet government the question of the removal of Finnish defense forces on the Karelian Isthmus with the exception of Frontier guard forces, to such a distance from Leningrad that it could not even be alleged that they threaten its security," Errko's note said.

Descendants of Pilgrims Ready For Thanksgiving

Champion Cause of Last Thursday in November with Pageant

Plymouth, Mass., Nov. 29 (AP) — Pilgrim descendants in this seaside birthplace of Thanksgiving championed tonight the cause of the last Thursday in November, as they prepared a seventeenth century pageant recalling the first observance by their forebears.

Forty six of the nation's forty-eight governors sent food typical of their states for the great feast which will climax an observance that town fathers, scornful of any change in the date, have planned "to save the day from exploitation and desecration."

The fathers declined to disclose the two states which were not represented on the menu.

From Hummocky Hills overlooking the harbor, where the Pilgrims landed in 1620, Plymouth residents brought growing things to remake a wilderness in the center of what is now a bustling community.

Heaps of pine needles carpeted the floor of the town's memorial hall, where, tomorrow, bonnetted women and pipe-hatted men will re-enact such scenes as the Treaty of Friendship with Indian Chief Massasoit, the rigors of the first bleak winter after the Mayflower sailed home to England, and the first, victorious harvest. Part of the pageant will be broadcast nationally (Mutual) at 10:45 a. m. (EST).

Indian tepees, and the crude stockades of the early settlers have been reproduced in a setting made further realistic by the presence of live turkeys, rabbits and squirrels.

From many ancient landmark houses, which link this town inevitably with the past, spinning wheels, butter churns, well sweeps and centuries-old kettles have been procured for a flash-back to the everyday life of the Pilgrims.

Visitors who came here tonight—and there were many, for all New England celebrates tomorrow — turned from the main thoroughfares to look again at the little dwellings with their English, diamond shaped windows, and their red clapboards and shingles.

Many climbed lonely Cole's Hill, where the Pilgrims held their secret night burials during the first year of the settlement and where they planted corn over the graves so that the Indians wouldn't know how many had perished.

Russia Declares She Has No Intention of Annexing Finnish Territory or Compromising Her Independence

By WITT HANCOCK

Moscow, Nov. 30 (Thursday) (AP) — Soviet Russia has broken off diplomatic relations with Finland but left the world in doubt as to her further intentions.

Severance of diplomatic relations between nations often is a fore-runner of war but Soviet Russia declared she had no intention of annexing Finnish territory or of compromising Finland's independence.

With a million Russian troops massed on the Finnish border facing Finnish forces that at best can muster 400,000 men, Russian Premier-Foreign Minister Vyacheslaff Molotoff declared in a midnight broadcast that Russia was taking "immediate steps" to keep her security inviolate.

His midnight broadcast, delivered with a background of stirring martial music and Red army marching songs, called on Russia's millions of Red troops and her Navy to be prepared for any action.

The Navy already has been engaging in exercises in the Gulf of Finland, in close proximity to Finnish lands which Russia has asked for naval bases.

The official note severing relations was handed by Molotoff to Baron Aarno Yrjo-Koskinen, the Finnish minister, at 10:30 p. m. (Wednesday) (2:30 p. m., E.S.T.)

(The news was received with consternation in Helsinki, the Finnish capital. Other Scandinavian countries regarded the Russian action as extremely ominous).

Wants To Safeguard Nation

In his broadcast announcing severance of relations, Molotoff declared that long, "patient negotiations" with Finland had resulted only in an "irreconcilable attitude" on the part of Finland whose leaders acted "in the interests of imperialistic warmongers."

"The only aim of our nation is to safeguard the security of the Soviet Union and in particular Leningrad with its population of 3,500,000," Molotoff declared.

"In view of the present international situation x x x we could not make a solution of this vital and urgent question conditional upon the bad faith of the present Finnish leaders.

"This matter must be solved by

Texas Jury Refused To Indict Woman Who Killed Dallas Lawyer

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 29 (AP)—A Dallas county grand jury refused to indict honey-haired Corinne Maddox for the two-gun killing of Brooks C. Coffman, forty-year-old married lawyer.

The grand jury twice called her before it and today returned a no-bill, which meant the twenty-six-year-old stenographer would not have to stand trial in connection with the slaying ten days ago.

Miss Maddox, at home with her mother and sister, was jubilant.

"Fine!" she exclaimed. "I have no regrets at all except that it (the shooting) had to be done."

"It had to be done," she disclosed after the killing, because Coffman, admittedly her attacker in an ice-pick stabbing, had threatened her life. Out of that, she said, grew fear and hate.

On Nov. 20, Miss Maddox waited in a main street shop for Coffman to walk by. She had two pistols in her purse. She told police later she saw Coffman passing, trailed him and fired all the cartridges from each weapon.

The screaming lawyer, begging for mercy, fell to the street.

Miss Maddox, daughter of an assistant bank cashier, said she failed at two previous attempts to kill Coffman.

Last May 20, Coffman, member of a prominent Dallas family, walked into police headquarters and reported "I think I have just killed a woman." Investigators found Miss Maddox in a gravel pit near the city, bruised and showing evidence of ice-pick wounds.

State Concludes Lawrence Evidence

Presentation of Testimony Ends after Hearing 23 Witnesses

Harrisburg, Nov. 29 (AP) — The Commonwealth concluded its case against Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence late today after fifteen days' testimony by twenty-three witnesses and the defense immediately undertook to prove that Lawrence is innocent.

The political leader is on trial, charged with conspiring to favor the Pioneer Materials Company in gravel contracts. He also is accused of blackmailing the firm's head Spurdeon Bowser, of $5,000.

The defense opened by summoning Frank J. Fell, vice president and controller of the Pennsylvania Railroad but a legal argument halted proceedings.

O. K. Eaton, Lawrence's counsel, subpoenaed Fell in an effort to disclaim Bowser's report that the railroad paid Arthur Colegrove, a Democratic cabinet member, $35,000 in 1936 and 1937.

The prosecution argued in a sidebar conference with Judge Howard W. Hughes that Bowser's testimony referred only to a conversation with Lawrence and that Fell's statement of a contribution—or denial of one—had nothing to do with the case.

Defense attorneys contended the prosecution allowed the insinuation to go into the record and the court should permit a denial to follow.

Judge Hughes said he would issue a ruling tomorrow when court resumes.

Fritz Kuhn Is Convicted By Jury of Business Men

German-American Bund Leader Guilty of Grand Larceny and Forgery

New York, Nov. 29 (AP) — Fritz Kuhn was convicted tonight of grand larceny and forgery in the alleged theft of money from his German-American Bund.

Eight and one half hours after receiving the case, the jury of twelve business men announced their verdict—conviction on all of the five counts left to the jury's decision.

The maximum penalty for the portly Bundsfuehrer could be thirty years in prison. Sentence will be imposed Dec. 5.

There was little excitement in the courtroom. Spectators had been barred from trial sessions for some time and were not admitted tonight.

The jury entered the courtroom at 10 p. m. (EST) and four minutes later returned its verdict.

As the foreman announced the decision, Kuhn, in the prisoner's dock, stood erect and blinked his eyes. Then he sank back against a court railing, but said nothing.

As each juror was polled—twice—responding to the question as to whether "guilty" was his verdict with an "it is," Kuhn faced each man.

Excusing the jury, general sessions judge James G. Wallace said: "The court feels that the verdict you have rendered is on the evidence and is not based on anything else. The jury deliberated so earnestly, heard the evidence so attentively and has sat so long on this case that it is entitled to the thanks of the court."

Today Is Thanksgiving For Twenty-six States

Colorado, Mississippi and Texas Decide To Observe Both Days

By The Associated Press

About half the nation will sit down to groaning tables of Thanksgiving food today although the other half already has thrown out the well-picked bones of last week's turkeys.

Twenty-six states stood by tradition and chose to celebrate the last Thursday in November, despite President Roosevelt's decree advancing the date a week earlier than usual. Three of these—Colorado, Mississippi and Texas—decided to observe both days. For the rest of the country, turkey with its aftermath of hash and soup was but a pleasant memory.

Today's celebrants, other than the three states with double holidays, are:

Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, and Wisconsin.

Kansas City, Mo., found it easy to celebrate both days. Missouri observed last Thursday but Kansans waited until today (Thursday). Thus residents of Kansas City, Mo., merely had to cross the river to Kansas City, Kans., to enjoy a second feast day.

Governors of forty-six states contributed to a feast which will climax a Pilgrim pageant in Plymouth, Mass., tonight. The city's Memorial hall has been converted into a

U. S. Moves To Stave Off Russo-Finnish Hostilities

Would Gladly Extend Good Offices if Both Countries Desire

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—In a last-minute attempt to stave off Russo-Finnish hostilities, the United States government informed the world late today that it stood ready to aid in a peaceful solution of the dispute.

An unexpected statement, issued by Secretary of State Hull shortly before news was received that Russia had broken off diplomatic relations with Finland, declared that if both countries wished it the United States would "gladly extend its good offices."

Meanwhile Senator Pittman (D-Nev), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, lashed out at Russia, accusing her of "total abandonment of every sincere policy looking to a just peace." He told reporters that Russia had created "fictitious incidents" and that war sentiment had been stirred up among the Russian people "as a prelude to and an excuse for conquest."

Pittman Applauds Hull

Pittman applauded Hull's move for peace but said he was not optimistic over its success. Senator Borah (R-Ida) indicated that he too had doubts that Russia would take advantage of America's good offices, although he called the Hull statement a "wise step."

The statement was transmitted to the American Embassy in Moscow and the American Legation in Helsinki after it was made public here.

The Finnish minister, Hjalmar J. Procope, called on Hull after the Visitors who came here tonight—and there were many, for all New England celebrates tomorrow — turned from the main thoroughfares to look again at the little dwellings with their English, diamond shaped windows, and their red clapboards and shingles.

Many climbed lonely Cole's Hill, where the Pilgrims held their secret night burials during the first year of the settlement and where they planted corn over the graves so that the Indians wouldn't know how many had perished.

Russia Declares She Has No Intention of Annexing Finnish Territory or Compromising Her Independence

By WITT HANCOCK

Moscow, Nov. 30 (Thursday) (AP) — Soviet Russia has broken off diplomatic relations with Finland but left the world in doubt as to her further intentions.

Severance of diplomatic relations between nations often is a fore-runner of war but Soviet Russia declared she had no intention of annexing Finnish territory or of compromising Finland's independence.

With a million Russian troops massed on the Finnish border facing Finnish forces that at best can muster 400,000 men, Russian Premier-Foreign Minister Vyacheslaff Molotoff declared in a midnight broadcast that Russia was taking "immediate steps" to keep her security inviolate.

His midnight broadcast, delivered with a background of stirring martial music and Red army marching songs, called on Russia's millions of Red troops and her Navy to be prepared for any action.

The Navy already has been engaging in exercises in the Gulf of Finland, in close proximity to Finnish lands which Russia has asked for naval bases.

The official note severing relations was handed by Molotoff to Baron Aarno Yrjo-Koskinen, the Finnish minister, at 10:30 p. m. (Wednesday) (2:30 p. m., E.S.T.)

(The news was received with consternation in Helsinki, the Finnish capital. Other Scandinavian countries regarded the Russian action as extremely ominous).

Wants To Safeguard Nation

In his broadcast announcing severance of relations, Molotoff declared that long, "patient negotiations" with Finland had resulted only in an "irreconcilable attitude" on the part of Finland whose leaders acted "in the interests of imperialistic warmongers."

"The only aim of our nation is to safeguard the security of the Soviet Union and in particular Leningrad with its population of 3,500,000," Molotoff declared.

"In view of the present international situation x x x we could not make a solution of this vital and urgent question conditional upon the bad faith of the present Finnish leaders.

"This matter must be solved by

Texas Jury Refused To Indict Woman Who Killed Dallas Lawyer

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 29 (AP)—A Dallas county grand jury refused to indict honey-haired Corinne Maddox for the two-gun killing of Brooks C. Coffman, forty-year-old married lawyer.

The grand jury twice called her before it and today returned a no-bill, which meant the twenty-six-year-old stenographer would not have to stand trial in connection with the slaying ten days ago.

Miss Maddox, at home with her mother and sister, was jubilant.

"Fine!" she exclaimed. "I have no regrets at all except that it (the shooting) had to be done."

"It had to be done," she disclosed after the killing, because Coffman, admittedly her attacker in an ice-pick stabbing, had threatened her life. Out of that, she said, grew fear and hate.

On Nov. 20, Miss Maddox waited in a main street shop for Coffman to walk by. She had two pistols in her purse. She told police later she saw Coffman passing, trailed him and fired all the cartridges from each weapon.

The screaming lawyer, begging for mercy, fell to the street.

Miss Maddox, daughter of an assistant bank cashier, said she failed at two previous attempts to kill Coffman.

Last May 20, Coffman, member of a prominent Dallas family, walked into police headquarters and reported "I think I have just killed a woman." Investigators found Miss Maddox in a gravel pit near the city, bruised and showing evidence of ice-pick wounds.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 29. (AP)—Donald Carver, three, fell into a tile inclosing a spring at his home near here today. His mother, Mrs. Eugene Carver, a former nurse, said he had stopped breathing when she reached him. She revived the child by artificial respiration.

State Concludes Lawrence Evidence

Presentation of Testimony Ends after Hearing 23 Witnesses

Harrisburg, Nov. 29 (AP) — The Commonwealth concluded its case against Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence late today after fifteen days' testimony by twenty-three witnesses and the defense immediately undertook to prove that Lawrence is innocent.

The political leader is on trial, charged with conspiring to favor the Pioneer Materials Company in gravel contracts. He also is accused of blackmailing the firm's head Spurdeon Bowser, of $5,000.

The defense opened by summoning Frank J. Fell, vice president and controller of the Pennsylvania Railroad but a legal argument halted proceedings.

O. K. Eaton, Lawrence's counsel, subpoenaed Fell in an effort to disclaim Bowser's report that the railroad paid Arthur Colegrove, a Democratic cabinet member, $35,000 in 1936 and 1937.

The prosecution argued in a sidebar conference with Judge Howard W. Hughes that Bowser's testimony referred only to a conversation with Lawrence and that Fell's statement of a contribution—or denial of one—had nothing to do with the case.

Defense attorneys contended the prosecution allowed the insinuation to go into the record and the court should permit a denial to follow.

Judge Hughes said he would issue a ruling tomorrow when court resumes.

Fritz Kuhn Is Convicted By Jury of Business Men

German-American Bund Leader Guilty of Grand Larceny and Forgery

New York, Nov. 29 (AP) — Fritz Kuhn was convicted tonight of grand larceny and forgery in the alleged theft of money from his German-American Bund.

Eight and one half hours after receiving the case, the jury of twelve business men announced their verdict—conviction on all of the five counts left to the jury's decision.

The maximum penalty for the portly Bundsfuehrer could be thirty years in prison. Sentence will be imposed Dec. 5.

There was little excitement in the courtroom. Spectators had been barred from trial sessions for some time and were not admitted tonight.

The jury entered the courtroom at 10 p. m. (EST) and four minutes later returned its verdict.

As the foreman announced the decision, Kuhn, in the prisoner's dock, stood erect and blinked his eyes. Then he sank back against a court railing, but said nothing.

As each juror was polled—twice—responding to the question as to whether "guilty" was his verdict with an "it is," Kuhn faced each man.

Excusing the jury, general sessions judge James G. Wallace said: "The court feels that the verdict you have rendered is on the evidence and is not based on anything else. The jury deliberated so earnestly, heard the evidence so attentively and has sat so long on this case that it is entitled to the thanks of the court."

In a monotone, Kuhn read his "pedigree" to the clerk. He said he was forty-three years old, married, born in Germany and a naturalized citizen. He gave his occupation as "president, the German-American Bund," and said he had three de-

Today Is Thanksgiving For Twenty-six States

Colorado, Mississippi and Texas Decide To Observe Both Days

By The Associated Press

About half the nation will sit down to groaning tables of Thanksgiving food today although the other half already has thrown out the well-picked bones of last week's turkeys.

Twenty-six states stood by tradition and chose to celebrate the last Thursday in November, despite President Roosevelt's decree advancing the date a week earlier than usual. Three of these—Colorado, Mississippi and Texas—decided to observe both days. For the rest of the country, turkey with its aftermath of hash and soup was but a pleasant memory.

Today's celebrants, other than the three states with double holidays, are:

Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, and Wisconsin.

Kansas City, Mo., found it easy to celebrate both days. Missouri observed last Thursday but Kansans waited until today (Thursday). Thus residents of Kansas City, Mo., merely had to cross the river to Kansas City, Kans., to enjoy a second feast day.

Governors of forty-six states contributed to a feast which will climax a Pilgrim pageant in Plymouth, Mass., tonight. The city's Memorial hall has been converted into a

U. S. Moves To Stave Off Russo-Finnish Hostilities

Would Gladly Extend Good Offices if Both Countries Desire

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—In a last-minute attempt to stave off Russo-Finnish hostilities, the United States government informed the world late today that it stood ready to aid in a peaceful solution of the dispute.

An unexpected statement, issued by Secretary of State Hull shortly before news was received that Russia had broken off diplomatic relations with Finland, declared that if both countries wished it the United States would "gladly extend its good offices."

Meanwhile Senator Pittman (D-Nev), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, lashed out at Russia, accusing her of "total abandonment of every sincere policy looking to a just peace." He told reporters that Russia had created "fictitious incidents" and that war sentiment had been stirred up among the Russian people "as a prelude to and an excuse for conquest."

Pittman Applauds Hull

Pittman applauded Hull's move for peace but said he was not optimistic over its success. Senator Borah (R-Ida) indicated that he too had doubts that Russia would take advantage of America's good offices, although he called the Hull statement a "wise step."

The statement was transmitted to the American Embassy in Moscow and the American Legation in Helsinki after it was made public here.

Hostility to Bolshevik Regime Is Shown by Marshal Balbo

Rome, Nov. 29. (AP)—The Italian press sympathized outspokenly today with Finland in the little Baltic country's resistance to Soviet Russian demands.

The danger of a one-sided conflict between the Soviet "colossus" and her little independent neighbor gave newspapers fresh occasion to display their hostility to the Bolshevik regime.

Marshal Italo Balbo's Corriere Padano of Sarrara was perhaps the most outspoken paper in its admiration for Finland's opposition to "brutal pressure" of the "colossus with feet of clay."

The Rome Tribuna gave prominent front page display to an interview with the Finnish minister, Eero Jarnafelt, former envoy to Washington, who presented the Finnish side of the controversy, emphasizing the cordial relations between Rome and Helsinki.

Russia's denunciation of the nonaggression pact Tuesday.

A foreign office spokesman said "everything is up to Russia now. The situation is too difficult for comment."

Despite the breaking off of diplomatic relations, and despite the midnight broadcast of Soviet Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff, who announced the action, Finland's note answering Moscow's denunciation of their nonaggression pact was delivered to the Kremlin at 1:10 a. m., Moscow time (5:10 p. m. E.S.T., Wednesday).

This was almost three hours after the Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs, Valdimir Potemkin, had notified the Finnish minister that relations were broken.

News Spreads Rapidly

The Finnish answer said the Helsinki government thought Russia unjustified in denouncing the nonaggression pact and suggested a Conciliation Commission be named to examine the controversy.

When the Finnish minister to Moscow, Baron Aarno Yrjo-Koskinen, first attempted to deliver it, however, Potemkin told him that he had been called to the Kremlin to inform him of the severance of relations.

The news from Moscow spread rapidly through Helsinki. Grim Finns gathered in clusters to discuss the situation. Government officials hurried to a midnight conference.

They had received warmly Secretary of State Cordell Hull's announcement of the United States' willingness to offer her good offices in the dispute.

"It's the best news we have heard," they said, but when the news came of the drastic Soviet move, they commented:

"Hull's offer came too late."

"At 10:30 p. m. Moscow time," said a foreign office spokesman, "Vice-Commissar Vladimir Potemkin received the Finnish minister and gave him a note concerning the breaking off of diplomatic relations.

"At the same time the minister told Potemkin his intention was to give the Finnish answer to the Russian note of yesterday. Potemkin could say nothing as to whether the Russian government could receive the note.

"We have learned, however, the Finnish reply was given the Russian government at 12:10 a. m., Finnish time.

"At any rate, the fact is the Russian government now is in a position to consider our reply. After the Finnish government is in possession of all details it will make known its attitude."

The Finnish reply to the Russian note denouncing the Russian-Finnish nonaggression pact was carefully-worded and deliberate.

Situation Is Precarious

The government, making no effort to minimize the precarious situation along the Russian border, ordered Finnish patrols at various points along the Russian border to move back so as to avoid the possibility of clashes with Soviet troops.

Authorities investigating one of the incidents reported by Moscow reported that three members of a border patrol at Pummang, at the Northern tip of Finland, were missing.

They said investigation of a cottage occupied by the border post showed damage, with windows broken and furniture thrown about. The telephone had been torn loose and thrown out of the cabin.

The Russian radio announced that Soviet authorities were holding three prisoners who had attempted to cross the border with a group which was forced back, and Finns speculated on the possibility they may have been the missing three.

Officials denied that Finland had mobilized her full military strength. On the contrary, they said, many reservists were recently released and had not been called back to the colors.

The Finnish press reflected the gravity of the crisis.

the Soviet Union in friendly cooperation with the Finnish people."

"We can no longer tolerate the present situation for which the Finnish government bears full responsibility x x x our government has decided it no longer can maintain normal relations with Finland," Molotoff declared.

Recent border incidents which he called "abominable" were cited by Molotoff as justification.

Russian sources alleged Finnish cannonading caused "heavy casualties" among her Red soldiers Sunday, and that Finnish infantry detachments were driven back by machine gun fire Tuesday.

Russia's effort to prevent a recurrence of such incidents by securing withdrawal of Finnish troops from the border, said Molotoff, had met with stubbornness in Helsinki.

Ready To Assist Finland

But in spite of everything, he continued, "the peoples of the Soviet Union have done what was necessary for the independence of Finland. The peoples of our country are prepared to assist the Finnish people in securing a free, independent development."

At the time of Russia's breaking off of diplomatic relations she had not yet received the Finnish note prepared yesterday in Helsinki as an answer to Russia's denunciation of their non-aggression pact made seven years ago.

(In a previous note Finland had rejected a Russian demand for withdrawal of Finnish troops twelve to sixteen miles from the border.)

The Russian-Finnish controversy had been on the fire since last Oct. 7 when Finland accepted Russia's invitation to confer on demands for military and naval concessions. The Finnish delegation to Moscow refused to make territorial concessions and negotiations were suspended Nov. 13. Bitter attacks on Finland by the Soviet press followed.

Before the startling diplomatic action today hopes of a peaceful settlement had been raised by reports of Finnish troop withdrawals a short distance from the Russian frontier.

Tonight Joseph Stalin attempted to lay responsibility for the present European war at the doors of the British-French Allies.

"The ruling circles of England and France have rudely declined both Germany's peace proposals and the attempts of the Soviet Union to attain the earliest termination of the war," he contended in a statement published in Pravda, Communist party organ.

New mass meetings of workers and soldiers adopted bitter anti-Finnish resolutions, among them the assertion that "it is time to exterminate the puny bug which dares to threaten the Soviet."

The press was filled with new attacks on Finland.

Byrd Has Secret Orders from U. S.

Washington, Nov. 29. (AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd joined the vanguard of his South Pole expedition at the Panama Canal today with confidential orders from the White House.

Officials said the orders were a State Department secret and, they believed, concerned recommendations to be made to Congress in regard to prospective American territorial claims in the Antarctic.

Even the existence of the orders, authorities said, had been kept secret, probably because of the tense situation which the European war has drawn around British, French, German, Norwegian and Argentine claims to South Polar areas. Byrd received them, informants said, on a hurried trip to Washington last week just before departing for Panama.

Calvert County Touted as Place To Live Longer

Charles T. Chaney of Prince Frederick Celebrates 93rd Birthday

Prince Frederick, Md., Nov. 29. (AP)—Boosters for this Southern Maryland section touted for its hospitality put forward a new slogan today—"come to Calvert county and live longer—and better."

The "live better" angle was nothing new, for Southern Marylanders have pressed that pedal for years, but the "live longer" bit was tacked on when somebody looked around and discovered the county was fairly bristling with lively residents gettin' along toward the century mark.

Latest nonagenarian to be honored was Charles T. Chaney, who celebrated his ninety-third birthday at his home in Chaney.

Typical of other oldsters in the county, Chaney maintains an interest in politics and public affairs, and regularly attends meetings of a local fire insurance company of which he is a member.

He still rides his favorite steed, and attends jousting tournaments throughout the county.

As active as Chaney are William A. Weed, of Dunkirk, once manager of the Silica mines there, who is but a few months younger than Chaney and as hale and hearty; and R. Garner Wood, of Prince Frederick, who is nearing ninety but still is seen occasionally at big county dances—and not as a wall flower.

Dr. William H. Marsh of Solomon's, in his late eighties, is in the Marine hospital in Baltimore now for treatment of an injury suffered in an accident, but his general health is excellent.

A year or so ago he went to the Pacific coast in October and left his overcoat at home because he considered it an unnecessary encumbrance; he turned a triple somersault last year because somebody dared him to.

ployes of the corporation, and an additional increase of one cent for workers in all Chrysler plants outside Detroit, was included in the settlement.

Officials of the CIO United Automobile Workers estimated that the increases would total between $5,600,000 and $6,000,000 a year. The corporation said it was "about $5,000,000."

Five big Detroit UAW-CIO locals, including Dodge Local No. 3, voted overwhelmingly tonight for ratification of the new working contract which supplants one that expired Sept. 30. Union heads said the vote constituted formal ratification of the contract since the five locals have a preponderance of the entire Chrysler membership of the UAW.

The new contract covers eleven plants in which the UAW-CIO won exclusive bargaining rights in a recent National Labor Relations Board election. Principal provisions are:

Sit-down, stay-in and slow-down strikes are prohibited. No strike shall be called unless grievance procedure has been exhausted and five days of negotiation have failed. Any strike terminates the contract.

Establishment of an appeal board, composed of two corporation executives and two official representatives of the UAW-CIO, for "final disposition" of grievances not adjusted through routine procedure.

Union Loses Two Demands

The management will set fair and equitable rates of production, with any grievances arising therefrom to be referred to the bargaining procedure.

Two original union demands—vacations with pay, and the "union shop" under which all Chrysler workers would be required to join the UAW-CIO within thirty days—were not included in the contract.

Nor was there any mention of the CIO Foremen's Union whose request for a bargaining conference with the Dodge plant management led Chrysler officials to charge that the CIO was trying to "sit on both sides of the table in collective bargaining."

K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corporation, said this issue "has been completely eliminated."

Tense Situation Is Created by Soviet Action against Finland

Russia Seems Determined To Drive Hard Bargain Immediately

Associated Press Staff Writer

Russia's rupture of diplomatic relations wit' her tiny Finnish neighbor brought to a head tonight the tense situation arising from her determination to drive a hard bargain and do it now, while British, French and German attention is too taken up with the war to interfere.

The single question remaining is whether Moscow is prepared to follow up diplomatic aggression with bayonets. In weighing that question, two imponderable factors arise despite Premier Molotoff's broadcast avowal "to take immedate steps—"

One is how the French and British would react if Russia marched against Finland to enforce her demands for greater elbow room in the gulf of Finland and the Baltic. The other is whether Stalinist Russia is prepared to risk being sucked into the European war whirlpool, or is running a gigantic bluff.

Duplicates Nazi Tactics

So far Moscow is duplicating the tactics with which Germany prefaced her attack on Poland.

The spectacle of partitioned Poland is being daily dangled before Finnish eyes by Soviet propaganda agencies as a horrible example of what to expect. And there is no known military commitment by England and France, or even by Finland's deeply anxious Scandinavian neighbors, to prop her resistance.

Moscow is obviously gambling on that. It seems clear that Moscow is banking on the allies reluctance to see their war with Germany spread to the proportions of a new World war.

Restoration of Poland and of Czecho-Slovakia to the status of independent members of the European family of nations has been asserted both in London and Paris as a specific war aim; coupled with reiterated pledges to iron out economic and other war-breeding conflicts in Europe. There has been no mention in those statements, however, of what restitution might be asked of Soviet Russia in relation to her share of the Russo-German dismemberment of Poland.

Finland Seeking Escape

That Finland, under the menace of Russia's vast military machine, is desperately seeking an honorable escape from her dilemma is clear. It is also certain that she is seeking counsel directly or indirectly not only from her three Scandinavian neighbors but also in London, in Paris, and perhaps Berlin.

Days or even hours should disclose whether those capitals are urging Finland to make all possible concessions to Russia's latest proposals, or to stand firm.

Neutral diplomats who have recently served in Berlin have viewed the Russo-Nazi cooperation all along as a very dubious arrangement. Berlin, and all Europe, are now on as direct notice as is Finland that non-aggression pacts with Soviet Russia have little more than monetary value.

Moscow even now can hardly doubt that whatever deal she forces on Finland will be subject to reconsideration at the conclusion of the present struggle between Germany and the Franco-British allies.

"Do's and Don'ts" Are Listed for Hunters

Baltimore, Nov. 29 (AP)—State Game Warden E. Lee Le Compte paused today for the annual task of listing the "do's and don'ts" for hunters who plan to pursue the elusive deer in Maryland woodlands.

The five-day season opens Monday for all sections except Worcester county — where the season is closed—and at the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club, where the season is from Dec. 15 to Dec. 24.

The law provides that each hunter may kill one deer a season; that it must be a buck with two or more points to one antler, and that the State Game Department must be given full details of the killing within twenty-four hours.

Hunters are prohibited from killing deer with any weapon other than a gun propelling a single bullet or ball, and trapping and the use of dogs are outlawed.

Under the law, a deputy game warden "or any other person" may kill dogs found pursuing deer.

Garrett To Get Wild Life Refuges

Baltimore, Nov. 29. (AP)—State Forester F. W. Besley announced today that 2,684 acres of land had been leased to the State Game and Inland Fish Commission for the establishment of nine wild life game refuges.

Four of the refuges will be established in Worcester county and the remainder in Garrett county. The forestry department gave the commission the use of the land for four years.

The Garrett county projects include:

Wolfe's Swamp area, two miles Northeast of New Germany, 100 acres.

Pine's Swamp Run area, on road from Lonaconing to Savage river, 200 acres.

Potomac Creek area, near Accident, 200 acres.

Potomac State Forest area, seven miles south of Altamont, 200 acres.

Witness Tells Of Classes in Strike Strategy

M. W. Howsowick Says Communist Party Directed Sit-down Strikes

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP) — A witness who said he attended a Communist class on strike strategy told the Dies Committee today that Communists directed the 1937 sit-down strikes in Michigan automobile factories and tried to "shove" Governor Frank Murphy "to the left."

Michael W. Howsowick, 26, of Muskegon, Mich., took off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, loosened his tie and declared that the Communist party was the principal advocate of the sit-down strikes.

"They felt that the sit-down was closer to the revolution than any other strikes," he explained. "You just took possession."

Of Murphy, now attorney general, Howsowick said:

"The party's opinion was that he was a fence sitter deluxe."

When Acting Chairman Starnes (D-Ala) remarked that the Communists tried to "influence him to the left but failed," Howsowick agreed.

The witness told of attending a five-week Communist school near Detroit to learn Communist philosophy and strike strategy and later a two-week course on sit-down technique when he used the alias of Miles Babbitt. Aliases were used generally, he explained.

He said he joined the Communist party in 1934 but quit four years later because he "got so tired of being a master of intrigue behind words."

Discrepancies in Tax Laws Shown

May Cost Maryland Employers One Million Dollars

Baltimore, Nov. 29 (AP)—Discrepancies between the Maryland Unemployment Compensation law and the Federal statute may cost Maryland employers approximately $1,000,000 in superfluous taxes—unless changed by the state before the 1940 levy falls due.

Chairman William Milnes Maloy of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission disclosed tonight and amendment to the Federal law, passed after Maryland's 1939 legislature adjourned, had left Maryland's statute out of line.

The amendment limits the federal tax so that it applies only to the first $3,000 of each individual's salary, eliminating any levy on that portion of salaries above $3,000.

Formerly—and under the Maryland law—employers paid the tax on the entire amount.

Maloy said a special session of the legislature might be necessary, unless adjustments are made with the Federal government's cooperation, to clarify the involved situation.

Should the state and federal laws remain in conflict next year, Maloy said Maryland employers would face this sample situation:

An employer paying a salary of $50,000 would pay a tax of three per cent on the entire amount—or $1,500—although, under the amended federal statute, the tax should properly be about $90.

statement was issued and received a copy.

Hull has been in frequent communication with President Roosevelt regarding the Russian-Finnish situation, and it generally was assumed that the president had approved his statement today.

"This government is following with serious concern the intensification of the Finnish-Soviet dispute," Hull declared. "It would view with extreme regret any extension of the present area of war and the consequent further deterioration of international relations."

Second Move of U. S.

"Without in any way becoming involved in the merits of the dispute, and limiting its interest to the solution of the dispute by peaceful processes only, this government would, if agreeable to both parties, gladly extend its good offices."

It was the United States' second move in behalf of Finnish-Soviet peace. Last month Mr. Roosevelt expressed the "earnest hope" that the Soviets would make no demands on Finland which would be inconsistent with amicable relations between the two countries.

There was no comment on the Hull declaration from either the Russian Embassy or the Finnish Legation. A Finnish spokesman took occasion, however, to deny Soviet reports that Finland was considering the establishment of a military dictatorship.

Verdict against Union Set Aside In Hosiery Case

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Reverses Action of Lower Court

Philadelphia, Nov. 29. (AP)—The first verdict against a Labor Union for damage during a sit-down strike was swept aside today by a unanimous decision of the Third U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the long-fought Apex Hosiery case.

The court declared, however, that those responsible for the strike should be sued in state courts.

Throwing out a verdict of $711,932.55 damages against Branch 1, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, CIO, the court held that the Union had not intended to restrain interstate trade when it called a strike against the large Apex mill here in the spring of 1937.

"On the contrary, the court said, "their intent was to unionize the plant, an action local in motive and local in effect. The effect upon interstate commerce was merely indirect, incidental and remote."

Strikers occupied the mill forty-eight days and the company charged that they wrecked delicate machinery and harmed its $5,000,000 a year business.

Although the Appeals court quashed the damage verdict of a lower court jury, the three judges who joined in the opinion denounced the strikers' methods as "the sit-down strike in its most aggravated and illegal form," and advised the company to seek redress in the Pennsylvania courts.

Judge John Bibbs, Jr., with Judges Albert B. Maris and William Clark concurring, wrote that "judicial condemnation of such (strike) tactics cannot be too severe."

The Union contended the action of the strikers was "spontaneous" and not directed by the union.

Labor groups rallied to the support of the local hosiery union when a federal district court jury returned the damage verdict last April 3. Labor spokesmen contended that application of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts to strikers would provide employers with a new weapon against unionized employes.

Counsel for the company said it would appeal immediately to the Supreme court.

Hostility to Bolshevik Regime Is Shown by Marshal Balbo

Rome, Nov. 29. (AP)—The Italian press sympathized outspokenly today with Finland in the little Baltic country's resistance to Soviet Russian demands.

The danger of a one-sided conflict between the Soviet "colossus" and her little independent neighbor gave newspapers fresh occasion to display their hostility to the Bolshevik regime.

Marshal Italo Balbo's Corriere Padano of Sarrara was perhaps the most outspoken paper in its admiration for Finland's opposition to "brutal pressure" of the "colossus with feet of clay."

Finland

Russia's denunciation of the nonaggression pact Tuesday.

A foreign office spokesman said "everything is up to Russia now. The situation is too difficult for comment."

Despite the breaking off of diplomatic relations, and despite the midnight broadcast of Soviet Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff, who announced the action, Finland's note answering Moscow's denunciation of their nonaggression pact was delivered to the Kremlin at 1:10 a. m., Moscow time (5:10 p. m. E.S.T., Wednesday).

This was almost three hours after the Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs, Valdimir Potemkin, had notified the Finnish minister that relations were broken.

News Spreads Rapidly

The Finnish answer said the Helsinki government thought Russia unjustified in denouncing the nonaggression pact and suggested a Conciliation Commission be named to examine the controversy.

When the Finnish minister to Moscow, Baron Aarno Yrjo-Koskinen, first attempted to deliver it, however, Potemkin told him that he had been called to the Kremlin to inform him of the severance of relations.

The news from Moscow spread rapidly through Helsinki. Grim Finns gathered in clusters to discuss the situation. Government officials hurried to a midnight conference.

They had received warmly Secretary of State Cordell Hull's announcement of the United States' willingness to offer her good offices in the dispute.

"It's the best news we have heard," they said, but when the news came of the drastic Soviet move, they commented:

"Hull's offer came too late."

"At 10:30 p. m. Moscow time," said a foreign office spokesman, "Vice-Commissar Vladimir Potemkin received the Finnish minister and gave him a note concerning the breaking off of diplomatic relations.

"At the same time the minister told Potemkin his intention was to give the Finnish answer to the Russian note of yesterday. Potemkin could say nothing as to whether the Russian government could receive the note.

"We have learned, however, the Finnish reply was given the Russian government at 12:10 a. m., Finnish time.

"At any rate, the fact is the Russian government now is in a position to consider our reply. After the Finnish government is in possession of all details it will make known its attitude."

The Finnish reply to the Russian note denouncing the Russian-Finnish nonaggression pact was carefully-worded and deliberate.

Situation Is Precarious

The government, making no effort to minimize the precarious situation along the Russian border, ordered Finnish patrols at various points along the Russian border to move back so as to avoid the possibility of clashes with Soviet troops.

Authorities investigating one of the incidents reported by Moscow reported that three members of a border patrol at Pummang, at the Northern tip of Finland, were missing.

They said investigation of a cottage occupied by the border post showed damage, with windows broken and furniture thrown about. The telephone had been torn loose and thrown out of the cabin.

The Russian radio announced that Soviet authorities were holding three prisoners who had attempted to cross the border with a group which was forced back, and Finns speculated on the possibility they may have been the missing three.

Officials denied that Finland had mobilized her full military strength. On the contrary, they said, many reservists were recently released and had not been called back to the colors.

The Finnish press reflected the gravity of the crisis.

the Soviet Union in friendly cooperation with the Finnish people."

"We can no longer tolerate the present situation for which the Finnish government bears full responsibility x x x our government has decided it no longer can maintain normal relations with Finland," Molotoff declared.

Recent border incidents which he called "abominable" were cited by Molotoff as justification.

Russian sources alleged Finnish cannonading caused "heavy casualties" among her Red soldiers Sunday, and that Finnish infantry detachments were driven back by machine gun fire Tuesday.

Russia's effort to prevent a recurrence of such incidents by securing withdrawal of Finnish troops from the border, said Molotoff, had met with stubbornness in Helsinki.

Ready To Assist Finland

But in spite of everything, he continued, "the peoples of the Soviet Union have done what was necessary for the independence of Finland. The peoples of our country are prepared to assist the Finnish people in securing a free, independent development."

At the time of Russia's breaking off of diplomatic relations she had not yet received the Finnish note prepared yesterday in Helsinki as an answer to Russia's denunciation of their non-aggression pact made seven years ago.

(In a previous note Finland had rejected a Russian demand for withdrawal of Finnish troops twelve to sixteen miles from the border.)

The Russian-Finnish controversy had been on the fire since last Oct. 7 when Finland accepted Russia's invitation to confer on demands for military and naval concessions. The Finnish delegation to Moscow refused to make territorial concessions and negotiations were suspended Nov. 13. Bitter attacks on Finland by the Soviet press followed.

Before the startling diplomatic action today hopes of a peaceful settlement had been raised by reports of Finnish troop withdrawals a short distance from the Russian frontier.

Tonight Joseph Stalin attempted to lay responsibility for the present European war at the doors of the British-French Allies.

"The ruling circles of England and France have rudely declined both Germany's peace proposals and the attempts of the Soviet Union to attain the earliest termination of the war," he contended in a statement published in Pravda, Communist party organ.

New mass meetings of workers and soldiers adopted bitter anti-Finnish resolutions, among them the assertion that "it is time to exterminate the puny bug which dares to threaten the Soviet."

The press was filled with new attacks on Finland.

Byrd Has Secret Orders from U. S.

Washington, Nov. 29. (AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd joined the vanguard of his South Pole expedition at the Panama Canal today with confidential orders from the White House.

Officials said the orders were a State Department secret and, they believed, concerned recommendations to be made to Congress in regard to prospective American territorial claims in the Antarctic.

Even the existence of the orders, authorities said, had been kept secret, probably because of the tense situation which the European war has drawn around British, French, German, Norwegian and Argentine claims to South Polar areas. Byrd received them, informants said, on a hurried trip to Washington last week just before departing for Panama.

Calvert County Touted as Place To Live Longer

Charles T. Chaney of Prince Frederick Celebrates 93rd Birthday

Prince Frederick, Md., Nov. 29. (AP)—Boosters for this Southern Maryland section touted for its hospitality put forward a new slogan today—"come to Calvert county and live longer—and better."

The "live better" angle was nothing new, for Southern Marylanders have pressed that pedal for years, but the "live longer" bit was tacked on when somebody looked around and discovered the county was fairly bristling with lively residents gettin' along toward the century mark.

Latest nonagenarian to be honored was Charles T. Chaney, who celebrated his ninety-third birthday at his home in Chaney.

Typical of other oldsters in the county, Chaney maintains an interest in politics and public affairs, and regularly attends meetings of a local fire insurance company of which he is a member.

He still rides his favorite steed, and attends jousting tournaments throughout the county.

As active as Chaney are William A. Weed, of Dunkirk, once manager of the Silica mines there, who is but a few months younger than Chaney and as hale and hearty; and R. Garner Wood, of Prince Frederick, who is nearing ninety but still is seen occasionally at big county dances—and not as a wall flower.

Dr. William H. Marsh of Solomon's, in his late eighties, is in the Marine hospital in Baltimore now for treatment of an injury suffered in an accident, but his general health is excellent.

A year or so ago he went to the Pacific coast in October and left his overcoat at home because he considered it an unnecessary encumbrance; he turned a triple somersault last year because somebody dared him to.

Calvert countians like to recall the visitor, who said "there is something about Calvert county air, I suppose; this place gets you.

"—For your own good," he added.

Calvert countians say there was a visitor who knew whereof he spoke.

50,000 Chrysler

ployes of the corporation, and an additional increase of one cent for workers in all Chrysler plants outside Detroit, was included in the settlement.

Officials of the CIO United Automobile Workers estimated that the increases would total between $5,600,000 and $6,000,000 a year. The corporation said it was "about $5,000,000."

Five big Detroit UAW-CIO locals, including Dodge Local No. 3, voted overwhelmingly tonight for ratification of the new working contract which supplants one that expired Sept. 30. Union heads said the vote constituted formal ratification of the contract since the five locals have a preponderance of the entire Chrysler membership of the UAW.

The new contract covers eleven plants in which the UAW-CIO won exclusive bargaining rights in a recent National Labor Relations Board election. Principal provisions are:

Sit-down, stay-in and slow-down strikes are prohibited. No strike shall be called unless grievance procedure has been exhausted and five days of negotiation have failed. Any strike terminates the contract.

Establishment of an appeal board, composed of two corporation executives and two official representatives of the UAW-CIO, for "final disposition" of grievances not adjusted through routine procedure.

Union Loses Two Demands

The management will set fair and equitable rates of production, with any grievances arising therefrom to be referred to the bargaining procedure.

Two original union demands—vacations with pay, and the "union shop" under which all Chrysler workers would be required to join the UAW-CIO within thirty days—were not included in the contract.

Nor was there any mention of the CIO Foremen's Union whose request for a bargaining conference with the Dodge plant management led Chrysler officials to charge that the CIO was trying to "sit on both sides of the table in collective bargaining."

K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corporation, said the issue "has been completely eliminated."

Tense Situation Is Created by Soviet Action against Finland

Russia Seems Determined To Drive Hard Bargain Immediately

Associated Press Staff Writer

Russia's rupture of diplomatic relations wit' her tiny Finnish neighbor brought to a head tonight the tense situation arising from her determination to drive a hard bargain and do it now, while British, French and German attention is too taken up with the war to interfere.

The single question remaining is whether Moscow is prepared to follow up diplomatic aggression with bayonets. In weighing that question, two imponderable factors arise despite Premier Molotoff's broadcast avowal "to take immediate steps—"

One is how the French and British would react if Russia marched against Finland to enforce her demands for greater elbow room in the gulf of Finland and the Baltic. The other is whether Stalinist Russia is prepared to risk being sucked into the European war whirlpool, or is running a gigantic bluff.

Duplicates Nazi Tactics

So far Moscow is duplicating the tactics with which Germany prefaced her attack on Poland.

The spectacle of partitioned Poland is being daily dangled before Finnish eyes by Soviet propaganda agencies as a horrible example of what to expect. And there is no known military commitment by England and France, or even by Finland's deeply anxious Scandinavian neighbors, to prop her resistance.

Moscow is obviously gambling on that. It seems clear that Moscow is banking on the allies reluctance to see their war with Germany spread to the proportions of a new World war.

Restoration of Poland and of Czecho-Slovakia to the status of independent members of the European family of nations has been asserted both in London and Paris as a specific war aim; coupled with reiterated pledges to iron out economic and other war-breeding conflicts in Europe. There has been no mention in those statements, however, of what restitution might be asked of Soviet Russia in relation to her share of the Russo-German dismemberment of Poland.

Finland Seeking Escape

That Finland, under the menace of Russia's vast military machine, is desperately seeking an honorable escape from her dilemma is clear. It is also certain that she is seeking counsel directly or indirectly not only from her three Scandinavian neighbors but also in London, in Paris, and perhaps Berlin.

Days or even hours should disclose whether those capitals are urging Finland to make all possible concessions to Russia's latest proposals, or to stand firm.

Neutral diplomats who have recently served in Berlin have viewed the Russo-Nazi cooperation all along as a very dubious arrangement. Berlin, and all Europe, are now on as direct notice as is Finland that non-aggression pacts with Soviet Russia have little more than monetary value.

Moscow even now can hardly doubt that whatever deal she forces on Finland will be subject to reconsideration at the conclusion of the present struggle between Germany and the Franco-British allies.

"Do's and Don't" Are Listed for Hunters

Baltimore, Nov. 29 (AP)—State Game Warden E. Lee Le Compte paused today for the annual task of listing the "do's and don't" for hunters who plan to pursue the elusive deer in Maryland woodlands.

The five-day season opens Monday for all sections except Worcester county — where the season is closed—and at the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club, where the season is from Dec. 15 to Dec. 24.

The law provides that each hunter may kill one deer a season; that it must be a buck with two or more points to one antler, and that the State Game Department must be given full details of the killing within twenty-four hours.

Hunters are prohibited from killing deer with any weapon other than a gun propelling a single bullet or ball, and trapping and the use of dogs are outlawed.

Under the law, a deputy game warden "or any other person" may kill dogs found pursuing deer.

Garrett To Get Wild Life Refuges

Baltimore, Nov. 29. (AP)—State Forester F. W. Besley announced today that 2,684 acres of land had been leased to the State Game and Inland Fish Commission for the establishment of nine wild life game refuges.

Four of the refuges will be established in Worcester county and the remainder in Garrett county. The forestry department gave the commission the use of the land for four years.

The Garrett county projects include:

Wolfe's Swamp area, two miles Northeast of New Germany, 100 acres.

Pine's Swamp Run area, on road from Lonaconing to Savage river, 200 acres.

High Rock fire tower area, seven miles North of projected Savage river dam, 700 acres.

Potomac Creek area, near Accident, 200 acres.

Potomac State Forest area, seven miles south of Altamont, 200 acres.

M. W. Howsowick Says Communist Party Directed Sit-down Strikes

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP) — A witness who said he attended a Communist class on strike strategy told the Dies Committee today that Communists directed the 1937 sit-down strikes in Michigan automobile factories and tried to "shove" Governor Frank Murphy "to the left."

Michael W. Howsowick, 26, of Muskegon, Mich., took off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, loosened his tie and declared that the Communist party was the principal advocate of the sit-down strikes.

"They felt that the sit-down was closer to the revolution than any other strikes," he explained. "You just took possession."

Of Murphy, now attorney general, Howsowick said:

"The party's opinion was that he was a fence sitter deluxe."

When Acting Chairman Starnes (D-Ala) remarked that the Communists tried to "influence him to the left but failed," Howsowick agreed.

The witness told of attending a five-week Communist school near Detroit to learn Communist philosophy and strike strategy and later a two-week course on sit-down technique when he used the alias of Miles Babbitt. Aliases were used generally, he explained.

He said he joined the Communist party in 1934 but quit four years later because he "got so tired of being a master of intrigue behind words."

Discrepancies in Tax Laws Shown

May Cost Maryland Employers One Million Dollars

Baltimore, Nov. 29 (AP)—Discrepancies between the Maryland Unemployment Compensation law and the Federal statute may cost Maryland employers approximately $1,000,000 in superfluous taxes—unless changed by the state before the 1940 levy falls due.

Chairman William Milnes Maloy of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission disclosed tonight and amendment to the Federal law, passed after Maryland's 1939 legislature adjourned, had left Maryland's statute out of line.

The amendment limits the federal tax so that it applies only to the first $3,000 of each individual's salary, eliminating any levy on that portion of salaries above $3,000.

Formerly—and under the Maryland law—employers paid the tax on the entire amount.

Maloy said a special session of the legislature might be necessary, unless adjustments are made with the Federal government's cooperation, to clarify the involved situation.

Should the state and federal laws remain in conflict next year, Maloy said Maryland employers would face this sample situation:

An employer paying a salary of $50,000 would pay a tax of three per cent on the entire amount—or $1,500—although, under the amended federal statute, the tax should properly be about $90.

statement was issued and received a copy.

Hull has been in frequent communication with President Roosevelt regarding the Russian-Finnish situation, and it generally was assumed that the president had approved his statement today.

"This government is following with serious concern the intensification of the Finnish-Soviet dispute," Hull declared. "It would view with extreme regret any extension of the present area of war and the consequent further deterioration of international relations.

Second Move of U. S.

"Without in any way becoming involved in the merits of the dispute, and limiting its interest to the solution of the dispute by peaceful processes only, this government would, if agreeable to both parties, gladly extend its good offices."

It was the United States' second move in behalf of Finnish-Soviet peace. Last month Mr. Roosevelt expressed the "earnest hope" that the Soviets would make no demands on Finland which would be inconsistent with amicable relations between the two countries.

There was no comment on the Hull declaration from either the Russian Embassy or the Finnish Legation. A Finnish spokesman took occasion, however, to deny Soviet reports that Finland was considering the establishment of a military dictatorship.

He instructed all state administrators to issue pre-holiday checks for approximately 400,000 workers who normally would not be paid until the day after Christmas and to make similar concessions for about 400,000 others whose regular pay day falls on the day after New Year's

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Reverses Action of Lower Court

Philadelphia, Nov. 29. (AP)—The first verdict against a Labor Union for damage during a sit-down strike was swept aside today by a unanimous decision of the Third U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the long-fought Apex Hosiery case.

The court declared, however, that those responsible for the strike should be sued in state courts.

Throwing out a verdict of $711,932.55 damages against Branch 1, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, CIO, the court held that the Union had not intended to restrain interstate trade when it called a strike against the large Apex mill here in the spring of 1937.

"On the contrary, the court said, "their intent was to unionize the plant, an action local in motive and local in effect. The effect upon interstate commerce was merely indirect, incidental and remote."

Strikers occupied the mill forty-eight days and the company charged that they wrecked delicate machinery and harmed its $5,000,000 a year business.

Although the Appeals court quashed the damage verdict of a lower court jury, the three judges who joined in the opinion denounced the strikers' methods as "the sit-down strike in its most aggravated and illegal form," and advised the company to seek redress in the Pennsylvania courts.

Judge John Bibbs, Jr., with Judges Albert B. Maris and William Clark concurring, wrote that "judicial condemnation of such (strike) tactics cannot be too severe."

The Union contended the action of the strikers was "spontaneous" and not directed by the union.

Labor groups rallied to the support of the local hosiery union when a federal district court jury returned the damage verdict last April 3. Labor spokesmen contended that application of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts to strikers would provide employers with a new weapon against unionized employes.

Counsel for the company said it would appeal immediately to the Supreme court.

Fewer Protests Better

SENATOR KEY PITTMAN, of Nevada, administration leader in Congress, says it is his opinion that the United States will accept Great Britain's blockade of German exports without protest.

Pittman, who is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, holds that while this country might suffer some financial loss from the blockade, it will not join other neutral nations in protesting against the seizure of German goods. Italy, the Netherlands and Belgium, more extensively concerned, already have filed such protests.

"We certainly will not become involved in this controversy, which constitutes a minor sacrifice when compared with the major sacrifices which this country has made in passing the neutrality act," Pittman says.

There is no reason for it to become involved in view of that legislation, and it is good to hear a responsible administration leader make note of it. There have been too many impulses to fire a note or two at every drop of the hat in Washington and, considering that this is not our war and that we are not participating in it, the fewer of them sent out the better.

Sticks to His Guns

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT sticks to his guns regarding his opinion about the needful clean up in the ranks of organized labor.

The son of the president says that the gist of his mail for the last week or so has been to the effect that he has been "taking cracks" at labor. But he declares that this is not true, pointing out that he had been saying certain things "about those subversive elements in labor which are dominated by criminals and racketeers, and which are robbing the decent half of labor of its good name."

Elliott insists that "unless labor weeds out its criminals and its felons, its thugs and its racketeers, it is going to have to do without the sympathy and the loyal support of a great part of the American public."

The radio executive is quite right about that; and no one will indorse his admonition more than the conscientious workers enlisted in the ranks of organized labor.

Should Carry On

AN ASSOCIATED PRESS NEWS ITEM states that because of the diversion of public interest from domestic affairs by the European war and the approach of the 1940 national election the House investigation of the Works Projects Administration is likely to die a quiet death.

Such an outcome would be most unfortunate. The committee has done good work and largely because of its industry and common sense, Congress this year was able to correct certain glaring abuses in the WPA setup and incidentally to save money for the taxpayers. Yet every thoughtful person realized that what was done was only a beginning on what needed to be done.

Unemployment is the biggest problem which confronts the nation today. War is not going to solve it regardless of what the New Deal says. Nor is war going to solve the related problem of how best to provide for our jobless. And WPA Administrator Harrington assures us that despite the war we will continue to have that problem with us.

It would be inexcusable if we should permit our interest in a war which is not ours to make us callous to a pressing economic and humanitarian obligation which is ours. And there is still less excuse for shirking honest duty because of fear of political repercussions.

Aside from the long range view, there is every reason why the committee should carry on, for the same news item informs us that the House group has found "bad" conditions in Indiana and has developed sufficient material for extensive public hearings.

High Time

EMMETT F. CONNELY, of Detroit, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, declares that on the basis of estimates by conservative authorities, American industrial plants need from twenty-five to forty billions of dollars of capital to make up for neglected maintenance and replacements.

Two things, Connelly says, account for the inactivity in the capital markets, the activity of which is needed to bring real prosperity. One is the uncertainties and handicaps faced by business enterprises which make responsible managements hesitate to undertake expansion and new activities. The other is the trouble and expense involved for a small enterprise in obtaining its modest capital needs in the normal manner because of the involved regulations.

It is high time, indeed, to remove these handicaps and uncertainties; and it would be better to do it now while there is a tendency toward general business improvement.

The extent of the reconstruction possibilities reported by Connely is greater doubtless than many persons have supposed. The fact that they are of such scope, should suggest the imperative need of making use of them.

As the Twig Is Bent

DEMOCRACY does not "just happen, it must be achieved by conscious planning and definite work," is the conclusion of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which urges its large membership to translate ideals into action through many projects now in preparation for winter programs.

The basic principles which aid the democratic way of life and which call for closer application, as the National Congress of Parents and Teachers sees them, are "self-realization, human relationships, economic effectiveness and civic responsibilities." In fact, these four areas of human conduct need attention if the children of our day are to have "freedom of growth," which is the organization's theme to be developed during the coming season.

Looking beyond the home and school to the community, this organization, which has 2,700 local units and an active membership of 2,300,000 persons, men and women, is striving in its new plans to complement the democratic way of living as much as possible. And it feels a special responsibility to see that all children may realize equal opportunities for "freedom of growth."

These may appear to be generalizations, but they are an attempt to chart a way for the teaching of the basic principles on which this nation is founded and which are necessary for our understanding of the obligation to maintain the American form of government.

Many controversial issues tend to becloud the basic concepts of democracy, but there can be no question of the pertinence of the P.-T. A theory that the future of America depends on the inculcation of democratic principles in the children of each generation.

Reason for It

CHAIRMAN HAMILTON, of the Republican hosts, takes umbrage at the suggestion by Mr. Roosevelt that the national conventions of both major political parties be held next year later than usual. It strikes him that Mr. Roosevelt is "arrogating himself" a great deal of authority when he undertakes to direct when the Republican party should hold its convention and he adds that whatever is done by his organization will be done to suit the convenience of Republicans. He is quite right about that.

But there can be detected in the president's suggestion a sign of fear over the status of New Deal prospects. "Informed sources" at Warm Springs, Ga., where Mr. Roosevelt is sojourning, explained that the postponement suggestion has been made merely to provide a short campaign in a year of international crises and to obtain campaign economies.

But it may be, after all, that a longer campaign would serve to bring out into the open and emphasize the many shortcomings and failures of the New Deal with undesirable effects upon the voters. Hence the desire to shorten the examination as much as possible. But, whether the campaign is short or long, there is enough of the New Deal mess to impress the voters with the undesirability of continuing it provided the work of letting it be known is done with honesty and discretion.

A Shoddy Story

THE NEXT TIME you go down to the basement to put a little coal in the furnace, think of the New Deal record with the coal industry. It's a pretty shoddy story and it's costing you money in taxes for every shovelful you pop into the furnace.

The Bituminous Coal code was outlawed when the supreme court invalidated the N.R.A. Then came the Bituminous Coal Conservation act of 1937. (Notice that all New Deal acts carry some such high sounding phrase as "Coal Conservation.") The act calls for a levy of one cent a ton on all coal produced, the money to be used to pay salaries and expenses of the commission set up with its various district offices.

According to Alfred C. Frodel, there are approximately 400,000,000 tons of coal produced a year, making $4,000,000 in indirect taxes. Up until the president's Re-organization Plan No. 2, nothing had been done except the making of political appointments and the setting up of offices. The president moved the unit to the Interior department. The Interior department is now winding up the affairs of the old commission and starting out on a new tack.

In short, about $8,000,000 have been spent and not a single constructive thing has yet been done.

That's the New Deal in action — in action spending your money.

A magazine writer refers to "the Quaint Nineties." Weren't they, though? Back in those affected days tripe was known as bosh.

This is the time of the year when we like to believe that dead leaves are good for the lawn.

The Human Side Of the News

Edwin C. Hill

This generation of American youth is running to muscle and brawn. In the press coop at a football game the other day, I asked some of the old rail - birds, whose memories range far back, how the teams of today would compare in poundage with those of the previous generation. The collective answer boils down to this: If any of the teams of thirty or forty years ago had hung up their uniforms when they quit, the lads of today just couldn't get into them.

It was agreed that this was not due to the more intensified scouting of today which rounds up more of the big boys. They just come in larger sizes all along the line — that's all there is to it. The talk ranged back through the chill autumn winds of many a yesteryear to the Gargantuan Heffliefinger of Yale; Niel Snow of Michigan; "Beef" Wheeler and "House" Janeway of Princeton. There were giants in those days, but as they trot off to the showers — to Valhalla, some of them — we replace them with supergiants.

All Big Fellows

Here's Princeton with a line averaging well over 207 pounds; Georgetown has two lines, one averaging 203 and the other 205; Southern California runs well over 200 pounds on the hoof, as does Tulane. Back in the old days a line of 200-pound average weight was unheard of. Backfields similarly run to bulk, as compared to the former. Here's Kimbraugh, Texas A. & M. halfback, wegihing 200 pounds and running and dodging like a jackrabbit. While backfields are also proportionately heavier, they are as fast if not faster than those of the days when greased lightning came only in small packages — like little Walter Eckersall, of Chicago.

When you come to consider the requirements for speed and agility, not only in the backfield but in the line — with mobility essential in guards and tackles, as well as ends —you get a picture of ascendant physical prowess which is a fitting complement to the machine age of speed, power and precision. We seem to be living up to the dynamics of our day.

Less of a Standout

But what about the years ahead for these young Olympians? Is it a swivel - chair job, a luncheon of steak and potatoes and a big slab of apple pie, a steady bulge in the midriff and a wheeze when they run upstairs? Here, again, there are some interesting things to report. Our country has made a tremendous advance in healthful diet. We know a lot about balanced rations. Newspapers and magazines are giving the public widespread enlightment on their food pages about vitamins, energy foods and nerves, muscles, bone-and-tissue-biulding foods. The conditioned athlete is a lot less of a standout than he was in the days of the above old-time football stars.

We have noted recently that several of the big, new apartment houses in New York City are putting in completely equipped gymnasiums for their tenants, and organizing classes for persons of varied age and physical stamina, under trained instructors. It appears to be something different from Theodore Roosevelt's "red-bloodedness." He coached us shrilly to "hit the line hard" and he exemplified the possibilities of converting yourself from a weakling to a Sandow, but there was a febrile excitement in all this, lacking in today's much calmer and more widespread interest in physical conditioning.

The Atlas Miracle

Pertinent to all this was a little story in the paper the other day in which was chronicled the forty-seventh birthday of Charles Atlas, the physical short-ender who now is billed as "the world's most perfectly developed man." Sculpturs chase him in the streets to get him to pose for them and he meets himself in effigy wherever he goes—here Alexander Hamilton, there George Washington, or perhaps Hercules. As he reached manhood he was a sickly weakling.

He says systematic, continuous exercise worked the miracle. A contest by a New York tabloid newspaper gave him his title. At 47, he drives a 120-penny nail through a board with his bare hand and drapes a 200-pound weight around his neck like a scarf. He says we can all get that way if we start young and work hard at it. That's grand, but it seems that this or that Napoleon is apt to be a runt. At any rate, we are making ourselves physically fit, and that might be a good starting point for more ambitious social reform.—Copyright, 1939, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

More Demands Expected in Congress For Closer Control of Expenditures

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Senator Alva B. Adams, of Colorado, is not the only solon who has expressed himself in favor of closer congressional control over government expenditures. However, he's a Democrat, which adds somewhat to the significance of his implied suggestion that maybe quite a few of our national executive departments and other agencies have been a bit excessive in their demands for public money. Republican lawmakers are expected to be critical of a Democratic administration's spending. It counts more when a Democratic legislator hints that he thinks there's been extravagance on the part of a Democratic executive regime.

Senator Adams

Goes to Bureau

When an executive outfit has calculated how much it needs to carry it through an ensuing fiscal year it turns its figures over to the Budget bureau. The Budget bureau, in turn, having assembled all these estimates, refers them to Congress, requesting corresponding appropriations.

Suppose the Navy department, illustratively, makes an application for a financial allowance. It's a department which is answerable directly to the White House. Therefore it's presumable that its plea has presidential indorsement. The Budget bureau likewise is of presidential creation; it isn't a bit likely to find much fault with what the White House, inferentially, has recommended. So, in that form, the application goes to Congress.

It's referred to the Senate and House Naval Affairs committees.

The navy naturally wants all the dough it can get. The Budget bureau acquiesces. The congressional committees also consist of navy enthusiasts.

Congress Doesn't Know

Thus the item gets to Congress substantially as originally called for by the Navy department.

The rank-and-file of congressmen, not knowing anything about the subject, vote as per the findings of the supposed experts. It's the same way relative to all the other executive items.

To be sure, some congressmen have said that they believed various departments were putting their demands too high. They've proposed a general reduction of, say, 10 per cent in all sought-for appropriations.

This wouldn't be fair, though, either.

Surmise that the Navy department has made a rip-snorting high request, in comparison with a quite reasonable departmental request.

It wouldn't be on the level to cut the war department at the same rate as the navy.

All the departments and miscellaneous agencies are mixed up in the same fashion.

Congress versus President

The theory, then, as urged by Senator Adams, is for Congress to set up a committee of the members of both houses to consider ALL proposed expenditures of ANY executive origin.

It should go without saying that this notion is 100 per cent contra-White House wishes.

But it has the support of all Republicans and all anti-Rooseveltian Democrats. It'll be a red-hot controversy when Congress meets early in 1940.

It can't be headed off.

There's too much talk about governmental spending.

General Accounting Office

It was a movement when the general accounting office was created, right after the World war.

The idea then was to muzzle federal spending.

It didn't work after the New Deal came in.

On the contrary, federal spending became rampant.

You heard a lot about the general accounting office when its career was young. Now you hear about as much about it as you do about the fisheries bureau of the agricultural department.

Even the fisheries bureau is accused of asking an excessive allowance.

Maryland Farm Musings

From the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

For the 1939-40 breeding season, thirty-four hatcheries with over a million and a quarter eggs capacity and approximately 900 breeding flocks with over 500,000 birds are cooperating with the Maryland Poultry Improvement Board under the state and national poultry improvement plans.

The eighth Maryland Poultry Products Show will be held this year from January 9 to 11 at the Lord Baltimore hotel, Baltimore, it is announced by Harry H. Rieck, president of the Maryland State Poultry Council, which sponsors the show in cooperation with other state agricultural groups. In the egg department nine classes have been provided, with sub-classes for white and brown eggs.

Over eighty percent of the peach trees observed in a recent study of fruit farms near Baltimore and Washington, were under eleven years of age, indicating the rather recent plantings on Maryland farms. Elberta was the oldest variety encountered, averaging nine years. Belle averaged [illegible] years, while Carmen, Early [illegible] Late Elberta, and Hale all averaged seven years of age. Crawford, the youngest variety, averaged six years.

A recent survey by the University of Maryland Experiment Station of seventy-two farm families in Carroll county, showed that eighty-nine percent had radios; forty-six percent, mechanical refrigerators; seventy-eight percent, mechanical washing machines; ninety percent, sewing machines; eighty-one percent, water indoors; fifty-eight percent, hot and cold water; fifty-six percent, indoor toilets; fifty-seven percent, central heating; seventy-eight percent, central lighting; sixty-four percent, telephones, and 100 percent, automobiles.

Ten Maryland 4-H Club members will represent the state this year at the annual 4-H Club Congress which will be held in Chicago from December 1 to 9. Thomas Wilson, Charles Wright, Jr., and Norris Twilley, of Wicomico county, compose a livestock judging team that will take part in the non-collegiate livestock judging contest at the International Livestock Show. The team will be accompanied by two coaches, J. P. Brown, county agent for Wicomico county, and James B. Outhouse, of the University of Maryland Livestock department.

Does This Make Sense?

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

With what the Associated Press describes as "clocklike regularity," the National Coal Association has tried, unsuccessfully, to have coal considered in each of the more than a score of trade agreements thus far negotiated by the United States government. Now, the association is trying again — this time in the Chilean agreement. "We're operating on the theory that with constant repetition, the idea might take root," explains Secretary Battles; the idea being that if the government is to encourage the importation of goods, coal should come in for some consideration in figuring exports.

The government's attitude toward coal is hard to fathom. In the Guffey act, the problems of the industry were recognized and extreme measures adopted to meet them. Yet in the hydro-electric scheme, the same government has spent vast sums of public money to take away an important part of the outlet for coal. Worse still, it has reduced the excise tax on imported oil, thus cutting deeper still into the coal market. And, as the Associated Press informs us, it has ignored coal completely in the negotiation of trade agreements, despite the fact that in South America alone there is a potential market for from seven to eight million tons of coal a year heretofore purchased from Germany and England.

More Taxes Would Crush Recovery

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Nov. 29—Are we going to boost federal taxes by a couple of billions to pay for our mammoth defense program "as we go," or shall we buy our armament on tick? Without deciding, the president hints "tax." Congressman Vinson, after talking with Mr. Roosevelt, says "tax," and Senator Vandenberg says the same.

Hugh Johnson

Among other new ideas in an old art that came out of the Nye Munitions committee was that all wars should be paid for as they are fought—even to the extent of confiscating almost all income and profits. Senator Josh Lee has a plan for what amounts to a capital levy. He would require everybody who owns property to "invest" a percentage of it in bonds that bear infinitesimal interest — just a trace to get around the illegality of outright confiscation—the clause of the Constitution which forbids the taking of private property for public use without just compensation.

Economic Struggles

As is becoming more evident every day in Europe, modern wars are economic struggles rather than military conflicts. The economic machine that can produce more efficiently and prevent its enemy from doing so has the best chance to win.

Our economic system is geared to the property and profits system—the hope of reward rather than the fear of punishment is the juice that makes our motor run. That system has already been greatly restricted by various new departures—burdensome taxes, indirect confiscation and constant political attacks. It seemingly can stand terrible beatings in this regard and still sputter on. But there are many who believe that this is one reason why it does not hit on all cylinders and is working only in three-quarter time.

Limit to Burdens

Surely there is some limit beyond which we cannot go in burdensome taxes and assaults on property and still expect our economic system—which is also our defensive system—to do its job at all.

In taxation especially, there is a principle known as the "law of diminishing returns," which simply means that you can get tax rates so high that you cut off the activity which produces tax payments and so get less revenue with a higher rate than with a lower and, at the same time and for the same reason, render more factories idle and more men jobless. We are probably in that area now and would surely be there if we add another two billions to the tax bill.

Pure Destruction

The frightful consumption of active war—burning up tons of chemicals and hurling away other tons of steel daily—is pure destruction. So far as is reasonably possible it should be paid for as it occurs.

But the building and buying of ships, motor trucks, cannon and machinery for defense while we are at peace is down a different alley. It is an investment for the future. Presumably our vast emergency spending will not recur. After we are equipped, we will have to take care of its increased cost of maintenance, depreciation and obsolescence, but the property and capital investment will be ours.

Would Kill Recovery

It is a proper subject for increased debt rather than increased taxes—far more clearly so than raking leaves or billions worth of boondoggle that we have bought on tick—and for which we have nothing to show. There would be some sense in providing out of current revenue to replace these armaments and to pay for their cost in installments spread over their useful life. But to pay an estimated cost of two and a quarter billions by raising taxes would mean adding twenty-five per cent to an already back-breaking tax load.

It is just about the most effective way imaginable to kill our apparently returning prosperity and impair our efficiency for defense.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Steel That Will Cut Glass

From Forbes Magazine

Steel so hard that it can cut glass has been produced in a new automatic electric steel-hardening furnace that can harden many steels gently without cooling in oil or water.

The furnace is about seven feet long and so designed that a piece of steel passes through it, getting progressively hotter, and is finally fed into an air-cooled tunnel to be cooled. While inside the furnace, the steel is surrounded by a delicately balanced atmosphere of pure hydrogen and nitrogen. This "blanket" keeps the metal from being singed and prevents any reaction which would distort or mar it.

By this method the metallurgist can harden steel pieces in their finished form, thus doing away with the expense and delay of additional machining.

The new hard steel is designed for the manufacture of dies. The makers say that more than 200 such dies have been shaped from the metal and air-hardened without any appreciable distortion which would require supplementary machining or reshaping. It is estimated that potential economics of from 40 to 60% in the manufacture of dies should result.

Fewer Protests Better

SENATOR KEY PITTMAN, of Nevada, administration leader in Congress, says it is his opinion that the United States will accept Great Britain's blockade of German exports without protest.

Pittman, who is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, holds that while this country might suffer some financial loss from the blockade, it will not join other neutral nations in protesting against the seizure of German goods. Italy, the Netherlands and Belgium, more extensively concerned, already have filed such protests.

"We certainly will not become involved in this controversy, which constitutes a minor sacrifice when compared with the major sacrifices which this country has made in passing the neutrality act," Pittman says.

There is no reason for it to become involved in view of that legislation, and it is good to hear a responsible administration leader make note of it. There have been too many impulses to fire a note or two at every drop of the hat in Washington and, considering that this is not our war and that we are not participating in it, the fewer of them sent out the better.

Sticks to His Guns

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT sticks to his guns regarding his opinion about the needful clean up in the ranks of organized labor.

The son of the president says that the gist of his mail for the last week or so has been to the effect that he has been "taking cracks" at labor. But he declares that this is not true, pointing out that he had been saying certain things "about those subversive elements in labor which are dominated by criminals and racketeers, and which are robbing the decent half of labor of its good name."

Elliott insists that "unless labor weeds out its criminals and its felons, its thugs and its racketeers, it is going to have to do without the sympathy and the loyal support of a great part of the American public."

The radio executive is quite right about that; and no one will indorse his admonition more than the conscientious workers enlisted in the ranks of organized labor.

Should Carry On

AN ASSOCIATED PRESS NEWS ITEM states that because of the diversion of public interest from domestic affairs by the European war and the approach of the 1940 national election the House investigation of the Works Projects Administration is likely to die a quiet death.

Such an outcome would be most unfortunate. The committee has done good work and largely because of its industry and common sense, Congress this year was able to correct certain glaring abuses in the WPA setup and incidentally to save money for the taxpayers. Yet every thoughtful person realized that what was done was only a beginning on what needed to be done.

Unemployment is the biggest problem which confronts the nation today. War is not going to solve it regardless of what the New Deal says. Nor is war going to solve the related problem of how best to provide for our jobless. And WPA Administrator Harrington assures us that despite the war we will continue to have that problem with us.

It would be inexcusable if we should permit our interest in a war which is not ours to make us callous to a pressing economic and humanitarian obligation which is ours. And there is still less excuse for shirking honest duty because of fear of political repercussions.

Aside from the long range view, there is every reason why the committee should carry on, for the same news item informs us that the House group has found "bad" conditions in Indiana and has developed sufficient material for extensive public hearings.

High Time

EMMETT F. CONNELY, of Detroit, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, declares that on the basis of estimates by conservative authorities, American industrial plants need from twenty-five to forty billions of dollars of capital to make up for neglected maintenance and replacements.

Two things, Connelly says, account for the inactivity in the capital markets, the activity of which is needed to bring real prosperity. One is the uncertainties and handicaps faced by business enterprises which make responsible managements hesitate to undertake expansion and new activities. The other is the trouble and expense involved for a small enterprise in obtaining its modest capital needs in the normal manner because of the involved regulations.

It is high time, indeed, to remove these handicaps and uncertainties; and it would be better to do it now while there is a tendency toward general business improvement.

The extent of the reconstruction possibilities reported by Connely is greater doubtless than many persons have supposed. The fact that they are of such scope, should suggest the imperative need of making use of them.

As the Twig Is Bent

DEMOCRACY does not "just happen, it must be achieved by conscious planning and definite work," is the conclusion of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which urges its large membership to translate ideals into action through many projects now in preparation for winter programs.

The basic principles which aid the democratic way of life and which call for closer application, as the National Congress of Parents and Teachers sees them, are "self-realization, human relationships, economic effectiveness and civic responsibilities." In fact, these four areas of human conduct need attention if the children of our day are to have "freedom of growth," which is the organization's theme to be developed during the coming season.

Looking beyond the home and school to the community, this organization, which has 2,700 local units and an active membership of 2,300,000 persons, men and women, is striving in its new plans to complement the democratic way of living as much as possible. And it feels a special responsibility to see that all children may realize equal opportunities for "freedom of growth."

These may appear to be generalizations, but they are an attempt to chart a way for the teaching of the basic principles on which this nation is founded and which are necessary for our understanding of the obligation to maintain the American form of government.

Many controversial issues tend to becloud the basic concepts of democracy, but there can be no question of the pertinence of the P.-T. A theory that the future of America depends on the inculcation of democratic principles in the children of each generation.

Reason for It

CHAIRMAN HAMILTON, of the Republican hosts, takes umbrage at the suggestion by Mr. Roosevelt that the national conventions of both major political parties be held next year later than usual. It strikes him that Mr. Roosevelt is "arrogating himself" a great deal of authority when he undertakes to direct when the Republican party should hold its convention and he adds that whatever is done by his organization will be done to suit the convenience of Republicans. He is quite right about that.

But there can be detected in the president's suggestion a sign of fear over the status of New Deal prospects. "Informed sources" at Warm Springs, Ga., where Mr. Roosevelt is sojourning, explained that the postponement suggestion has been made merely to provide a short campaign in a year of international crises and to obtain campaign economies.

But it may be, after all, that a longer campaign would serve to bring out into the open and emphasize the many shortcomings and failures of the New Deal with undesirable effects upon the voters. Hence the desire to shorten the examination as much as possible. But, whether the campaign is short or long, there is enough of the New Deal mess to impress the voters with the undesirability of continuing it provided the work of letting it be known is done with honesty and discretion.

A Shoddy Story

THE NEXT TIME you go down to the basement to put a little coal in the furnace, think of the New Deal record with the coal industry. It's a pretty shoddy story and it's costing you money in taxes for every shovelful you pop into the furnace.

The Bituminous Coal code was outlawed when the supreme court invalidated the N.R.A. Then came the Bituminous Coal Conservation act of 1937. (Notice that all New Deal acts carry some such high sounding phrase as "Coal Conservation.") The act calls for a levy of one cent a ton on all coal produced, the money to be used to pay salaries and expenses of the commission set up with its various district offices.

According to Alfred C. Frodel, there are approximately 400,000,000 tons of coal produced a year, making $4,000,000 in indirect taxes. Up until the president's Re-organization Plan No. 2, nothing had been done except the making of political appointments and the setting up of offices. The president moved the unit to the Interior department. The Interior department is now winding up the affairs of the old commission and starting out on a new tack.

In short, about $8,000,000 have been spent and not a single constructive thing has yet been done.

That's the New Deal in action — in action spending your money.

A magazine writer refers to "the Quaint Nineties." Weren't they, though? Back in those affected days tripe was known as bosh.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

This generation of American youth is running to muscle and brawn. In the press coop at a football game the other day, I asked some of the old rail - birds, whose memories range far back, how the teams of today would compare in poundage with those of the previous generation. The collective answer boils down to this: If any of the teams of thirty or forty years ago had hung up their uniforms when they quit, the lads of today just couldn't get into them.

Edwin C. Hill

It was agreed that this was not due to the more intensified scouting of today which rounds up more of the big boys. They just come in larger sizes all along the line — that's all there is to it. The talk ranged back through the chill autumn winds of many a yesteryear to the Gargantuan Heffiefinger of Yale; Niel Snow of Michigan; "Beef" Wheeler and "House" Janeway of Princeton. There were giants in those days, but as they trot off to the showers — to Valhalla, some of them — we replace them with supergiants.

All Big Fellows

Here's Princeton with a line averaging well over 207 pounds; Georgetown has two lines, one averaging 203 and the other 205; Southern California runs well over 200 pounds on the hoof, as does Tulane. Back in the old days a line of 200-pound average weight was unheard of. Backfields similarly run to bulk, as compared to the former. Here's Kimbraugh, Texas A. & M. halfback, wegihing 200 pounds and running and dodging like a jackrabbit. While backfields are also proportionately heavier, they are as fast if not faster than those of the days when greased lightning came only in small packages — like little Walter Eckersall, of Chicago.

When you come to consider the requirements for speed and agility, not only in the backfield but in the line — with mobility essential in guards and tackles, as well as ends —you get a picture of ascendant physical prowess which is a fitting complement to the machine age of speed, power and precision. We seem to be living up to the dynamics of our day.

Less of a Standout

But what about the years ahead for these young Olympians? Is it a swivel - chair job, a luncheon of steak and potatoes and a big slab of apple pie, a steady bulge in the midriff and a wheeze when they run upstairs? Here, again, there are some interesting things to report. Our country has made a tremendous advance in healthful diet. We know a lot about balanced rations. Newspapers and magazines are giving the public widespread enlightment on their food pages about vitamins, energy foods and nerves, muscles, bone-and-tissue-biulding foods. The conditioned athlete is a lot less of a standout than he was in the days of the above old-time football stars.

We have noted recently that several of the big, new apartment houses in New York City are putting in completely equipped gymnasiums for their tenants, and organizing classes for persons of varied age and physical stamina, under trained instructors. It appears to be something different from Theodore Roosevelt's "red-bloodedness." He coached us shrilly to "hit the line hard" and he exemplified the possibilities of converting yourself from a weakling to a Sandow, but there was a febrile excitement in all this, lacking in today's much calmer and more widespread interest in physical conditioning.

The Atlas Miracle

Pertinent to all this was a little story in the paper the other day in which was chronicled the forty-seventh birthday of Charles Atlas, the physical short-ender who now is billed as "the world's most perfectly developed man." Sculpturs chase him up the streets to get him to pose for them and he meets himself in effigy wherever he goes—here Alexander Hamilton, there George Washington, or perhaps Hercules. As he reached manhood he was a sickly weakling.

He says systematic, continuous exercise worked the miracle. A contest by a New York tabloid newspaper gave him his title. At 47, he drives a 120-penny nail through a board with his bare hand and drapes a 200-pound weight around his neck like a scarf. He says we can all get that way if we start young and work hard at it. That's grand, but it seems that this or that Napoleon is apt to be a runt. At any rate, we are making ourselves physically fit, and that might be a good starting point for more ambitious social reform.—Copyright, 1939, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

YOU'VE GOT SOMETHING THERE, MR. DIES

More Demands Expected in Congress For Closer Control of Expenditures

Central Press Columnist

Senator Alva B. Adams, of Colorado, is not the only solon who has expressed himself in favor of closer congressional control over government expenditures. However, he's a Democrat, which adds somewhat to the significance of his implied suggestion that maybe quite a few of our national executive departments and other agencies have been a bit excessive in their demands for public money. Republican lawmakers are expected to be critical of a Democratic administration's spending. It counts more when a Democratic legislator hints that he thinks there's been extravagance on the part of a Democratic executive regime.

Senator Adams

Goes to Bureau

When an executive outfit has calculated how much it needs to carry it through an ensuing fiscal year it turns its figures over to the Budget bureau. The Budget bureau, in turn, having assembled all these estimates, refers them to Congress, requesting corresponding appropriations.

Suppose the Navy department, illustratively, makes an application for a financial allowance. It's a department which is answerable directly to the White House. Therefore it's presumable that its plea has presidential indorsement. The Budget bureau likewise is of presidential creation; it isn't a bit likely to find much fault with what the White House, inferentially, has recommended. So, in that form, the application goes to Congress.

It's referred to the Senate and House Naval Affairs committees.

Congress Doesn't Know

Thus the item gets to Congress substantially as originally called for by the Navy department.

The rank-and-file of congressmen, not knowing anything about the subject, vote as per the findings of the supposed experts. It's the same way relative to all the other executive items.

To be sure, some congressmen have said that they believed various departments were putting their demands too high. They've proposed a general reduction of, say, 10 per cent in all sought-for appropriations.

This wouldn't be fair, though, either.

Surmise that the Navy department has made a rip-snorting high request, in comparison with a quite reasonable departmental request.

It wouldn't be on the level to cut the war department at the same rate as the navy.

All the departments and miscellaneous agencies are mixed up in the same fashion.

Congress versus President

The theory, then, as urged by Senator Adams, is for Congress to set up a committee of the members of both houses to consider ALL proposed expenditures of ANY executive origin.

It should go without saying that this notion is 100 per cent contra-White House wishes.

But it has the support of all Republicans and all anti-Rooseveltian Democrats. It'll be a red-hot controversy when Congress meets early in 1940.

It can't be headed off.

There's too much talk about governmental spending.

General Accounting Office

It was a movement when the general accounting office was created, right after the World war.

The idea then was to muzzle federal spending.

It didn't work after the New Deal came in.

On the contrary, federal spending became rampant.

You heard a lot about the general accounting office when its career was young. Now you hear about as much about it as you do about the fisheries bureau of the agricultural department.

Even the fisheries bureau is accused of asking an excessive allowance.

Maryland Farm Musings

From the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

For the 1939-40 breeding season, thirty-four hatcheries with over a million and a quarter eggs capacity and approximately 900 breeding flocks with over 500,000 birds are cooperating with the Maryland Poultry Improvement Board under the state and national poultry improvement plans.

The eighth Maryland Poultry Products Show will be held this year from January 9 to 11 at the Lord Baltimore hotel, Baltimore, it is announced by Harry H. Rieck, president of the Maryland State Poultry Council, which sponsors the show in cooperation with other state agricultural groups. In the egg department nine classes have been provided, with sub-classes for white and brown eggs.

Over eighty percent of the peach trees observed in a recent study of fruit farms near Baltimore and Washington, were under eleven years of age, indicating the rather recent plantings on Maryland farms. Elberta was the oldest variety encountered, averaging nine years. Belle averaged [illegible] years, while Carmen, Early [illegible] Late Elberta, and Hale all averaged [illegible] even years of age. Crawford, the youngest variety, averaged six years.

A recent survey by the University of Maryland Experiment Station of seventy-two farm families in Carroll county, showed that eighty-nine percent had radios; forty-six percent, mechanical refrigerators; seventy-eight percent, mechanical washing machines; ninety percent, sewing machines; eighty-one percent, water indoors; fifty-eight percent, hot and cold water; fifty-six percent, indoor toilets; fifty-seven percent, central heating; seventy-eight percent, central lighting; sixty-four percent, telephones, and 100 percent, automobiles.

Ten Maryland 4-H Club members will represent the state this year at the annual 4-H Club Congress which will be held in Chicago from December 1 to 9. Thomas Wilson, Charles Wright, Jr., and Norris Twilley, of Wicomico county, compose a livestock judging team that will take part in the non-collegiate livestock judging contest at the International Livestock Show. The team will be accompanied by two coaches, J. P. Brown, county agent for Wicomico county, and James B. Outhouse, of the University of Maryland Livestock department.

Does This Make Sense?

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

With what the Associated Press describes as "clocklike regularity," the National Coal Association has tried, unsuccessfully, to have coal considered in each of the more than a score of trade agreements thus far negotiated by the United States government. Now, the association is trying again — this time in the Chilean agreement. "We're operating on the theory that with constant repetition, the idea might take root," explains Secretary Battles; the idea being that if the government is to encourage the importation of goods, coal should come in for some consideration in figuring exports.

The government's attitude toward coal is hard to fathom. In the Guffey act, the problems of the industry were recognized and extreme measures adopted to meet them. Yet in the hydro-electric scheme, the same government has spent vast sums of public money to take away an important part of the outlet for coal. Worse still, it has reduced the excise tax on imported oil, thus cutting deeper still into the coal market. And, as the Associated Press informs us, it has ignored coal completely in the negotiation of trade agreements, despite the fact that in South America alone there is a potential market for from seven to eight million tons of coal a year heretofore purchased from Germany and England.

More Taxes Would Crush Recovery

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Nov. 29—Are we going to boost federal taxes by a couple of billions to pay for our mammoth defense program "as we go," or shall we buy our armament on tick? Without deciding, the president hints "tax." Congressman Vinson, after talking with Mr. Roosevelt, says "tax," and Senator Vandenberg says the same.

Hugh Johnson

Among other new ideas in an old art that came out of the Nye Munitions committee was that all wars should be paid for as they are fought—even to the extent of confiscating almost all income and profits. Senator Josh Lee has a plan for what amounts to a capital levy. He would require everybody who owns property to "invest" a percentage of it in bonds that bear infinitesimal interest — just a trace to get around the illegality of outright confiscation—the clause of the Constitution which forbids the taking of private property for public use without just compensation.

Economic Struggles

As is becoming more evident every day in Europe, modern wars are economic struggles rather than military conflicts. The economic machine that can produce more efficiently and prevent its enemy from doing so has the best chance to win.

Our economic system is geared to the property and profits system—the hope of reward rather than the fear of punishment is the juice that makes our motor run. That system has already been greatly restricted by various new departures—burdensome taxes, indirect confiscation and constant political attacks. It seemingly can stand terrible beatings in this regard and still sputter on. But there are many who believe that this is one reason why it does not hit on all cylinders and is working only in three-quarter time.

Limit to Burdens

Surely there is some limit beyond which we cannot go in burdensome taxes and assaults on property and still expect our economic system—which is also our defensive system—to do its job at all.

In taxation especially, there is a principle known as the "law of diminishing returns," which simply means that you can get tax rates so high that you cut off the activity which produces tax payments and so get less revenue with a higher rate than with a lower and, at the same time and for the same reason, render more factories idle and more men jobless. We are probably in that area now and would surely be there if we add another two billions to the tax bill.

Pure Destruction

The frightful consumption of active war—burning up tons of chemicals and hurling away other tons of steel daily—is pure destruction. So far as is reasonably possible it should be paid for as it occurs.

But the building and buying of ships, motor trucks, cannon and machinery for defense while we are at peace is down a different alley. It is an investment for the future. Presumably our vast emergency spending will not recur. After we are equipped, we will have to take care of its increased cost of maintenance, depreciation and obsolescence, but the property and capital investment will be ours.

Would Kill Recovery

It is a proper subject for increased debt rather than increased taxes—far more clearly so than raking leaves or billions worth of boondoggle that we have bought on tick—and for which we have nothing to show. There would be some sense in providing out of current revenue to replace these armaments and to pay for their cost in installments spread over their useful life. But to pay an estimated cost of two and a quarter billions by raising taxes would mean adding twenty-five per cent to an already back-breaking tax load.

It is just about the most effective way imaginable to kill our apparently returning prosperity and impair our efficiency for defense.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Steel That Will Cut Glass

From Forbes Magazine

Steel so hard that it can cut glass has been produced in a new automatic electric steel-hardening furnace that can harden many steels gently without cooling in oil or water.

The furnace is about seven feet long and so designed that a piece of steel passes through it, getting progressively hotter, and is finally fed into an air-cooled tunnel to be cooled. While inside the furnace, the steel is surrounded by a delicately balanced atmosphere of pure hydrogen and nitrogen. This "blanket" keeps the metal from being singed and prevents any reaction which would distort or mar it.

By this method the metallurgist can harden steel pieces in their finished form, thus doing away with the expense and delay of additional machining.

The new hard steel is designed for the manufacture of dies. The makers say that more than 200 such dies have been shaped from the metal and air-hardened without any appreciable distortion which would require supplementary machining or reshaping. It is estimated that potential economics of from 40 to 60% in the manufacture of dies should result.

Facing Icy Blasts

JUDY GARLAND . . . conditions her skin for the cold winds.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN THE north winds shall blow and we shall have snow, what will Sweet Pretty do then, p-o-o-r thing? Being a smart baby, she will weather-proof her sacred complexion. Icy blasts can kiss her pink cheeks without causing them to take on the flakiness of pie crust. Unless something is done, there is a possibility that the cutaneous covering will be like that of an emery board. Always something!

Two different creams are needed: a heavy emollient to be used after the face washing at night, tapped in and smoothed on for at least five minutes; a thin cream for use during the day.

It is a mistake to apply soap and water directly before going out-of-doors in frosty weather, or immediately after coming in. Remove make-up with cream or a cleansing oil and fluff on fresh factory blushes. In the morning use cold water only—you have put your face to bed the night before, all nice and clean—dry gently with a soft towel and apply your foundation cosmetic. Play with the make-up kit to your little heart's content.

Be fussy about the soap you use, for a bad-natured soap can raise the dickens with the human hide. Be fussy, too, about powder; see that it is fine and soft since a coarse-grained one will rumple the epidermis. A professional facial now and then is well worth the time and money spent.

Keep poised. A jumpy, jittery lady is not a restful companion. Do not, we beg you, tap your toes on the carpet when you are impatient; those who have to watch you will want to scream. Don't find a stray lock of hair, twist it and tease it; that habit is distracting.

Keep your body under control, know what you are doing, assume an attitude that signifies that you are at ease. Be attentive when others are talking. Don't keep glancing at yourself in a mirror; that is a common practice that bespeaks vanity. Most of us who make these slips are unconscious of them. Hence, these few cruel words from teacher.

Highway Officers Know The Quality of Mercy

Helena, Mont.—Two state highway officers stopped a battered car carrying a farmer, his wife and several children. "Why," they asked, "haven't you any license plates on this jallopy?"

The farmer not only had no money for license, but the family, headed toward a warmer winter climate, didn't even have food.

The officers dug down in their jeans, but the farmer wouldn't accept charity. One officer spied a small pup in the back of the car.

"We'll buy that pup," he said.

The farmer's shoulders straightened and he smiled. "Sure," he said.

They made a deal.

Predicament Is Faced By Bald-headed Man

Helena, Mont., (AP) — A bald-headed man, with serious expression, approached a clerk in a Helena hat store.

"Is there anything a bald-headed man can do, something he can put in his hat band or on his head, to keep his hat from blowing away in the wind?" he asked. "I have a terrible time."

"Only thing we've found is molasses," said the clerk.

Wag's Gag

Lexington, Ky., (AP) — Concrete sidewalks constructed years ago and stamped with the names of two contractors, "Justice" and "Graves," prompted a wag to send a communication of complaint to a Lexington newspaper. Pedestrians, said the letter, habitually walked over Graves and trampled Justice underfoot."

Single Football Game Is Carded On Radio Today

Clash between Kentucky and Tennessee Will Be Described

By C. E. BUTTERWORTH
Associated Press Radio Editor

New York, Nov. 29 — Football gets the center position in the radio observance of the year's second Thanksgiving. However, only one game is on the list, the annual meeting of Kentucky and Tennessee as it takes place at Lexington, Ky. The broadcast is to start at 2:30 via two chains, WJZ-NBC and MBS.

Here are the other items that have a Thanksgiving flavor:

MBS 10:45 a. m. drama, "The First Thanksgiving," as presented at Boston by descendants of the Pilgrims still living in Plymouth, Mass.

Will Interview Santa

WABC-CBS 7:30 p. m. The Vox Poppers celebrating the second Thanksgiving by interviewing Santa Claus and others about Christmas.

WABC-CBS 10:30, Americans at work, football coaches.

America's Town meeting will discuss the announced subject, "What Kind of Peace Can Europe Make?" when it goes into weekly session on WJZ-NBC at 9:30. Four speakers, including John Gunther, are listed.

The Green Hornet, now a WJZ-NBC feature at 8 — also on Saturday — plans a monthly roundtable on law and order as part of the Thursday broadcast.

Burns To Return

Speaking of Thanksgiving, there's Bing Crosby who is thankful that Bob Burns is returning to the WEAF-NBC hour at 10 after weeks and weeks of vacating.

"The Wonderful Day," radio play by a New York newspaperman, Frank Gould, comes to the WABC-CBS Workshop at 10.

Europe: NBC-CHAIN 8 a. m.; WABC-CBS 8 a. m., 6:30, 8:55, 11 p. m.; MBS 9; WEAF-NBC-East 11.

Success of the Marriage Union Depends on Wife

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"We've been married a little over a year," a bride confides to me in a letter brimming over with common sense.

"As a matter of fact, we're terribly happy, but I'm not taking a single chance. I'm working hard to make a go of our marriage. Please don't think that after a year I'm utterly blind to little faults of my husband. He's fond of argument, but I never argue back. And usually he comes out and says he was sorry for laying down the law.

"I do all my own work and expect to do it for the next three month, when I'm going to have in a part-timer because we're happily expecting the stork. Never, since we've been married, have I rushed home at the last minute and thrown a chop or a frankfurter into the frying pan and served it. Dinner is my husband's principal meal and I've made it a rule to see that he gets a good, well-balanced ration.

Bulletin Helpful

"And please let me say that the Miscellaneous Publication 216, "Meat Dishes at Low Cost," recommended in your budget, has been extremely helpful. If I have soup for dinner, I don't have salad, but always dessert, because my husband has a sweet tooth. The house is neat, always, and if he strews his newspapers and leaves cigar and cigarette ashes where he shouldn't leave them, I don't raise Cain with him, though I often feel like it.

"When Bill proposes an outing, I always go to see friends, go to the movies, take an automobile trip, though often I'd prefer to stay at home, especially since the stork is going to favor me.

"Bill's friends are always welcome, even if they do not seem especially attractive to me. About one night a week he has the boys in to play cards. Sometimes they bring their wives and this necessitates supper. But I always see that they have something, even if it's only beer and sandwiches with a cup of good coffee afterwards.

Works Famously

And I flatter Bill. You know that men are just great big boys and they go a long way on a word of appreciation. So far my recipe has worked famously. I shall write to you again next year, when we have another member of the family to consider. And I know, Miss Fairfax, that's the most difficult time of all. A baby takes up a lot of room, and his properties are likely to be all over the house. But I'm going to try my best not to have them underfoot or hanging on the back of chairs. And so no more at present from

HAPPY BRIDE."

This girl has grasped the important fact that happy marriages don't, of course, just happen. They are the joint creation of a husband and wife who are determined that their homes shall be a permanently happy place. In few instances is the husband's share in the great life adventure as important as the wife's. Unless she has a thoroughly impossible husband, it is the woman who has by far the greater chance of making a marriage successful or the reverse.

Will Make Comparisons

If she has been spoiled at home, the quicker she learns to grow up and be reasonable, the better. If she likes to be mussy, lie in bed in the morning, throw something in the frying pan for dinner as she hears her husband's latch-key rattle in the lock, then she must remember that her husband will compare her with the well-regulated home he has possibly left, or the neat, industrious women who hold jobs in the office where he is employed.

Does she have a fancy for proving her own attractiveness by silly flirtations? That's the most dangerous folly a young wife can commit.

We'd like to hear more from brides, who have made a success of their marriages.

"The Authority on Authorities"

ODDS ARE AGAINST YOU

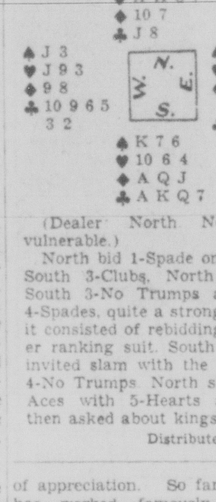
TAKING a certain amount of chance is the heart and soul of the game. But there is a big difference between a winning chance and a losing chance. The first kind, which all sound players like to take, involves a somewhat greater chance to gain than to suffer, whereas the losing chance is one on which the odds are against you.



(Dealer North. North-South vulnerable.)

North bid 1-Spade on this deal. South 3-Clubs, North 3-Hearts, South 3-No Trumps and North 4-Spades, quite a strong bid, since it consisted of rebidding the higher ranking suit. South thereupon invited slam with the Blackwood 4-No Trumps. North showed two Aces with 5-Hearts and South then asked about kings with 5-No Trumps. North showed one with 6-Diamonds and South then bid 7-No Trumps, though he now knew that at least one king was missing.

This slam was made solely because the diamond king was in the proper place. It depended on an exactly even chance, whereas better than an even chance is needed to make a grand slam bid sound since it risks loss of both game and small slam.

In match point duplicate a grand slam may safely be bid on an exactly even chance, but that is another story.

Lions Entertain Ladies Tonight

Keyser Club To Have Turkey Dinner; Alumni Dance Scheduled

Keyser, W. Va., Nov. 29—Julian Patrick, of Luke, West Virginia Pulp and Paper mill chemist, is listed as the principal speaker at a "Fifth Thursday" turkey dinner to be served the Keyser Lions club ladies at the Blue Jay tavern on New Creek drive near here tomorrow evening.

In announcing the dinner, Lions club members explained that it is their custom to hold a ladies' night the last Thursday in each month in which five of the days occur.

Dance Tonight

Members of the Keyser High School Alumni Association said today that their dance tomorrow night in the new high school gymnasium will be "unusually well-attended." Don Atkinson has been retained to furnish music for the affair.

Alumni members yesterday announced that no advance sale of tickets to the semi-formal dance would be made. All admissions will be received at the Mineral street entrance of the gym. The dance is the first affair of the sort to be held in the building since its completion this fall.

Frederick Purgitt was named by Alumni President Joseph Wright as head of the committee on arrangements.

Gibbs-Reynolds

Announcement was made here today of the marriage last Sunday in Baltimore of Mrs. Ruth Mae Reynolds and William E. Gibbs, both of Keyser. Attendant at the ceremony was the bride's daughter, Miss Ethel Reynolds.

The couple will live in Baltimore, where the groom is employed by the Martin Airway Service.

Pythians Elect

Officers were elected last night by Olive Branch Lodge, Knights of Pythias, as follows:

Chancellor commander, Raymond Murray; vice-chancellor, Elmer Hartman; prelate, John O'Leary; master of works, James B. Reese; master of arms, Eugene Kagey; inner guard, Lloyd Robinson and outer guard, Ray Hartman. Frank Mixon was elected trustee for a three-year term.

Romney Man Dies

The death of Clarence McDonald, Romney, at Potomac Valley hospital this morning was reported here today. The body was taken to Romney.

were among 134 neutral ships whose cases were considered by the Contraband Committee in the week ending Nov. 25. There were eighty-five ships, including two American vessels which had been held more than a week, at three United Kingdom contraband control points yesterday.

U. S. Not Advised

(The Neutrality law, which became operative Nov. 4, prohibits American ships from entering ports situated in the combat area around most of Northern Europe and the British Isles. British authorities in Washington have contended, however, that International law gives Britain a clear right to order neutral vessels into British ports for examination.

(State Department authorities said they had not been advised officially of British action in taking the American vessels into the forbidden areas and that therefore international problems which might be involved were not under consideration at present.)

The government tightened its hold on parliamentary procedure, meanwhile, when the House of Commons approved by a vote of 213 to 115 a proposal by Prime Minister Chamberlain to restrict the introduction of bills to government measures. A similar rule was in force during the World war.

In air warfare, the British reported their combat planes brought down a lone German raider off the Northeast Coast of England.

Coastal residents watched the battle off the Northumberland Coast. A lifeboat failed to find any trace of the raider, identified as a German Heinkel plane, which the air ministry said "dived vertically into clouds toward the sea."

Nazi Plane Shot Down

The British said the plane was the twenty-third Nazi raider brought down over or near the British Coast since the Germans raided the Firth of Forth Naval Base Oct. 16.

There was additional aerial activity in three Scottish areas. An air battle was reported over a southwestern Scottish town, a plane identified as German was seen over another and a high-flying squadron was sighted over the Firth of Forth.

The loss of another British ship was announced as the Admiralty put warships on the alert for the start of a new total blockade against Germany next Monday.

The 1,023-ton steamer Rubislaw sank off the Southeast Coast of England yesterday with the loss of thirteen crew members. A minesweeper rescued four survivors, all injured.

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons that British expenditures for the war and other services now were at the rate of about 2,400,000,000 pounds ($9,600,000,000 annually—an increase of sixty-six and two-thirds percent over peacetime outlays.

Holt Opposes Using Relief Money for National Defense

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Opposition to any reduction in relief payments to provide national defense funds was expressed today by Senator Rush D. Holt (D-W Va). He declared "the hungry relief client should not be made to bear the brunt of an increased defense budget."

"No one in congress," he continued in a statement, "has been more outspoken against waste and extravagance in relief than I have been. It should be eliminated. But, there is a place to stop in cutting such expenses."

He said the defense budget should be gone over "with a fine tooth comb to eliminate the pork," and added:

"We don't want any Florida ship canals on the list."

"And after arriving at the necessary sum start reducing expenses in places where they can be properly reduced. The balance should be met by a 'pay as you go system'."

Fritz Kuhn

pendents, was a moderate drinker and had had no previous convictions.

His wife, who attended few sessions of the trial, was not present at the end.

Out of the nearly-deserted courtroom, Kuhn was led by an officer across the bridge of sighs into the musty, oderous tombs, where he must remain until his day of sentencing.

As he was led away, Kuhn's attorney, Peter L. F. Sabbatino, asked the court, "may I reserve the right to make my motions until the day of sentencing?"

"You may," returned the court, then added sternly, "and I shall also continue the question of what action I shall take for your conduct throughout this trial, until that day, or the day after."

The judge previously had warned Sabbatino that he might be held in contempt.

The jury received the case at 1:30 p. m. (EST) after a two-hour and two-minute charge by Judge James G. Wallace in which he repeatedly admonished the twelve men to confine their deliberations to the issues involved and to pay no attention to any political implications.

After five hours, the jury recessed until 8:30 o'clock to go to dinner.

Kuhn was charged with wrongfully spending $717 of bund funds to move the furniture of Mrs. Florence Camp, his erstwhile "heavensent golden angel," from Los Angeles to Cleveland to New York, and with the larceny of $500 he claims he paid to James D. C. Murray, an attorney, for legal services to the Bund.

The state also charges Kuhn falsified Bund records to indicate payment of the money to Murray, who denied he received it.

A last-minute motion for a mistrial by Defense Attorney Peter L. F. Sabbatino on the ground that the prosecution summary distorted the facts was rejected.

In his charge to the jury, Judge Wallace instructed that "the defendant is not on trial for any political or social views he may have. You can't convict him to get rid of him because you consider him a threat to civil liberties."

Originally, Kuhn was charged in ten counts with the theft of $5,641, but half were dismissed after an accountant for District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey had admitted errors in fixing the amount.

Although Kuhn—married and the father of two children—asserted he had only been "very very friendly" with Mrs. Camp, a blonde Hollywood divorcee, she insisted he had proposed marriage to her, and the state introduced three love letters the bundsfuehrer wrote her.

Kuhn acknowledged he had used bund funds to transport Mrs. Camp's furniture about the country, but denied he ever stole "a single cent" of the organization's money.

Student's Hands Blown Off in Explosion

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP)—A homemade bomb exploded in the Harrison Technical high school yard today and blew off the hands of Alex Kryston, 18, at the wrists.

The blast also crushed his abdomen. No others were hurt.

Representative

for its extension for another year which Dies already has introduced.

"It has been the work of our committee for these past eighteen months," Dies said, "to tear the mask from organizations which have been set up to serve the interests of foreign principals. x x x

"It is a shameful situation to find the agents of Stalin in control of certain labor unions, some so-called liberal organizations, and holding key positions in our government."

Dies also urged that "organized labor, for its own sake and for the sake of the whole American economy, turn out the Red demagogues who are trying to exploit its hard-won achievements in the interests of the foreign commissariat of Moscow."

Cleveland Relief

gle persons and childless couples not actually ill—off the rolls. This made the city direct relief total 45,000.

The situation remained tense at the district stations, where police and firemen stood guard, out of general sight. Many clients, including women, were profane in their demands. An angry man tossed bricks through two windows at one station.

A combination Republican-Democratic party existed in the early days of the United States and elected four presidents.

Sally Rand Declines Offer To Be House Mother at Fraternity

Richmond, Va., Nov. 29 (AP)—Fan dancer Sally Rand declined with poetic thanks today the offer of the University of Richmond Chapter of Kappa Sigma Fraternity to be its new house mother.

The Greeks sent a rhymed request to Miss Rand that they had to have a new house mother and they'd rather have her than any other.

From Los Angeles the dancer telegraphed her appreciation for the rescue offer. But, she said:

"I must still my career pursue
So I can't be mother to you, nor you.
For nothing's changed, its the old nude deal

Grace Baptist Postpones Opening of Study Course

The initial session of a mission study course at Grace Baptist church, originally scheduled for tomorrow night, has been postponed until Monday, Dec. 11, at 6:30 p. m., according to the Rev. W. Randolph Keefe Jr., pastor.

The course, to be held under the auspices f the Woman's Missionary Society, will use as a text "Constraining Love." It will be conducted by Mrs. W. P. Copeland.

An Obliging Fellow

Meridian, Miss., Nov. 29 (AP)—Monday night someone stole George Hall's Thanksgiving turkey. Yesterday hall ran an advertisement offering to buy cranberries for the thief.

"You may," returned the court, then added sternly, "and I shall also continue the question of what action I shall take for your conduct throughout this trial, until that day, or the day after."

The judge previously had warned Sabbatino that he might be held in contempt.

The jury received the case at 1:30 p. m. (EST) after a two-hour and two-minute charge by Judge James G. Wallace in which he repeatedly admonished the twelve men to confine their deliberations to the issues involved and to pay no attention to any political implications.

After five hours, the jury recessed until 8:30 o'clock to go to dinner.

Kuhn was charged with wrongfully spending $717 of bund funds to move the furniture of Mrs. Florence Camp, his erstwhile "heavensent golden angel," from Los Angeles to Cleveland to New York, and with the larceny of $500 he claims he paid to James D. C. Murray, an attorney, for legal services to the Bund.

The state also charges Kuhn falsified Bund records to indicate payment of the money to Murray, who denied he received it.

A last-minute motion for a mistrial by Defense Attorney Peter L. F. Sabbatino on the ground that the prosecution summary distorted the facts was rejected.

In his charge to the jury, Judge Wallace instructed that "the defendant is not on trial for any political or social views he may have. You can't convict him to get rid of him because you consider him a threat to civil liberties."

Originally, Kuhn was charged in ten counts with the theft of $5,641 but half were dismissed after an accountant for District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey had admitted errors in fixing the amount.

Although Kuhn—married and the father of two children—asserted he had only been "very very friendly" with Mrs. Camp, a blonde Hollywood divorcee, she insisted he had proposed marriage to her, and the state introduced three love letters the bundsfuehrer wrote her.

Kuhn acknowledged he had used bund funds to transport Mrs. Camp's furniture about the country, but denied he ever stole "a single cent" of the organization's money.

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP)—A homemade bomb exploded in the Harrison Technical high school yard today and blew off the hands of Alex Kryston, 18, at the wrists.

The blast also crushed his abdomen. No others were hurt.

Principal John MacLear said the youth, a senior and an amateur chemist, could not have obtained explosives for the bomb at school.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 29 (AP)—Fan dancer Sally Rand declined with poetic thanks today the offer of the University of Richmond Chapter of Kappa Sigma Fraternity to be its new house mother.

The Greeks sent a rhymed request to Miss Rand that they had to have a new house mother and they'd rather have her than any other.

From Los Angeles the dancer telegraphed her appreciation for the rescue offer. But, she said:

"I must still my career pursue
So I can't be mother to you, nor you.
For nothing's changed, its the old nude deal

Children Reared by Wolves? Sure— But Scientist Finds Not One Tarzan

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
AP Feature Service Writer

Denver — After years spent studying historical records of the "wolf" children and "wild" men of history, Dr. Robert M. Zingg, Denver University, has yet to find a real life Tarzan.

Tarzan of fiction, raised by the apes, became a superman. Romulus and Remus, suckled by a wolf were mythical founders of Rome.

"But apparently that just doesn't happen in nature," says Dr. Zingg, who is associate professor of anthropology.

Doesn't Work Out

"There are 30 cases recorded in world history of children being suckled and raised by wolf mothers, baboons, pigs and other animals; or of children raised in absolute isolation without human contact.

IN THE MOVIES, Maureen O'Sullivan, as Tarzan's tree-top mate, looks like this.

"From these we tentatively have concluded:

"1 Human personality is awakened only through association with other human beings. Unless an infant, especially during the first year of life, has contact with other human beings he becomes little better than a wild animal.

"2. In real life, the Tarzans fail to become super human beings; on the contrary, inadequate diet dooms them to physical inferiority; failure of the human consciousness to unfold limits them, mentally, to the animal level."

The most complete case history of a child with an animal foster-mother is that of the wolf girls of Midnapore, India. The facts are vouched for by people of character, including the Rev. J. A. L. Singh, Midnapore missionary, who rescued the girls. Dr. Zingg is about to publish Mr. Singh's diary on the case.

Two and Two

"The natives in a remote section of the northwest provinces told the Rev. Singh of a family of wolves, living in a huge ant pile (They are as big as a house in India) with two creatures that appeared to be half animal, half human," says Dr. Zingg.

"They dug into the mound and discovered the wolf den in which were four forms.

IN REAL LIFE, the Rev. J. A. L. Singh, Indian missionary, found and photographed this wolf-reared girl, Mamala. This is the way she ate after he rescued here.

"Two of the creatures were wolf pups; two were children, both girls, one about 1¼ years old, the other about eight.

"The Rev. Singh took them to his orphanage at Midnapore and attempted to wean them from their animal habits. The younger girl became known as Amala; the older as Kamala.

"At first they ate nothing but raw meat. Loin cloths were sewed upon them but they tore them away. They walked and ran on all fours. They gnawed on bones, holding them on the ground with one hand, in dog fashion.

"Gradually their friendship of the younger child was stirred by Mrs. Singh through the medium most successfully employed in winning the friendship of animals — by feeding her.

Raw Meat Diet

"This younger child aided in teaching the older one but unfortunately before this had progressed very far the younger child died.

"The older child's training received a severe setback and although she lived for nine years under the care of the Singhs she only learned about 40 words and never came in full command of her human faculties.

"To the end, whenever she wanted to move quickly she ran by getting down on all fours and could outrace other human beings."

Dr. Zingg says the record in this case is similar to that of all the others. After being rescued, the children recovered in greater or lesser degree, but never were completely human.

One of the most recent cases is that of Lucas, the baboon - child of Johannesburg, Africa. Lucas rescued by the police in about 1920 from baboons that apparently had raised him, is still living and is employed on an African farm.

Dr. Zingg has corresponded with Dr. Raymond Dart, head of the medical school at Johannesburg, who investigated that case.

Lives With Baboons

"Mounted police one day chased a band of baboons," says Dr. Zingg. "One baboon was much slower than the rest and this aroused the interest of the officers who decided to capture the creature. They were amazed to discover he was a human being.

"They took him to civilization and learned that a native woman had been working in a corn field, some years before, and baboons ran off with her child.

"Apparently for years then, through childhood, Lucas had been raised by this baboon troop.

"He finally learned to talk but about the only thing he recalls of his life with the baboons is that he ate ostrich eggs and crickets, as they did."

There has been scientific controversy over the possibility that children have been raised by animals. But, Dr. Zingg says, there is competent evidence to support the reports concerning the recent Johannesburg and Midnapore cases.

Children Reared by Wolves? Sure— But Scientist Finds Not One Tarzan

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
AP Feature Service Writer

Denver — After years spent studying historical records of the "wolf" children and "wild" men of history, Dr. Robert M. Zingg, Denver University, has yet to find a real life Tarzan.

Tarzan of fiction, raised by the apes, became a superman. Romulus and Remus, suckled by a wolf were mythical founders of Rome.

Doesn't Work Out

"There are 30 cases recorded in world history of children being suckled and raised by wolf mothers, baboons, pigs and other animals; or of children raised in absolute isolation without human contact.

IN THE MOVIES, Maureen O'Sullivan, as Tarzan's tree-top mate, looks like this.

"From these we tentatively have concluded:

"1. Human personality is awakened only through association with other human beings. Unless an infant, especially during the first year of life, has contact with other human beings he becomes little better than a wild animal.

"2. In real life, the Tarzans fail to become super human beings; on the contrary, inadequate diet dooms them to physical inferiority; failure of the human consciousness to unfold limits them, mentally, to the animal level."

The most complete case history of a child with an animal foster-mother is that of the wolf girls of Midnapore, India. The facts are vouched for by people of character, including the Rev. J. A. L. Singh, Midnapore missionary, who rescued the girls. Dr. Zingg is about to publish Mr. Singh's diary on the case.

Two and Two

"The natives in a remote section of the northwest provinces told the Rev. Singh of a family of wolves, living in a huge ant pile (They are as big as a house in India) with two creatures that appeared to be half animal, half human," says Dr. Zingg.

"They dug into the mound and discovered the wolf den in which were four forms.

IN REAL LIFE, the Rev. J. A. L. Singh, Indian missionary, found and photographed this wolf-reared girl, Mamala. This is the way she ate after he rescued here.

"Two of the creatures were wolf pups; two were children, both girls, one about 1½ years old, the other about eight.

"The Rev. Singh took them to his orphanage at Midnapore and attempted to wean them from their animal habits. The younger girl became known as Amala; the older as Kamala.

"At first they ate nothing but raw meat. Loin cloths were sewed upon them but they tore them away. They walked and ran on all fours. They gnawed on bones, holding them on the ground with one hand, in dog fashion.

"Gradually their friendship of the younger child was stirred by Mrs. Singh through the medium most successfully employed in winning the friendship of animals — by feeding her.

Raw Meat Diet

"This younger child aided in teaching the older one but unfortunately before this had progressed very far the younger child died.

"The older child's training received a severe setback and although she lived for nine years under the care of the Singhs she only learned about 40 words and never came in full command of her human faculties.

"To the end, whenever she wanted to move quickly she ran by getting down on all fours and could outrace other human beings."

Dr. Zingg says the record in this case is similar to that of all the others. After being rescued, the children recovered in greater or lesser degree, but never were completely human.

One of the most recent cases is that of Lucas, the baboon - child of Johannesburg, Africa. Lucas rescued by the police in about 1920 from baboons that apparently had raised him, is still living and is employed on an African farm.

Dr. Zingg has corresponded with Dr. Raymond Dart, head of the medical school at Johannesburg, who investigated that case.

Lives With Baboons

"Mounted police one day chased a band of baboons," says Dr. Zingg. "One baboon was much slower than the rest and this aroused the interest of the officers who decided to capture the creature. They were amazed to discover he was a human being.

"They took him to civilization and learned that a native woman had been working in a corn field, some years before, and baboons ran off with her child.

"Apparently for years then, through childhood, Lucas had been raised by this baboon troop.

"He finally learned to talk but about the only thing he recalls of his life with the baboons is that he ate ostrich eggs and crickets, as they did."

There has been scientific controversy over the possibility that children have been raised by animals. But, Dr. Zingg says, there is competent evidence to support the reports concerning the recent Johannesburg and Midnapore cases.

Simple First Aid Treatment Should Be Known by All

Clean Bandage and Antiseptic Are Needful Requirements

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I am asked by a reader to write an article or two on first aid. I am very glad to do this, although it is rather too large a subject for the one or two articles that I can devote to it.

Roughly, first aid can be divided, as all medical practice is divided, into, first, surgical and, second, medical and obstetrical emergencies.

Surgical emergencies consist, first, of the treatment of open wounds, and, second, accidents in which no break in the skin occurs.

The first aid treatment of a simple wound should be known to all laymen, and I think by this time is known to all laymen. It consists in covering the wound and making pressure with a sterile dressing. If no sterile dressing is available, a newly-laundered handkerchief, towel or napkin is sterile enough for all practical purposes.

Simple cuts and abrasions in the home should have an antiseptic such as tincture of iodine or mercurochrome dabbed on the open surface before the sterile dressing is applied.

Also in Automobile

Incidentally, we are always advised to put first aid equipment in the bathroom closet, but we seldom think of equipping the automobile with a first aid kit of sterile bandages, adhesive and antiseptics for such simple cases as I have mentioned.

The first aid treatment of hemorrhage is known to all Boy Scouts and they will tell you quite correctly that there are two kinds of hemorrhage, venous and arterial. The arterial hemorrhage spurts blood and requires a tourniquet or constriction above the point of hemorrhage. The venous hemorrhage is oozy and requires merely firm pressure with gauze bandage or towel.

In the absence of a torniquet, the hand wrapped around an arm or pressure against an artery of the neck or thigh will act as a tourniquet until help comes.

Sounds Simple

This all sounds very simple, but in actual practice surgeons themselves cannot always tell the difference between venous and arterial hemorrhage. But if the diagnosis is puzzling, mere pressure, if firm enough, will control any kind of hemorrhage.

In accidents which do not involve open wounds, probably the best piece of advice that can be given the layman is to do as little as possible. He especially should not move the patient until professional aid can be procured. A great example of this was the famous English surgeon, Percival Pott, who suffered what has come to be known as "Pott's fracture" after being thrown from a horse on a wintry London street. He would not let anybody touch him for two hours, not until some porters with a shutter had arrived so that he could be conducted home properly.

I saw a harrowing result of meddlesome action on the part of bystanders this summer when a boy fell from a tree. Someone picked him up suddenly, allowing his head to hang down, a maneuver which fractured his backbone.

Questions and Answers

G. A.: "Would like to know how grapefruit juice is for diabetis. You mention oranges and lemons, but not grapefruit."

Answer—Grapefruit can be used the same as oranges in the same quantity.

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—Joseph J. Mascuch, president of the Breeze Corporations, Newark, N. J., airplane equipment manufacturers, was convicted yesterday of having perjured himself in an investigation of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The federal jury's verdict made him liable to maximum penalties of ten years in prison and $4,000 in fines. Sentence will be imposed tomorrow afternoon.

Mascuch was accused by the government specifically of having falsely stated, during an SEC inquiry dealing with trading in Breeze stock, that he owned only about 80,000 shares, whereas, the commission contended, he had actual control of an additional 21,000 shares which had been nominally placed in "dummy" hands.

Agricultural Dept. Sets Up Program

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Forseeing little, if any, expansion in foreign demand for American agricultural products as a result of the war, the Agriculture Department today set up a farm program for 1940 having a production goal about equal to that of the past season.

The program establishes a total planting goal of between 270,000,000 and 285,000,000 acres for the so-called "soil depleting" crops, which include wheat, corn, other grains, cotton, tobacco, rice, potatoes and commercial vegetables.

Existing surpluses in the major crops, the department said, appeared to be sufficient to supply any reasonable expansion in domestic and foreign requirements without increasing planting operations.

The 1940 farm goal compares with an average of 308,000,000 acres planted to the major crops in the 1928-32 period, when American agriculture was operating at new peak capacity.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.

NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.

ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.

DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

FOR NEARLY a fortnight Fabienne had been in Maryland. It was the way it always was when she was there. Long, cool, sweet sleep. Bright mornings, Molly fussing over her, brushing her corn-silk hair, lovingly caring for her clothes. Dance frocks in the scented closet. Uncle Mark and Aunt Edna waiting up for her whatever hour she came in. Cookies and milk at three o'clock in the morning in front of the fire in the library or in Uncle Mark's study. Gossip about the party.

The dances. The same faces. The high-ceilinged rooms and the colored boys playing waltzes back of the potted palms. Miss Kate and Miss Viola Lee in their lavendar laces and painted shawls. The Gosling girls still beau snatching. The elderly "eligible bachelor" who had courted her mother and was paying the same compliments to her. The laden banquet boards and the rich buffets. The big, pale pink hams and hot breads. The wine cups and steaming toddies. The baked oysters and fried chicken. The tinkling laughter and slurred voices. The social south that never changed. Those were her nights, one after another.

There were the days. The morning rides—hard, fast riding over swept turf, over the first light snow, for now it was December. Rides on fresh mornings that crackled with energy and ended in nothingness.

Back to Nicky's or Jane's or someone else's and a highball before lunch. Lunch that lasted into the afternoon hours. Home to change, or on to someone else's house in riding clothes for cocktails and talk about horses or other people. And beaux, young and old, for, seemingly, no man in her set in that part of the country did any work.

The days and the nights with the sameness and gaiety that Fabienne felt must be forced insomuch as it had never changed, began to pall upon her and restlessness to which she had never before been pray, fell upon her.

She took to prowling the lanes on foot, avoiding the telephone, finding herself in the grip of a deadly ennui.

Sometimes, looking at the sky and noting the shifting light that marked the hour, pictures came to her.

Now it is four o'clock. The children's games are noisy in the west wing of Willoughby house. Her own little class would be rehearsing the play she had directed.

Six o'clock. Another girl would be clearing the desk in the children's clinic. Ellen Chapman, thinking of her evening date with Bill Mallory, everywhere at once. Busy, happy, working.

But Ellen Chapman wouldn't be called for in a Rolls towncar. El' wouldn't have a new white and silver gown to wear at a dance in a ballroom that had seen three presidents dancing there.

Fabienne was putting on the white and silver gown when Molly brought up the evening mail.

She pulled the dress over her head and, without waiting to hook it, sat on one of Fabienne de Courcy's little spindle-legged chairs and ran through the pile of letters.

There was one from Paris. That would be from Gertrude.

Fabienne slit the tissue-thin envelope. Her mother's neat, small handwriting covered four sheets.

". . . I don't think I shall come over for Christmas, after all," Gertrude wrote. "I've been invited to Nice with some amusing people. And it isn't as if you were all children and needed me to have a happy holiday. The twins"—the twins had been put in school in Switzerland—"are reluctant to miss the winter sports and wish to stay on at school. Dick writes me that he is going to fly to California for the holidays. Do you think he is interested in the Haviland girl? I do hope so. Her family, you know, own most of the western railroads. Dick has got to make a good marriage now that he hasn't any money outside of the pitiful income from his trust fund. I do worry about my children."

There were the morning rides, hard and fast.

Fabienne sniffed indelicately and continued her reading:

"I'm so happy that you have decided to give up that odious work. I can't tell you how you hurt me doing that, Fabienne; but I forgive you now and knew that you'd come to your senses. I should have insisted on your coming to Paris with me, but I know that you are happier in Maryland. And I also know, whether you realize it yet or not, that you are only happy with Nicky. You've practically spent your lives together, darling, and that counts for a great deal. I've often thought that the reason why my two marriages were so disastrous was that I didn't know either of my husbands long enough before we were married. I always married for love that was nothing more than infatuation. I'm afraid that's what you're looking for. But it is so wrong—when you have dear, devoted Nicky already waiting for you."

Fabienne thrust the letter aside and screamed, "Molly! Hook this thing up. I'm late enough now."

Molly said, "You ain't read all your letters, Miss Fabienne."

"I've read enough. Don't forget my carriage boots. It's cold tonight."

Molly held a long wrap for her to slip into and Fabienne looked at herself a long time in the pier glass. Then she unpinned the sheaf of white camellias from her shoulder and threw them on the bed beside the letters with a gesture of distaste and went out of the room and down to dear, devoted Nicky who was waiting for her with the inevitable highball glass in his hand.

The flowers were gone and the bed neatly turned down when she returned to her room much later that night.

The letters she had not opened were on the bed table beside the bowl of fruit Molly had placed there.

There was a long white envelope with a New York postmark and her name typed on it. Curious, she slit it and pulled out three large sheets of paper. The first page contained a typewritten note from Ellen. It was the first Ellen had sent her.

The other pages contained signatures scrawled in school children's writing.

Fabienne's eyes lighted as she read rapidly:

"Dear Fabienne," Ellen wrote, "We hope this letter will not be an interruption. It is an invitation from all of us, most earnestly urged by those whose names you will find here. The play—your play—as you know, is to be presented on Saturday afternoon and it is our hope (a forlorn one, perhaps) that you can be our guest of honor. I thought perhaps you might like to send a telegram. It would mean so much to the children. Not as much, of course, s your presence, but I do understand and hope you are having a glorious time. We all miss you very much, and I miss you particularly. If you are ever to be in New York, I hope that you will be my guest. So much has happened at Willoughby house that I know you'd like to hear about! Affectionately, Ellen."

Fabienne read the names written in pencil: Wolesjcki, Tomassino, Kelly, Wong, Geradi, Svenson. She could see them all. Little red heads, tow heads, black heads. Little slavic, latin and oriental faces. The darlings!

What a softie she was to feel that way! How coolly amused Nicky would be.

At breakfast she told Molly about the sequin jacket. Then she got out Edna's old roadster and drove down to the telegraph office in the village. On the way she composed the telegram, but the words fled from her when she went to put them on paper. And she found herself writing:

Simple First Aid Treatment Should Be Known by All

Clean Bandage and Antiseptic Are Needful Requirements

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I am asked by a reader to write an article or two on first aid. I am very glad to do this, although it is rather too large a subject for the one or two articles that I can devote to it.

Roughly, first aid can be divided, as all medical practice is divided, into, first, surgical and, second, medical and obstetrical emergencies.

Surgical emergencies consist, first, of the treatment of open wounds, and, second, accidents in which no break in the skin occurs.

The first aid treatment of a simple wound should be known to all laymen, and I think by this time is known to all laymen. It consists in covering the wound and making pressure with a sterile dressing. If no sterile dressing is available, a newly-laundered handkerchief, towel or napkin is sterile enough for all practical purposes.

Simple cuts and abrasions in the home should have an antiseptic such as tincture of iodine or mercurochrome dabbed on the open surface before the sterile dressing is applied.

Also in Automobile

Incidentally, we are always advised to put first aid equipment in the bathroom closet, but we seldom think of equipping the automobile with a first aid kit of sterile bandages, adhesive and antiseptics for such simple cases as I have mentioned.

The first aid treatment of hemorrhage is known to all Boy Scouts and they will tell you quite correctly that there are two kinds of hemorrhage, venous and arterial. The arterial hemorrhage spurts blood and requires a tourniquet or constriction above the point of hemorrhage. The venous hemorrhage is oozy and requires merely firm pressure with gauze bandage or towel.

In the absence of a torniquet, the hand wrapped around an arm or pressure against an artery of the neck or thigh will act as a tourniquet until help comes.

Sounds Simple

This all sounds very simple, but in actual practice surgeons themselves cannot always tell the difference between venous and arterial hemorrhage. But if the diagnosis is puzzling, mere pressure, if firm enough, will control any kind of hemorrhage.

In accidents which do not involve open wounds, probably the best piece of advice that can be given the layman is to do as little as possible. He especially should not move the patient until professional aid can be procured. A great example of this was the famous English surgeon, Percival Pott, who suffered what has come to be known as "Pott's fracture" after being thrown from a horse on a wintry London street. He would not let anybody touch him for two hours, not until some porters with a shutter had arrived so that he could be conducted home properly.

I saw a harrowing result of meddlesome action on the part of bystanders this summer when a boy fell from a tree. Someone picked him up suddenly, allowing his head to hang down, a maneuver which fractured his backbone.

Questions and Answers

G. A.: "Would like to know how grapefruit juice is for diabetis. You mention oranges and lemons, but not grapefruit."

Joseph J. Mascuch Guilty of Prejury

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—Joseph J. Mascuch, president of the Breeze Corporations, Newark, N. J., airplane equipment manufacturers, was convicted yesterday of having perjured himself in an investigation of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The federal jury's verdict made him liable to maximum penalties of ten years in prison and $4,000 in fines. Sentence will be imposed tomorrow afternoon.

Mascuch was accused by the government specifically of having falsely stated, during an SEC inquiry dealing with trading in Breeze stock, that he owned only about 80,000 shares, whereas, the commission contended, he had actual control of an additional 21,000 shares which had been nominally placed in "dummy" hands.

Agricultural Dept. Sets Up Program

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Forseeing little, if any, expansion in foreign demand for American agricultural products as a result of the war, the Agriculture Department today set up a farm program for 1940 having a production goal about equal to that of the past season.

The program establishes a total planting goal of between 270,000,000 and 285,000,000 acres for the so-called "soil depleting" crops, which include wheat, corn, other grains, cotton, tobacco, rice, potatoes and commercial vegetables.

Existing surpluses in the major crops, the department said, appeared to be sufficient to supply any reasonable expansion in domestic and foreign requirements without increasing planting operations.

The 1940 farm goal compares with an average of 308,000,000 acres planted to the major crops in the 1928-32 period, when American agriculture was operating at new peak capacity.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

THE CHARACTERS:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

FOR NEARLY a fortnight Fabienne had been in Maryland. It was the way it always was when she was there. Long, cool, sweet sleep. Bright mornings, Molly fussing over her, brushing her corn-silk hair, lovingly caring for her clothes. Dance frocks in the scented closet. Uncle Mark and Aunt Edna waiting up for her whatever hour she came in. Cookies and milk at three o'clock in the morning in front of the fire in the library or in Uncle Mark's study. Gossip about the party.

The dances. The same faces. The high-ceilinged rooms and the colored boys playing waltzes back of the potted palms. Miss Kate and Miss Viola Lee in their lavendar laces and painted shawls. The Gosling girls still beau snatching. The elderly "eligible bachelor" who had courted her mother and was paying the same compliments to her. The laden banquet boards and the rich buffets. The big, pale pink hams and hot breads. The wine cups and steaming toddies. The baked oysters and fried chicken. The tinkling laughter and slurred voices. The social south that never changed. Those were her nights, one after another.

There were the days. The morning rides—hard, fast riding over swept turf, over the first light snow, for now it was December. Rides on fresh mornings that crackled with energy and ended in nothingness.

Back to Nicky's or Jane's or someone else's and a highball before lunch. Lunch that lasted into the afternoon hours. Home to change, or on to someone else's house in riding clothes for cocktails and talk about horses or other people. And beaux, young and old, for, seemingly, no man in her set in that part of the country did any work.

The days and the nights with the sameness and gaiety that Fabienne felt must be forced insomuch as it had never changed, began to pall upon her and restlessness to which she had never before been prey, fell upon her.

She took to prowling the lanes on foot, avoiding the telephone, finding herself in the grip of a deadly ennui.

Sometimes, looking at the sky and noting the shifting light that marked the hour, pictures came to her.

Now it is four o'clock. The children's games are noisy in the west wing of Willoughby house. Her own little class would be rehearsing the play she had directed.

Six o'clock. Another girl would be clearing the desk in the children's clinic. Ellen Chapman, thinking of her evening date with Bill Mallory, everywhere at once. Busy, happy, working.

But Ellen Chapman wouldn't be called for in a Rolls towncar. El' wouldn't have a new white and silver gown to wear at a dance in a ballroom that had seen three presidents dancing there.

Fabienne was putting on the white and silver gown when Molly brought up the evening mail.

She pulled the dress over her head and, without waiting to hook it, sat on one of Fabienne de Courcy's little spindle-legged chairs and ran through the pile of letters.

There was one from Paris. That would be from Gertrude.

Fabienne slit the tissue-thin envelope. Her mother's neat, small handwriting covered four sheets.

". . . I don't think I shall come over for Christmas, after all," Gertrude wrote. "I've been invited to Nice with some amusing people. And it isn't as if you were all children and needed me to have a happy holiday. The twins"—the twins had been put in school in Switzerland—"are reluctant to miss the winter sports and wish to stay on at school. Dick writes me that he is going to fly to California for the holidays. Do you think he is interested in the Haviland girl? I do hope so. Her family, you know, own most of the western railroads. Dick has got to make a good marriage now that he hasn't any money outside of the pitiful income from his trust fund. I do worry about my children."

There were the morning rides, hard and fast.

Fabienne sniffed indelicately and continued her reading:

"I'm so happy that you have decided to give up that odious work. I can't tell you how you hurt me doing that, Fabienne; but I forgive you now and knew that you'd come to your senses. I should have insisted on your coming to Paris with me, but I know that you are happier in Maryland. And I also know, whether you realize it yet or not, that you are only happy with Nicky. You've practically spent your lives together, darling, and that counts for a great deal. I've often thought that the reason why my two marriages were so disastrous was that I didn't know either of my husbands long enough before we were married. I always married for love that was nothing more than infatuation. I'm afraid that's what you're looking for. But it is so wrong—when you have dear, devoted Nicky already waiting for you."

Fabienne thrust the letter aside and screamed, "Molly! Hook this thing up. I'm late enough now."

Molly said, "You ain't read all your letters, Miss Fabienne."

"I've read enough. Don't forget my carriage boots. It's cold tonight."

Molly held a long wrap for her to slip into and Fabienne looked at herself a long time in the pier glass. Then she unpinned the sheaf of white camellias from her shoulder and threw them on the bed beside the letters with a gesture of distaste and went out of the room and down to dear, devoted Nicky who was waiting for her with the inevitable highball glass in his hand.

The flowers were gone and the bed neatly turned down when she returned to her room much later that night.

The letters she had not opened were on the bed table beside the bowl of fruit Molly had placed there.

There was a long white envelope with a New York postmark and her name typed on it. Curious, she slit it and pulled out three large sheets of paper. The first page contained a typewritten note from Ellen. It was the first Ellen had sent her.

The other pages contained signatures scrawled in school children's writing.

Fabienne's eyes lighted as she read rapidly:

"Dear Fabienne," Ellen wrote, "We hope this letter will not be an interruption. It is an invitation from all of us, most earnestly urged by those whose names you will find here. The play—your play—as you know, is to be presented on Saturday afternoon and it is our hope (a forlorn one, perhaps) that you can be our guest of honor. I thought perhaps you might like to send a telegram. It would mean so much to the children. Not as much, of course, as your presence, but I do understand and hope you are having a glorious time. We all miss you very much, and I miss you particularly. If you are ever to be in New York, I hope that you will be my guest. So much has happened at Willoughby house that I know you'd like to hear about! Affectionately, Ellen."

Fabienne read the names written in pencil: Wolesjcki, Tomassino, Kelly, Wong, Geradi, Svenson. She could see them all. Little red heads, tow heads, black heads. Little slavic, latin and oriental faces. The darlings!

What a softie she was to feel that way! How coolly amused Nicky would be.

Saturday was the day of the play. Saturday was also the day the Hendersons were giving their house warming. She must have Molly take in the seams of her sequin jacket. It was a little too loose and she meant to look her smartest for that party.

There were two things she must do that next morning! Speak to Molly about the jacket and send a nice, long telegram to Ellen for the children, wishing them success, telling them she wished she could be with them..

At breakfast she told Molly about the sequin jacket. Then she got out Edna's old roadster and drove down to the telegraph office in the village. On the way she composed the telegram, but the words fled from her when she went to put them on paper. And she found herself writing:

Dictatorship Is Not Proper for School Laggard

Child Lags All the More When Commands Are Given

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Dictatorship has no place in the psychology of cultivating interest in the school laggard. The more you command this child to be interested or chastise him for not being interested, the more he lags. The following letter illustrates this principle. Similar letters by the score come to me.

"I have a daughter, seven years old, who is a great problem to me," writes a mother. "I know she is a bright child and she catches on quickly to any thing that interests her. In spite of this, she is doing very poorly in school, seeming to take almost no interest in her school work. Nothing I have been able to do has changed her attitude. Her low marks and poor scholarship are not the result of a determination to be bad; she just refuses to take school seriously.

Has Tried Reasoning

"When I read with her at home she may read well for a few minutes while her attention is on the book; then her attention will suddenly be somewhere else, or a dozen of other places. She will be playing with this or that near her, and not be knowing words which a minute before she knew perfectly well.

"Sometimes it works to reason with her by telling her the advantages of reading, and that if she does not learn now, she may never learn. Then she may read off a few sentences very well, but the enthusiasm wears off and we are just where we started."

My reply to this mother:

"I can see that you are a very conscientious mother and have been trying very hard to help your daughter to succeed at school. But, without knowing it, you are violating the basic principles of psychology. You have assumed that you can make this child interested in her lesson by commanding her to be interested, just as you would command her to shut the door or pick up a stick. This just can't be done. On the contrary, the longer you work in this direction, the more you keep your child from being interested, the more barriers you build to her school progress, and the more you contribute to her continued failure.

"Interest is a very personal and private matter. Primarily, it is a feeling. After all, your feeling is your feeling and my feeling is my feeling; so also is your child's feeling her own feeling, and her interests are her own.

Wants to Master It

"Now a child at his lesson is interested if this lesson appeals to him, and especially if he finds he can master it. Then he gets the feeling of achievement, success, victory, making him feel worthwhile and important.

"But if we hound him as he tries to learn, magnifying his sense of inferiority in the meanwhile, and picturing the ignominy of his continued failure, how can he get a feeling of interest? Well, he just can't; at least, he doesn't, as you have found.

"Perhaps your child has visual difficulty. Surely what you have expected her to read to you has been too hard. When you find materials easy enough and appealing enough to her, she won't be able to keep from manifesting an interest. Try her on books no harder than a primer, with attractive illustrations; also on an easy children's magazine.

"Say nothing to her of her failure, and please don't picture future failures to her. Play up her successes and help her look toward victories of tomorrow."

$10,000,000 BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Frances Dodge Johnson

The former Frances Dodge, Detroit auto heiress, is $10,000,000 richer today. Celebrating her twenty-fifth birthday, she received full control of the trust fund bequeathed by her father. She is married to James B. Johnson, Jr., of New York City.

Prayer Comes True After Long Time

Mayfield, Ky. (AP)—"The thing I've prayed for most has come true," said Mrs. Pearl Holland when reunited recently with her son, Carl Benjamin Parker, 24, of Akron, O.

The mother and son had not seen or heard from each other for twenty two years. Through mutual acquaintances, Parker located two brothers of his mother in this vicinity, then found his mother. Mrs. Holland and her first husband were separated in 1917, the husband taking their son, then two years old.

Canaries, sparrows, chickens and doves may live as long as twenty years.

Dictatorship Is Not Proper for School Laggard

Child Lags All the More When Commands Are Given

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Dictatorship has no place in the psychology of cultivating interest in the school laggard. The more you command this child to be interested or chastise him for not being interested, the more he lags. The following letter illustrates this principle. Similar letters by the score come to me.

"I have a daughter, seven years old, who is a great problem to me," writes a mother. "I know she is a bright child and she catches on quickly to any thing that interests her. In spite of this, she is doing very poorly in school, seeming to take almost no interest in her school work. Nothing I have been able to do has changed her attitude. Her low marks and poor scholarship are not the result of a determination to be bad; she just refuses to take school seriously.

Has Tried Reasoning

"When I read with her at home she may read well for a few minutes while her attention is on the book; then her attention will suddenly be somewhere else, or a dozen of other places. She will be playing with this or that near her, and not be knowing words which a minute before she knew perfectly well.

"Sometimes it works to reason with her by telling her the advantages of reading, and that if she does not learn now, she may never learn. Then she may read off a few sentences very well, but the enthusiasm wears off and we are just where we started."

My reply to this mother:

"I can see that you are a very conscientious mother and have been trying very hard to help your daughter to succeed at school. But, without knowing it, you are violating the basic principles of psychology. You have assumed that you can make this child interested in her lesson by commanding her to be interested, just as you would command her to shut the door or pick up a stick. This just can't be done. On the contrary, the longer you work in this direction, the more you keep your child from being interested, the more barriers you build to her school progress, and the more you contribute to her continued failure.

"Interest is a very personal and private matter. Primarily, it is a feeling. After all, your feeling is your feeling and my feeling is my feeling; so also is your child's feeling her own feeling, and her interests are her own.

Wants to Master It

"Now a child at his lesson is interested if this lesson appeals to him, and especially if he finds he can master it. Then he gets the feeling of achievement, success, victory, making him feel worthwhile and important.

"But if we hound him as he tries to learn, magnifying his sense of inferiority in the meanwhile, and picturing the ignominy of his continued failure, how can he get a feeling of interest? Well, he just can't; at least, he doesn't, as you have found.

"Perhaps your child has visual difficulty. Surely what you have expected her to read to you has been too hard. When you find materials easy enough and appealing enough to her, she won't be able to keep from manifesting an interest. Try her on books no harder than a primer, with attractive illustrations; also on an easy children's magazine.

"Say nothing to her of her failure, and please don't picture future failures to her. Play up her successes and help her look toward victories of tomorrow."

Prayer Comes True After Long Time

Mayfield, Ky. (AP)—"The thing I've prayed for most has come true," said Mrs. Pearl Holland when reunited recently with her son, Carl Benjamin Parker, 24, of Akron, O.

The mother and son had not seen or heard from each other for twenty two years. Through mutual acquaintances, Parker located two brothers of his mother in this vicinity, then found his mother. Mrs. Holland and her first husband were separated in 1917, the husband taking their son, then two years old.

Canaries, sparrows, chickens and doves may live as long as twenty years.

Four Baseball Clubs Fined by Judge Landis

Concealing of Contracts Hit By Commissioner

Denounces Several Clubs for "Evil Practices" in Baseball

Detroit and Brooklyn Fined $500 Each; Dayton and Columbus Hit

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP) — Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, with a vehement denunciation of several clubs for the "evil practices" of concealing player contracts from his office, imposed fines totalling $2,500 today on four teams, including the Detroit Tigers and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Granting free agency and back salary awards to several players, the Commissioner fined Detroit $500; Brooklyn $500; Dayton, O., of the Mid-Atlantic League and a property of the Dodgers, $1,000, and Columbus of the American Association, owned by the St. Louis Cardinals, $500.

From his investigation, Landis said in a lengthy statement, "it appears that clubs are signing players to contracts and term acceptances which are never filed for promulgation x x x" and added that "repeated denunciations of these evil practices having proved unavailing, notice is given all clubs that a fine of not less than $500 will be imposed in all cases where clubs heareafter engage in these practices."

Cardinals Mentioned

The Commissioner, who early in 1938 denounced the St. Louis Cardinals farm system, also mentioned the Cardinals in today's edicts. Pointing out that it is an evasion of rules for one club to authorize another to sign its players, Landis granted free agency to five players of the Duluth, Minn., team, which has a working agreement with the Cardinals.

Detroit was fined after investigation of the case of Charles H. Tefft, signed to a 1939 contract with the Alexandria, La., team, with which Detroit had a working agreement. The contract never was filed, Landis said, yet Tefft subsequently was sent to Hot Springs, Ark., then to Tiffin, O., which latter club released him May 15, 1939.

Krueger Case Cited

George Krueger, Los Angeles, claimed he was shuffled back and forth between Dayton and Paducah, Ky., both clubs having affiliations with Brooklyn, and finally was sent home last July. Landis said no club had been named in the contract given Krueger by Brooklyn and fined Brooklyn and Dayton $500 each for rules violation of the blank contract process and fined Dayton an additional $500 for "falsely dating" Krueger's contract and for filing such falsely dated contract.

Columbus was fined for filing a contract with a false affidavit in the case of Charles Ripple, who was declared a free agent. Landis said Ripple signed a document submitted by Scout Frank Rickey in August, 1936, when Ripple was a fifteen-year-old high school student. The document did not contain a salary affidavit as required by the rules, the Commissioner said. He added that Ripple and his mother testified the document never would have been signed had they known it would end the boy's high school and college eligibility.

Commission Refuses To Grant Dates to Sportsman's Park

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Illinois State Racing Commission refused to grant 1940 racing dates today to Sportsman's Park, whose president, Edward J. O'Hare, was slain in gangland fashion early this month.

The commission pointed out that the death of O'Hare, who was shot to death Nov. 8 as he drove from the half mile track on Chicago's West Side, created vacancies in the office as president, vice president and on the board of directors of the National Jockey Club, which operated Sportsman's Park.

The commission said that "if and when the National Jockey Club files an amendment or a new application for dates a hearing will be given the National Jockey Club."

Cautious Football Seer Judges Rhyming Contest

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

New York, Nov. 29—Before we announce the results of the third annnual Lardner memorial sweepstakes for frustrated shelleys — which has turned the world of poetry upside down—we will direct our trained eye on the few remaining football games on the program this week, Thursday and Saturday.

Naturally, a guy who is about to judge a rhyming contest does not like to lead with his chin. Thus, we will dispense with rhyme for the nonce (which is poetry in itself), and call our shots in pure Addisonian prose. No embittered poet with a losing entry in this contest is going to have a chance at our headquarters with a horsewhip just because his stuff is better than ours.

The Selections, Minus Verbel Trimmings

The sure-fire winners:

Thursday

Auburn over Florida.
Rutgers over Brown.
Tennessee over Kentucky.
North Carolina over Virginia.
Texas A. and M. over Texas.
U. C. L. A. over Washington State.
Alabama over Vanderbilt.
Arkansas over Tulsa.

Saturday

Army over Navy.
Boston College over Holy Cross.
College of the Pacific over Nevada.
Dartmouth over Stanford.
Duquesne over Detroit.
Fordham over N. Y. U.
Georgia Tech over Georgia.
Baylor over Rice.
U. S. C. over Washington.
Southern Methodist over T. C. U.
Tulane over Louisiana State.
West Virginia-George Washington —tie game.

Now for the principal business of the meeting. We announce, more in pity than in anger, that the Lardner annual memorial award for a rhyme for "Tufts" goes to Mr. Sam V. Gunnison, of San Francisco, Calif. The award is $1 in cash or merchandise. Mr. Gunnison specifies cash. That's a mistake, for the merchandise we had in mind is valued by the police (who are now hot on its trail) at $3.75.

The winning rhyme (uncensored) is as follows:

"De toughest players play at Tufts.
Dey stays away from joints and gals.
Dey never lolls on overstuffeds.
Dey're hard on Lardner's rhymes;
eh, pals?"

This contribution is illustrated by the author. A Tufts football player (drawn from life) is shown "lolling," as the author puts it, in his own stark way, upon an overstuffed chair. This makes a liar out of the author's own comment, but, knowing Tufts men as we do, we believe it is safe to say that some of them loll like the dickens.

I can hear the rest of you contestants saying, "Miranda, fetch my horsewhip! Lardner can't discriminate against me like this! That rhyme of Gunnison's is no damn good!"

Granted that Gunnison's rhyme is none too sterling, you should have seen the rest of them. Out of two dozen contributions, his was the only one which managed a semi-legitimate rhyme for Tufts, with or without meter (and the San Franciscan, God bless him, is O. K. metrically). The next best is the work of W. H. Rometsch, of Philadelphia, who says that all his golf balls are "sliced's and roughed's." This is a rhyme for Tufts, all right, but we feel that Mr. Rometsch has pressed a little too hard—harder than the winner.

With indignation, we repudiate such assonances (see dictionary) as "nuts" and "cuffs." We think a Boston contributor is shirking the issue when he substitutes "Medford med." for "Tufts." We believe Pat Barry, of Seattle, former prizewinner, is loafing with "blufts," and we state fearlessly that another former winner, Tom Farley, of Syracuse, is wrong about this one:

"Up in old New Hampshire's wild
Terrain, there stand some rugged, tough ts-
-Uga pines. But watch, my child,
Then fall before the ax of Tufts."

Mr. Farley says there really are such things as "tsuga pines." No dougt he's right, but it makes no difference, because his rhyme is not a rhyme, but an identity. The same thing goes for another suggestion, "candytufts," from Somerville, Mass. Does "loan" rhyme with "lone?" Nope. And neither does "thoughts" or "Tufts" rhyme with "Tufts."

Peel one green wrapper off the roll, Miss Leahy, and send it posthaste to San Francisco.

Coach Bob Neyland Says Team Is in Worst Condition of Season

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 29 (AP) — University of Tennessee's candidates for the Rose Bowl football classic New Year's Day expect their hardest 1939 game tomorrow against their old rival, the University of Kentucky.

Here's how Coach Bob Neyland of Tennessee put it:

"We think it will be just about our toughest game of the year.

"It looks like this will be the type of game in which anything can happen."

The tussle for a battered old beer keg will start at 1:45 p. m., Central Standard Time. Place: Stoll Field. Attendance: 20,000, the capacity of the field as tickets all were sold long ago. Weather forecast: light rain.

Coach Neyland brought his boys, thirty-seven of them, into Lexington early today and in the afternoon there was a light workout. Some were taken on auto rides to see the Bluegrass' fine race horse farms and there was a movie in the evening for additional relaxation.

George Cafego, top-notch quarterback, who has sent chills up and down the spines of rival coaches still had a slight limp from a knee injury suffered in the Citadel game, but he's almost certain to be in there tomorrow. So is Bob Foxx, flashy wingback, just out of the hospital after treatment for a deep cold.

Before leaving Knoxville Neyland sounded his first pessimistic note of the year: "in worst condition of the season."

On the Kentucky side only sophomore fullback Noah Mullins seems to be out of the Wildcat lineup, but even he may start.

That 46 to 0 defeat of last season by Tennessee is a burning spot in Kentucky's memory.

All a Mistake Keltner Says

Milwaukee, Nov. 29, (AP)—Ken Keltner, the Cleveland Indians' young third baseman, said today his claim for unemployment compensation in Ohio started as "a big joke" that became "a mistake" for which he is exceedingly sorry.

"I just made a mistake," Keltner said. "And I didn't realize how bad a mistake it was until now. I didn't need the money and if I'd stopped to think I wouldn't have asked for it.

"We were bowling one night and there was some wise cracking. One of the fellows asked me 'what's the matter; are you broke.' I said, 'yeah, I'm broke.'

"Well, he says, 'why don't you apply for unemployment pay?' And I said 'that's an idea, I guess I will." It was just a gag.

"Just to carry out the gag, I went down to the State Office (in Milwaukee) and asked about it. They told me I was entitled to unemployment pay down in Ohio. I should have dropped the whole business right there, but I wrote to Ohio and asked about it. They wrote back that I didn't have anything coming.

"I wouldn't have had this happen for anything. I just made a mistake, and I know it now. And how!"

Mountaineers Told To Watch Nowaskey

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 29 (AP)—Coach Marshall (Sleepy) Glenn warned the West Virginia Mountaineers today to closely watch Bob Nowaskey, flashy end of George Washington University, in their game here Saturday, reminding them of his spectacular work in their clash last year.

Coach Ray Flaherty of the professional Washington Redskins has rated Nowaskey as one of the best ends of the east.

Clinic For Girl Cage Officials Here Saturday

A basketball clinic for girls who desire to receive training in officiating will be held Saturday from 10 o'clock to 3 o'clock at the Fort Hill girls' gymnasium under the direction of the National Amateur Athletic Federation for Women.

According to Marjorie LaFollette, Fort Hill High girls' coach who has made arrangements for the clinic, at least 28 women and girls are expected to turn out. Each prospective referee must bring equipment consisting of play suit, gym shoes and whistle.

Navy "B" Squad's Mascot Will Go On Varsity Crew

Schnauzer Will Vie with Goat To Jinx Army Mule

By JOHN S. GROVER

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 29. (AP)—It isn't that Navy men are superstitious but the Midshipmen regiment of 2,300 will carry a spare mascot to the Army-Navy game Saturday —Bill VIII, traditional Navy goat, and Melissa, tough schnauzer mascot of the undefeated B team.

Bill VIII is still official Navy mascot. However, they can't deny M'Liss the trip to the big game. Her record as "good joss" for the B squad was perfect and Navy isn't overlooking any chance to defeat the cadets.

The scrappy pooch sparked the Bees to an undefeated season while her more dignified cohort could do no better than lead the varsity to five defeats, one tie, and two early season victories.

B squadders who were promoted to the varsity urged that M'Liss be brought along to shed her voodoo when the going got tough. They cited one game this year when the B squad was trailing. Every substitute patted Melissa before he went on the field. Navy won—of course.

Merely a Loan

The B squad didn't mind lending Melissa for this trip but made it emphatically clear it was only an emergency loan to insure victory.

Melissa is tough, no question about that. Last year she chased a butterfly off the gymnasium roof and tumbled 65 feet to a concrete court. Two weeks later, her ribs still taped and still limping a bit, M'Liss was back on the job dragging her lucky sweat sock.

There's no doubt about her loyalty, either. She had three pups this summer and was a good mother until practice started. Then her pups became orphans. She left 'em cold and joined the Navy.

Navy is still banking on Bill VIII to brew the hex to trounce the cadets. But there's no law against carrying an extra life preserver.

M'Liss hasn't trotted off the field yet with a losing team. Nobody kicks luck like her's in the face.

Petersburg Cagers Face 20-Game Card

Petersburg, W. Va., Nov. 29—A 20-game basketball schedule for the Petersburg High basketball Vikings was announced today by Coach Forrest "Whitey" Kendall.

Home-and-home tussles will be played with Keyser, Romney, Moorefield, Franklin, Circleville, Bayard, Thomas and Parsons, all Potomac Valley Conference foes, while single contests have been arranged with Harpers Ferry, Elk Garden, Central of Lonaconing and Alumni. ## Four Washington Girls Win $1,736 For Strange Man

Play Daily-Double For Him but Fail To Win for Selves

By CLARKE BEACH

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP) — A Texan with a good hunch placed a $2 bet on four girls and two horses today—and won $1,736.30.

He saw the girls in a restaurant this morning and asked them to play the daily double at Bowie for him.

"I never saw you before but you look honest and lucky," he told them when he noticed them studying a scratch sheet. He had a hunch that two long-shots, Shailleen and Rib Roast, were going to win, and asked them to bet his $2 on them for the daily double.

He didn't know the girls' names, but he had given them his name and his address, J. E. McWhorter, the Blackstone Hotel. And in mid-afternoon he got a wire from one of the girls:

"See you 6:30. You clicked plenty."

McWhorter, 42-year old Houston lawyer, waited in his room and figured out that his income tax on the money would be $426.80, since he'd have to pay the 18 per cent rate, just as on inheritances. He never doubted that the girls would show up.

On the dot the girls drove up. Miss Corinne Dulin, Mrs. Edna Phelps, Mrs. Edna Chambers and Mrs. Cora McAllister, all Western Union employes.

"Well, here we are!" shrieked the girls.

"Well, well, well," was all McWhorter and his wife could say amid handshaking and laughter.

"You put the jinx on us!" Miss Dulin complained, for the girls hadn't bet on the daily double for themselves and hadn't cashed but one show ticket all afternoon.

McWhorter gave each of the ladies a $50 bill, then turned over the rest to his wife, who put the roll in her pocketbook.

About the only person in the room then who didn't have a lot of money was McWhorter.

Girls Tell Story

Bowie, Md., Nov. 29 (AP) — Four Washington girls collected a daily double pay-off of $1,736.30 today—for a total stranger.

Here's the story as told by Corinne Dulin, Edna Phelps, Edna Chambers and Cora McAllister, employes of Western Union in Washington:

Enroute to the Bowie race track, they stopped at a lunch counter for a snack. While they talked about racing, a strange man approached them and said:

"I have never seen you before but you look both honest and lucky, so I wish you would play a daily double for me."

On a slip of paper he wrote "Shailleen and Rib Roast" and his name, J. McWhorter, Blackstone hotel, Washington. He didn't bother to get the girls' names.

Wrapping $2 around the note, he said:

"Neither of these horses has a chance and I never win. But if your luck should carry me through, bring the money to the hotel. Bring along your boy friends and we'll have a real party."

The girls bought McWhorter's daily double ticket, but they didn't play either horse. Shailleen won the first race at $37.40 for $2 and Rib Roast the second at $43.80 for $2. McWhorter was one of eight people who won the $1,736.30 double.

Collecting the money, the girls rushed a wire to J. McWhorter, informing him of his luck. At the end of the third race they hadn't won a dime themselves.

22 And Still King

AP Featur Service

It's been a long while since Man O' War's pounding hoofs beat a cash-winning tempo on the nation's race tracks but "Big Red" is still king of the turf by virtue of money earned by horses he has sired. Shown here taking it easy on Samuel D. Riddle's Faraway Farm near Lexington, Ky., Man O' War has plenty of reason to hold that head so proudly. War Beauty, a two-year-old filly and winner of the Selima Stakes at Laurel the past season, is his latest outstanding representative. His get includes two derby winners, War Admiral and Clyde Van Deusen, and three other horses which won more than $100,000 in one year. They are Crusader, Mars, and Bateau.

Davis and Parsons To Play Basketball

Parsons, Nov. 29 — Coach Myrl Kepner, of Parsons high school, announced today that he has completed plans for two basketball games this year between Davis and Parsons high schools. This will be the first time in three years these teams have met in regular scheduled games. Davis will play here January 9 and the Parsons team will play in the gymnasium at Davis on February 9.

Duquesne Asked To Play-in the "Olympic Bowl"

Los Angeles Wants Pittsburgh Eleven To Play on West Coast

Pittsburgh, Nov. 29. (AP)—Duquesne University's unbeaten and untied gridiron machine, belatedly receiving recognition for its surprising accomplishments, got its first formal "bowl" bid today.

Larry Sunbrock, chairman, invited the Dukes to play a representative West Coast eleven in an "Olympic Bowl" game—a newcomer to bowl ranks—in Los Angeles on Dec. 16.

Sunbrock predicted in a telegram to Coach Aldo (Buff) Donelli that the game would gross $100,000. Donelli said he was withholding a decision pending further information regarding the game.

Another informal suggestion for a "Smoke Bowl" game, with Duquesne representing Pittsburgh and Missouri representing St. Louis came from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The newspaper proposed that the gate receipts "go for smoke elimination in the winning city." Both cities are known for "Smog"—a soupy combination of smoke and fog.

Donelli also admitted he had received "a feeler" about playing in the Sun Bowl in El Paso against Arizona State College, Border Conference representative. Sun Bowl officials, however, were reported more interested in obtaining Clemson or some other Southern team.

Duquesne winds up the regular season here Saturday against Detroit. All of the Dukes were reported in shape for the tussle except Joe Chadonic, who has an injured shoulder.

Colorado Grid Player Shot and Wounded on Eve of Final Game

Fort Collins, Colo., Nov. 29 (AP)—Walter (Bud) Lyons, 21-year old fullback on the Colorado State College football team, was shot and critically wounded today on the eve of his team's final game of the season.

A revolver bullet struck him an inch above the heart.

The shooting was in the apartment of Lois Jeanne Vannorsdel, a sophomore at the college, who had been keeping company with Lyons several months.

Police Chief Orville P. Kelley and Winton M. Ault, a Deputy District Attorney, planned to question the girl later. She became hysterical and was placed under a physician's care.

Hughes said the player told him "the story in confidence." The coach said he would "observe that confidence."

Chief Kelley said the shooting resulted from "a lovers' quarrel."

Kelley outlined the events preceding the shooting this way:

Bob Griffith, a hardware clerk, said a girl answering Miss Vannorsdel's description, purchased a .38-caliber revolver from him shortly before noon.

Then Miss Vannorsdel telephoned Lyons, asking him to visit her before leaving with the team. He went to the apartment about 1 p. m.

About fifteen minutes later, the door of an adjoining apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Al M. Rathburn was jerked open and Lyons staggered in.

He laid the gun on the table, then collapsed. The Rathburns said they had heard no sounds of quarreling.

A man's class ring, believed to belong to Lyons, was found on the floor of the room where he and the girl talked. Chief Kelley said the angle of the wound indicated Lyons was sitting when shot.

Miss Vannorsdel lived with her mother, Mrs. Marie Vannorsdel, a teacher in an elementary school here.

Doctors planned a blood transfusion in an effort to save Lyons' life.

Ault said the shooting "definitely was not an attempted suicide."

Denounces Several Clubs for "Evil Practices" in Baseball

Detroit and Brooklyn Fined $500 Each; Dayton and Columbus Hit

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP) — Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, with a vehement denunciation of several clubs for the "evil practices" of concealing player contracts from his office, imposed fines totalling $2,500 today on four teams, including the Detroit Tigers and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Granting free agency and back salary awards to several players, the Commissioner fined Detroit $500; Brooklyn $500; Dayton, O., of the Mid-Atlantic League and a property of the Dodgers, $1,000, and Columbus of the American Association, owned by the St. Louis Cardinals, $500.

From his investigation, Landis said in a lengthy statement, "it appears that clubs are signing players to contracts and term acceptances which are never filed for promulgation x x x" and added that "repeated denunciations of these evil practices having proved unavailing, notice is given all clubs that a fine of not less than $500 will be imposed in all cases where clubs heareafter engage in these practices."

Cardinals Mentioned

The Commissioner, who early in 1938 denounced the St. Louis Cardinals farm system, also mentioned the Cardinals in today's edicts. Pointing out that it is an evasion of rules for one club to authorize another to sign its players, Landis granted free agency to five players of the Duluth, Minn., team, which has a working agreement with the Cardinals.

Detroit was fined after investigation of the case of Charles H. Tefft, signed to a 1939 contract with the Alexandria, La., team, with which Detroit had a working agreement. The contract never was filed, Landis said, yet Tefft subsequently was sent to Hot Springs, Ark., then to Tiffin, O., which latter club released him May 15, 1939.

Krueger Case Cited

George Krueger, Los Angeles, claimed he was shuffled back and forth between Dayton and Paducah, Ky., both clubs having affiliations with Brooklyn, and finally was sent home last July. Landis said no club had been named in the contract given Krueger by Brooklyn and fined Brooklyn and Dayton $500 each for rules violation of the blank contract process and fined Dayton an additional $500 for "falsely dating" Krueger's contract and for filing such falsely dated contract.

Columbus was fined for filing a contract with a false affidavit in the case of Charles Ripple, who was declared a free agent. Landis said Ripple signed a document submitted by Scout Frank Rickey in August, 1936, when Ripple was a fifteen-year-old high school student. The document did not contain a salary affidavit as required by the rules, the Commissioner said. He added that Ripple and his mother testified the document never would have been signed had they known it would end the boy's high school and college eligibility.

Commission Refuses To Grant Dates to Sportsman's Park

Chicago, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Illinois State Racing Commission refused to grant 1940 racing dates today to Sportsman's Park, whose president, Edward J. O'Hare, was slain in gangland fashion early this month.

The commission pointed out that the death of O'Hare, who was shot to death Nov. 8 as he drove from the half mile track on Chicago's West Side, created vacancies in the office as president, vice president and on the board of directors of the National Jockey Club, which operated Sportsman's Park.

The commission said that "if and when the National Jockey Club files an amendment or a new application for dates a hearing will be given the National Jockey Club."

Eight Point Club Leaves On Deer Hunting Trip

Six members of the Eight Point Club of this city will leave this morning for the club's hunting lodge in Potter County, Pa., on a deer hunting expedition that will continue for a week or ten days. The duration of their stay will depend on the success of the clubmen in bagging a buck.

Those making up the party are Dr. G. Frank Malin, president; Paul Bradour, Willard Bradour, Wilbur Klinger, John Wentling and B. M. Hinkle.

Cautious Football Seer Judges Rhyming Contest

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

New York, Nov. 29—Before we announce the results of the third annnual Lardner memorial sweepstakes for frustrated shelleys — which has turned the world of poetry upside down—we will direct our trained eye on the few remaining football games on the program this week, Thursday and Saturday.

Naturally, a guy who is about to judge a rhyming contest does not like to lead with his chin. Thus, we will dispense with rhyme for the nonce (which is poetry in itself), and call our shots in pure Addisonian prose. No embittered poet with a losing entry in this contest is going to have a chance at our headquarters with a horsewhip just because his stuff is better than ours.

The Selections, Minus Verbel

Trimmings

The sure-fire winners:

Thursday

Auburn over Florida.
Rutgers over Brown.
Tennessee over Kentucky.
North Carolina over Virginia.
Texas A. and M. over Texas.
U. C. L. A. over Washington State.
Alabama over Vanderbilt.
Arkansas over Tulsa.

Saturday

Army over Navy.
Boston College over Holy Cross.
College of the Pacific over Nevada.
Dartmouth over Stanford.
Duquesne over Detroit.
Fordham over N. Y. U.
Georgia Tech over Georgia.
Baylor over Rice.
U. S. C. over Washington.
Southern Methodist over T. C. U.
Tulane over Louisiana State.
West Virginia-George Washington—tie game.

Now for the principal business of the meeting. We announce, more in pity than in anger, that the Lardner annual memorial award for a rhyme for "Tufts" goes to Mr. Sam V. Gunnison, of San Francisco, Calif. The award is $1 in cash or merchandise. Mr. Gunnison specifies cash. That's a mistake, for the merchandise we had in mind is valued by the police (who are now hot on its trail) at $3.75.

The winning rhyme (uncensored) is as follows:

"De toughest players play at Tufts.
Dey stays away from joints and gals.
Dey never lolls on overstuffeds.
Dey're hard on Lardner's rhymes; eh, pals?"

This contribution is illustrated by the author. A Tufts football player (drawn from life) is shown "lolling," as the author puts it, in his own stark way, upon an overstuffed chair. This makes a liar out of the author's own comment, but, knowing Tufts men as we do, we believe it is safe to say that some of them loll like the dickens.

I can hear the rest of you contestants saying, "Miranda, fetch my horsewhip! Lardner can't discriminate against me like this! That rhyme of Gunnison's is no damn good!"

Granted that Gunnison's rhyme is none too sterling, you should have seen the rest of them. Out of two dozen contributions, his was the only one which managed a semi-legitimate rhyme for Tufts, with or without meter (and the San Franciscan, God bless him, is O. K. metrically). The next best is the work of W. H. Rometsch, of Philadelphia, who says that all his golf balls are "sliced's and roughed's." This is a rhyme for Tufts, all right, but we feel that Mr. Rometsch has pressed a little too hard—harder than the winner.

With indignation, we repudiate such assonances (see dictionary) as "nuts" and "cuffs." We think a Boston contributor is shirking the issue when he substitutes "Medford med." for "Tufts." We believe Pat Barry, of Seattle, former prize-winner, is loafing with "blufts," and we state fearlessly that another former winner, Tom Farley, of Syracuse, is wrong about this one:

"Up in old New Hampshire's wild
Terrain, there stand some rugged, tough ts-
-Uga pines. But watch, my child,
Then fall before the ax of Tufts."

Mr. Farley says there really are such things as "tsuga pines." No dougt he's right, but it makes no difference, because his rhyme is not a rhyme, but an identity. The same thing goes for another suggestion, "candytufts," from Somerville, Mass. Does "loan" rhyme with "lone?" Nope. And neither does "thoughts" or "Tufts" rhyme with "Tufts."

Peel one green wrapper off the roll, Miss Leahy, and send it post-haste to San Francisco.

Coach Bob Neyland Says Team Is in Worst Condition of Season

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 29 (AP) — University of Tennessee's candidates for the Rose Bowl football classic New Year's Day expect their hardest 1939 game tomorrow against their old rival, the University of Kentucky.

Here's how Coach Bob Neyland of Tennessee put it:

"We think it will be just about our toughest game of the year.

"It looks like this will be the type of game in which anything can happen."

The tussle for a battered old beer keg will start at 1:45 p. m., Central Standard Time. Place: Stoll Field. Attendance: 20,000, the capacity of the field as tickets all were sold long ago. Weather forecast: light rain.

Coach Neyland brought his boys, thirty-seven of them, into Lexington early today and in the afternoon there was a light workout. Some were taken on auto rides to see the Bluegrass' fine race horse farms and there was a movie in the evening for additional relaxation.

George Cafego, top-notch quarterback, who has sent chills up and down the spines of rival coaches still had a slight limp from a knee injury suffered in the Citadel game, but he's almost certain to be in there tomorrow. So is Bob Foxx, flashy wingback, just out of the hospital after treatment for a deep cold.

Before leaving Knoxville Neyland sounded his first pessimistic note of the year: "in worst condition of the season."

On the Kentucky side only sophomore fullback Noah Mullins seems to be out of the Wildcat lineup, but even he may start.

That 46 to 0 defeat of last season by Tennessee is a burning spot in Kentucky's memory.

All a Mistake Keltner Says

Milwaukee, Nov. 29. (AP)—Ken Keltner, the Cleveland Indians' young third baseman, said today his claim for unemployment compensation in Ohio started as "a big joke" that became "a mistake" for which he is exceedingly sorry.

"I just made a mistake," Keltner said. "And I didn't realize how bad a mistake it was until now. I didn't need the money and if I'd stopped to think I wouldn't have asked for it.

"We were bowling one night and there was some wise cracking. One of the fellows asked me 'what's the matter; are you broke.' I said, 'yeah, I'm broke.'

"Well, he says, 'why don't you apply for unemployment pay?' And I said 'that's an idea, I guess I will." It was just a gag.

"Just to carry out the gag, I went down to the State Office (in Milwaukee) and asked about it. They told me I was entitled to unemployment pay down in Ohio. I should have dropped the whole business right there, but I wrote to Ohio and asked about it. They wrote back that I didn't have anything coming.

"I wouldn't have had this happen for anything. I just made a mistake, and I know it now. And how!"

Mountaineers Told To Watch Nowaskey

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 29 (AP)—Coach Marshall (Sleepy) Glenn warned the West Virginia Mountaineers today to closely watch Bob Nowaskey, flashy end of George Washington University, in their game here Saturday, reminding them of his spectacular work in their clash last year.

Coach Ray Flaherty of the professional Washington Redskins has rated Nowaskey as one of the best ends of the east.

Clinic For Girl Cage Officials Here Saturday

A basketball clinic for girls who desire to receive training in officiating will be held Saturday from 10 o'clock to 3 o'clock at the Fort Hill girls' gymnasium under the direction of the National Amateur Athletic Federation for Women.

According to Marjorie LaFollette, Fort Hill High girls' coach who has made arrangements for the clinic, at least 28 women and girls are expected to turn out. Each prospective referee must bring equipment consisting of play suit, gym shoes and whistle.

Navy "B" Squad's Mascot Will Go On Varsity Crew

Schnauzer Will Vie with Goat To Jinx Army Mule

By JOHN S. GROVER

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 29. (AP)—It isn't that Navy men are superstitious but the Midshipmen regiment of 2,300 will carry a spare mascot to the Army-Navy game Saturday—Bill VIII, traditional Navy goat, and Melissa, tough schnauzer mascot of the undefeated B team.

Bill VIII is still official Navy mascot. However, they can't deny M'Liss the trip to the big game. Her record as "good joss" for the B squad was perfect and Navy isn't overlooking any chance to defeat the cadets.

The scrappy pooch sparked the Bees to an undefeated season while her more dignified cohort could do no better than lead the varsity to five defeats, one tie, and two early season victories.

B squadders who were promoted to the varsity urged that M'Liss be brought along to shed her voodoo when the going got tough. They cited one game this year when the B squad was trailing. Every substitute patted Melissa before he went on the field. Navy won—of course.

Merely a Loan

The B squad didn't mind lending Melissa for this trip but made it emphatically clear it was only an emergency loan to insure victory.

Melissa is tough, no question about that. Last year she chased a butterfly off the gymnasium roof and tumbled 65 feet to a concrete court. Two weeks later, her ribs still taped and still limping a bit, M'Liss was back on the job dragging her lucky sweat sock.

There's no doubt about her loyalty, either. She had three pups this summer and was a good mother until practice started. Then her pups became orphans. She left 'em cold and joined the Navy.

Navy is still banking on Bill VIII to brew the hex to trounce the cadets. But there's no law against carrying an extra life preserver.

M'Liss hasn't trotted off the field yet with a losing team. Nobody kicks luck like her's in the face.

Four Washington Girls Win $1,736 For Strange Man

Play Daily-Double For Him but Fail To Win for Selves

By CLARKE BEACH

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP) — A Texan with a good hunch placed a $2 bet on four girls and two horses today—and won $1,736.30.

He saw the girls in a restaurant this morning and asked them to play the daily double at Bowie for him.

"I never saw you before but you look honest and lucky," he told them when he noticed them studying a scratch sheet. He had a hunch that two long-shots, Shailleen and Rib Roast, were going to win, and asked them to bet his $2 on them for the daily double.

He didn't know the girls' names, but he had given them his name and his address, J. E. McWhorter, the Blackstone Hotel. And in mid-afternoon he got a wire from one of the girls:

"See you 6:30. You clicked plenty."

McWhorter, 42-year old Houston lawyer, waited in his room and figured out that his income tax on the money would be $426.80, since he'd have to pay the 18 per cent rate, just as on inheritances. He never doubted that the girls would show up.

On the dot the girls drove up. Miss Corinne Dulin, Mrs. Edna Phelps, Mrs. Edna Chambers and Mrs. Cora McAllister, all Western Union employes.

"Well, here we are!" shrieked the girls.

"Well, well, well," was all McWhorter and his wife could say amid handshaking and laughter.

"You put the jinx on us!" Miss Dulin complained, for the girls hadn't bet on the daily double for themselves and hadn't cashed but one show ticket all afternoon.

McWhorter gave each of the ladies a $50 bill, then turned over the rest to his wife, who put the roll in her pocketbook.

About the only person in the room then who didn't have a lot of money was McWhorter.

Girls Tell Story

Bowie, Md., Nov. 29 (AP) — Four Washington girls collected a daily double pay-off of $1,736.30 today—for a total stranger.

Here's the story as told by Corinne Dulin, Edna Phelps, Edna Chambers and Cora McAllister, employes of Western Union in Washington:

Enroute to the Bowie race track, they stopped at a lunch counter for a snack. While they talked about racing, a strange man approached them and said:

"I have never seen you before but you look both honest and lucky, so I wish you would play a daily double for me."

On a slip of paper he wrote "Shailleen and Rib Roast" and his name, J. McWhorter, Blackstone hotel, Washington. He didn't bother to get the girls' names.

Wrapping $2 around the note, he said:

"Neither of these horses has a chance and I never win. But if your luck should carry me through, bring the money to the hotel. Bring along your boy friends and we'll have a real party."

The girls bought McWhorter's daily double ticket, but they didn't play either horse. Shailleen won the first race at $37.40 for $2 and Rib Roast the second at $43.80 for $2. McWhorter was one of eight people who won the $1,736.30 double.

Collecting the money, the girls rushed a wire to J. McWhorter, informing him of his luck. At the end of the third race they hadn't won a dime themselves.

22 And Still King

AP Featur Service

It's been a long while since Man O' War's pounding hoofs beat a cash-winning tempo on the nation's race tracks but "Big Red" is still king of the turf by virtue of money earned by horses he has sired. Shown here taking it easy on Samuel D. Riddle's Faraway Farm near Lexington, Ky., Man O' War has plenty of reason to hold that head so proudly. War Beauty, a two-year-old filly and winner of the Selima Stakes at Laurel the past season, is his latest outstanding representative. His get includes two derby winners, War Admiral and Clyde Van Deusen, and three other horses which won more than $100,000 in one year. They are Crusader, Mars, and Bateau.

Duquesne Asked To Play-in the "Olympic Bowl"

Los Angeles Wants Pittsburgh Eleven To Play on West Coast

Pittsburgh, Nov. 29. (AP)—Duquesne University's unbeaten and untied gridiron machine, belatedly receiving recognition for its surprising accomplishments, got its first formal "bowl" bid today.

Larry Sunbrock, chairman, invited the Dukes to play a representative West Coast eleven in an "Olympic Bowl" game—a newcomer to bowl ranks—in Los Angeles on Dec. 16.

Sunbrock predicted in a telegram to Coach Aldo (Buff) Donelli that the game would gross $100,000. Donelli said he was withholding a decision pending further information regarding the game.

Another informal suggestion for a "Smoke Bowl" game, with Duquesne representing Pittsburgh and Missouri representing St. Louis came from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The newspaper proposed that the gate receipts "go for smoke elimination in the winning city." Both cities are known for "Smog"—a soupy combination of smoke and fog.

Donelli also admitted he had received "a feeler" about playing in the Sun Bowl in El Paso against Arizona State College, Border Conference representative. Sun Bowl officials, however, were reported more interested in obtaining Clemson or some other Southern team.

Duquesne winds up the regular season here Saturday against Detroit. All of the Dukes were reported in shape for the tussle except Joe Chadonic, who has an injured shoulder.

Colorado Grid Player Shot and Wounded on Eve of Final Game

Fort Collins, Colo., Nov. 29 (AP)—Walter (Bud) Lyons, 21-year old fullback on the Colorado State College football team, was shot and critically wounded today on the eve of his team's final game of the season.

A revolver bullet struck him an inch above the heart.

The shooting was in the apartment of Lois Jeanne Vannorsdel, a sophomore at the college, who had been keeping company with Lyons several months.

Police Chief Orville P. Kelley and Winton M. Ault, a Deputy District Attorney, planned to question the girl later. She became hysterical and was placed under a physician's care.

Coach Harry Hughes visited Lyons at the county hospital shortly before the team left for Albuquerque and its intersectional game with New Mexico University tomorrow.

Hughes said the player told him "the story in confidence." The coach said he would "observe that confidence."

Chief Kelley said the shooting resulted from "a lovers' quarrel."

Kelley outlined the events preceding the shooting this way:

Bob Griffith, a hardware clerk, said a girl answering Miss Vannorsdel's description, purchased a .38-caliber revolver from him shortly before noon.

Then Miss Vannorsdel telephoned Lyons, asking him to visit her before leaving with the team. He went to the apartment about 1 p. m.

About fifteen minutes later, the door of an adjoining apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Al M. Rathburn was jerked open and Lyons staggered in.

He laid the gun on the table, then collapsed. The Rathburns said they had heard no sounds of quarreling.

A man's class ring, believed to belong to Lyons, was found on the floor of the room where he and the girl talked. Chief Kelley said the angle of the wound indicated Lyons was sitting when shot.

Miss Vannorsdel lived with her mother, Mrs. Marie Vannorsdel, a teacher in an elementary school here.

Doctors planned a blood transfusion in an effort to save Lyons' life.

Davis and Parsons To Play Basketball

Parsons, Nov. 29 — Coach Myrl Kepner, of Parsons high school, announced today that he has completed plans for two basketball games this year between Davis and Parsons high schools. This will be the first time in three years these teams have met in regular scheduled games. Davis will play here January 9 and the Parsons team will play in the gymnasium at Davis on February 9.

Army-Navy Game Has Other Competition

Double-Bills of Wind-Up Week To Share Spotlight

Kentucky - Tennessee Game Promises Real Test for Vols

Texas and Texas A. M. Clash Also Rates As Headliner

By BILL BONI

New York, Nov. 29. (AP)—It has been the annual custom for the Army and the Navy to dominate the final week of the football season with the pomp, ceremony and bitter combat of their service extravaganza.

All three ingredients, plus the season's largest crowd of 102,000, will be involved in Saturday's renewal of the series at Philadelphia But even the presence of President Roosevelt can't hide from the fact that the vital games in this double-header windup week will be fought out on other fields.

Having taken the season's final look into the crystal ball, this observer goes into a double wing to cover the two sections of the program and ventures the following forecasts (probable attendance figures in parentheses):

Thursday Games

Kentucky-Tennessee (20,000)—If Cafego and Suffridge don't play, this may be tough for the Volunteers. But the choice is Tennessee.

Texas-Texas A. and M. (40,000)—Undoubtedly Dana Bible, who gave the Aggies their last conference title until this year's, would like to see his sophomores whip the old school. But the Aggies have too much all-around class and the vote is for Texas A. and M.

U. C. L. A.-Washington State (25,000)—U. C. L. A.

Auburn-Florida (15,000)—Auburn.

Brown-Rutgers (12,000) — Looks like Charlie Blount's passes should bring about Rutgers' first defeat. Brown.

San Jose State-Drake—Thirteen in a row for San Jose.

Vanderbilt-Alabama (18,000) — A gamble either way. Vandy.

North Carolina-Virginia (20,000)—North Carolina.

Tulsa-Arkansas, off its defeat of Southern Methodist.

Wake Forest-Davidson—John Polanski and Wake Forest.

Saturday Games

Tulane-Louisiana State (50,000)—Those L. S. U. passes haven't been clicking lately, and the Green Wave pass defense is no slouch. Tulane.

Southern California-Washington (50,000)—The Huskies have a fine back in Dean McAdams, but the Trojans have them in squads. Southern Cal.

Army-Navy (102,000)—The president will spend one half on each side of the field. A tie might be a good pick. Strictly out of the hat—anybody's hat—Navy.

Duquesne-Detroit (33,000)—Those Detroit passes are dangerous, but Duquesne should be the winner.

New York U.-Fordham (60,000)—The battle of the Bronx, where anything goes. Fordham.

Georgia-Georgia Tech (28,000)—Georgia Tech.

Boston College-Holy Cross (40,000)—The edge, and a slim one, to Holy Cross.

Dartmouth-Stanford (25,000) — Last year Dartmouth took the long trip to get surprised. This year Stanford travels, but probably won't be surprised. Dartmouth.

Southern Methodist-Texas Christian (17,000)—T. C. U. Might be a good long shot, but the book says Southern Methodist.

Baylor-Rice (12,000)—Baylor.

West Virginia-George Washington (7,500)—George Washington.

Looking ahead (Dec. 9)—Southern California over U. C. L. A.; Southern Methodist over Rice; Tennessee over Auburn.

Twenty-Five Boys Out for Basketball At Grantsville

Grantsville, Nov. 29.—About twenty-five boys turned out for basketball practice yesterday afternoon under the direction of their coach, Bill Grimm. This was their first meeting and Mr. Grimm proceeded to lay down the rules and regulations imposed upon the players and stressed the importance of total abstinence from eating candy, drinking pop, beer or hard cider, and smoking. All members of the team are required to be in bed not later than 10:30 during the season and no exceptions will be allowed for a player breaking any of the rules.

Mr. Grimm announced the following schedule: Grantsville boys vs. Beal Dec. 8, at home; Boys' and Girls' teams vs. Central Dec 14, away; Boys' and Girls' vs. Central Jan 12, at home; Boys' and Girls' vs. Oakland, Jan. 16, away; Boys vs. Garrett, Jan. 19, away; Boys and Girls' vs. Garrett, Jan. 27, away; Boys vs. Garrett, Feb. 2, at home; Boys vs. Elk Garden, Feb. 6 away; Boys vs. Elk Garden, Feb. 23, at home; Boys and Girls vs. Oakland, Mar. 1, at home.

In addition the boys will meet St. Peter's, of Westernport, one game, and both boys and girls will play Bruce of Westernport, and two games with Friendsville, the date to be announced later.

BASEBALL IN DECEMBER

St. Louis, Nov. 29—The football season isn't quite over, yet here is a town that is beginning to talk about winning the National League pennant next year. Stopping over here for a day on my way to Arkansas for a few days of quail shooting with Bill Dickey, I found that even the winning of the Big Six championship by Missouri and the prospect that the Tigers may be invited to compete in one of the bowl games on New Year's Day couldn't take the edge off the baseball talk.

That's a curious thing about St. Louis. At the gate, it is one of the poorest baseball towns in the country. From a sentimental and conversational standpoint, it is one of the best. Crowds at Sportsman's Park for either the Cardinals or the Browns have been so skimpy for years that there is frequent talk of moving one of the franchises to another town, yet St. Louis has one of the most colorful of baseball backgrounds and has turned out some of the greatest players in the history of the game—and there isn't anybody here, regardless of age or sex, who doesn't seem to like the game or will not talk about it at any season of the year.

The impression here is that the Cardinals are due to win in 1940 and if they do this may restore the enthusiasm that raged when they won the first time, which was in 1926. Many reasons have been ascribed for the decline at the turnstiles in recent years. One of them, of course, is the chronic weakness of the Browns, who have been in the American League's second division for ten years. Another might be that the Cardinals, having won five pennants in nine seasons, haven't won one since.

After Thirty-Eight Years

Thirty-eight years of striving were climaxed by that Cardinal victory in 1926—and to make it complete and drive the town almost crazy with joy, the Cards beat the Yankees in the world series. They missed in 1927 but came back in 1928, missed in 1929 and then won again in 1930 and 1931. There was a two-year lapse and then they crashed through—with the Gas House Gang led by Frank Frisch and including Dizzy and Paul Dean, Pepper Martin, Leo Durocher and Joe Medwick—to win the pennant and beat the Tigers in the most boisterous world series on record.

Right there it looked as though the Cardinals might win for the next three or four years, because most of them were young and in their prime. But ill fortune overtook them and they crumbled and finally crashed and one by one they passed from the scene, so that now only Joe Medwick is left—and it is no cinch that Joe will be here next year.

Whether he is or not, there is a feeling here that 1940 will be a Cardinal year. Ray Blades brought the team back sharply last year and very nearly won the pennant with it, forcing the Reds right down to the last stride. The collapse of the Reds in the world series with the Yankees convinced St. Louis fans that the Cardinals really were the best club in the league at the finish and that the Reds won only because of the early jump they got in the race. And so they expect the Cardinals to win in 1940—with or without Medwick.

Nearing the Wind-up

Meanwhile, the football season moves rapidly to a close, with Tennessee playing Kentucky on Thursday at Lexington and some smashing games on the schedule for Saturday.

Tops in national interest will be Army and Navy at Philadelphia. The fact that the service elevens are below standard this year doesn't matter in the least. This game, with its parade of the Cadets and the Middies, is football's greatest show and draws one of its greatest crowds—100,000 or more. And it may be that this will be an exciting combat because, bad though the teams may be, they are evenly matched.

In New York, Fordham and N. Y. U. will pack the Yankee Stadium for the Battle of the Bronx, one of the year's major clashes in the nation's biggest town. Fordham started slowly but was hitting hard the last time out. N. Y. U., starting fast but slowed down in recent games by injuries to Boell and Barmak, is ready to roll again.

Other games of great local or sectional interest are on the card. Holy Cross, one of the best teams in the East, tackles Boston College, probably the most improved team in the East under the fine coaching of Frank Leahy, who was one of Jim Crowley's assistants at Fordham until he went to Boston last spring. At New Orleans, Tulane, primed for the Sugar Bowl, the Rose Bowl or any other Bowl and having one of the top teams of the country, meets a traditional and therefore dangerous foe in L. S. U. Dallas and Ft. Worth will be turned upside down on Saturday by the clash of Southern Methodist and Texas Christian at Fort Worth. Another Texas classic brings together Rice and Baylor at Houston. On the Coast, Southern California drives on to meet Washington at Los Angeles. At Pittsburgh, unbeaten and untied Duquesne plays Detroit—with a bowl shot in view if it wins.

On Sunday probably the greatest football game of the year will be played at the Polo Grounds, with the New York Giants and the Washington Redskins clashing head on. There is no ivy on this game and no tradition behind it but it happens to be a scramble of some of the finest players the game ever has known with the Eastern professional title on the line. At the same time the Green Bay Packers will be trying to clinch the Western championship in a tussle with Detroit.—(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance).

More Game Lures Deer Hunters to W. Va. Highlands

Whitetail Buck Will Be Legal Game From Nov. 30 to Dec. 2

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 29 (AP) — More game and a bigger hunting territory drew thousands of sportsmen to the highlands tonight in quest of deer.

From November 30 through December 2 the fleet Whitetail buck will be legal game.

And the Conservation Commission, after a survey, predicted the kill would exceed last year's bag of 896 animals.

At the same time, the commission warned:

"They better be legal."

The commission, by reason of new regulations, is better prepared to cope with the huntsmen who violate the law, Director H. W. Shawhan pointed out.

Shawhan also reiterated his cardinal rule of safety:

"Don't shoot until you see antlers."

One Fatality in 5 Years

He cited a record of only one deer hunting fatality in the last five years, that one reported in 1938 when a hunter's own gun discharged accidentally and killed him.

Most stringent of the new regulations requires a tag on the deer's neck before it is removed from the county in which killed.

Approximately 200 checking stations will be set up along roadsides and in the woods of deer counties.

State police will complement a force of nearly 100 regular and special game wardens assigned to the territory.

Deer will be legal game in Preston, Tucker, Morgan, Pocahontas and Lewis counties, and in parts of Greenbrier, Grant, Hardy, Hampshire, Mineral, Randolph, Monongalia, Pendleton and Webster.

Another new regulation Shawhan mentioned is one forbidding the use of shotguns or other weapons firing anything but a ball of .25 caliber or more.

The commission has a record of 86 illegal kills last year, the hunters having been prosecuted in each case.

The machinery has been set up to guard against a repitition of that experience, conservation officials asserted.

Last year's legal kill of 896 compared to 456 in 1937, the gain being credited to larger territory and an additional day of hunting.

Three counties have been added to the list of eleven where hunting was allowed last year for the 1939 season.

Midshipmen Ready for Trip to Philadelphia

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 29 (AP) — They're ready to clear the track Saturday when the Middies make their annual exodus to Philadelphia for the renewal of the Army-Navy football feud.

The Baltimore and Annapolis railroad notified the Public Service Commission today six early-morning trains would be eliminated to avoid a jam on the line.

The first of five trains which will carry the Midshipmen to Philadelphia will leave Annapolis at 8:05 a. m. The others will pull out in short order, the last scheduled to depart at 8:25 a. m. The arrival in Philadelphia is scheduled for 11:30 a. m.

Passing through Baltimore, the regiment will follow tradition and draw the blinds over the windows If they fail to follow that custom tradition has it, Navy will have bad luck in the game against Army.

Historic Crabtown Is Football Crazy

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 29 (AP) — Historic Crabtown went football berserk today.

Navy's mounting enthusiasm, whipped up by imminence of the Army-Navy classic Saturday, combined the more riotous features of an Indian uprising, old home week in an insane hospital and election night in ward eight.

Greying officers said they could not recall when tension was so high before a game, and abnormal tension is entirely normal before an Army-Navy contest.

The regiment of Midshipmen neared the boiling point. They howled and cheered from sheer exhuberance.

The tide of emotionalism slopped over the academy walls and inundated Crabtown. Street corner conversation was all of the big game. Last week's defeatism was superseded by optimism, and nary a "townie" but believes Navy will take 'em.

Midshipmen staged a monster pep rally tonight, and another was scheduled for tomorrow, centering around a mammoth "get-a-victory" bonfire.

Conway's triumph pulled it from a tie for last to a tie with the Divico Brothers combination for third. Divico won from Bill's Seafood 2-1 in the other match.

Les Alabaugh of Bill's Seafood broke the all-time league record for a single game when he rolled 254 against Burke. The former mark of 241 was held jointly by Mike Moore of Conway and "Dyke" Proudfoot of Divico.

Although six men or more rolled on each team, two "five-man team" records were broken during this week's session. The marks are figured on the basis of the five top rollers.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—They're big enough to do their own worrying, but we can't help chipping in a little worry over the lack of recognition given the unsung heroes of the gridiron—the linemen and blocking backs.

An abrupt realization that this fall has been an unusual number of standing-up touchdowns, with the ball carrier moving to the goal with a portable fence around him, revived the idea that maybe the fence deserved a little credit for what went on.

It takes a high degree of unselfishness for a big lineman to roll out three potential tacklers and pick himself up wondering wether those humps under his shirt were a couple of ribs sticking out or just a misplaced pad, and knowing that t

Texas and Texas A. M. Clash Also Rates As Headliner

By BILL BONI

New York, Nov. 29. (AP)—It has been the annual custom for the Army and the Navy to dominate the final week of the football season with the pomp, ceremony and bitter combat of their service extravaganza.

All three ingredients, plus the season's largest crowd of 102,000, will be involved in Saturday's renewal of the series at Philadelphia But even the presence of President Roosevelt can't hide from the fact that the vital games in this double-header windup week will be fought out on other fields.

Having taken the season's final look into the crystal ball, this observer goes into a double wing to cover the two sections of the program and ventures the following forecasts (probable attendance figures in parentheses):

Thursday Games

Kentucky-Tennessee (20,000)—If Cafego and Suffridge don't play, this may be tough for the Volunteers. But the choice is Tennessee.

Texas-Texas A. and M. (40,000)—Undoubtedly Dana Bible, who gave the Aggies their last conference title until this year's, would like to see his sophomores whip the old school. But the Aggies have too much all-around class and the vote is for Texas A. and M.

U. C. L. A.-Washington State (25,000)—U. C. L. A.

Auburn-Florida (15,000)—Auburn.

Brown-Rutgers (12,000) — Looks like Charlie Blount's passes should bring about Rutgers' first defeat. Brown.

San Jose State-Drake—Thirteen in a row for San Jose.

Vanderbilt-Alabama (18,000) — A gamble either way. Vandy.

North Carolina-Virginia (20,000)—North Carolina.

Tulsa-Arkansas, off its defeat of Southern Methodist.

Wake Forest-Davidson—John Polanski and Wake Forest.

Saturday Games

Tulane-Louisiana State (50,000)—Those L. S. U. passes haven't been clicking lately, and the Green Wave pass defense is no slouch. Tulane.

Southern California-Washington (50,000)—The Huskies have a fine back in Dean McAdams, but the Trojans have them in squads. Southern Cal.

Army-Navy (102,000)—The president will spend one half on each side of the field. A tie might be a good pick. Strictly out of the hat—anybody's hat—Navy.

Duquesne-Detroit (33,000)—Those Detroit passes are dangerous, but Duquesne should be the winner.

New York U.-Fordham (60,000)—The battle of the Bronx, where anything goes. Fordham.

Georgia-Georgia Tech (28,000)—Georgia Tech.

Boston College-Holy Cross (40,000)—The edge, and a slim one, to Holy Cross.

Dartmouth-Stanford (25,000) — Last year Dartmouth took the long trip to get surprised. This year Stanford travels, but probably won't be surprised. Dartmouth.

Southern Methodist-Texas Christian (17,000)—T. C. U. Might be a good long shot, but the book says Southern Methodist.

Twenty-Five Boys Out for Basketball At Grantsville

Grantsville, Nov. 29.—About twenty-five boys turned out for basketball practice yesterday afternoon under the direction of their coach, Bill Grimm. This was their first meeting and Mr. Grimm proceeded to lay down the rules and regulations imposed upon the players and stressed the importance of total abstinence from eating candy, drinking pop, beer or hard cider, and smoking. All members of the team are required to be in bed not later than 10:30 during the season and no exceptions will be allowed for a player breaking any of the rules.

Mr. Grimm announced the following schedule: Grantsville boys vs. Beal Dec. 8, at home; Boys' and Girls' teams vs. Central Dec 14, away; Boys' and Girls' vs. Central Jan 12, at home; Boys' and Girls' vs. Oakland, Jan. 16, away; Boys vs. Garrett, Jan. 19, away; Boys and Girls' vs. Garrett, Jan. 27, away; Boys vs. Garrett, Feb. 2, at home; Boys vs. Elk Garden, Feb. 6 away; Boys vs. Elk Garden, Feb. 23, at home; Boys and Girls vs. Oakland, Mar. 1, at home.

In addition the boys will meet St. Peter's, of Westernport, one game, and both boys and girls will play Bruce of Westernport, and two games with Friendsville, the date to be announced later.

BASEBALL IN DECEMBER

St. Louis, Nov. 29—The football season isn't quite over, yet here is a town that is beginning to talk about winning the National League pennant next year. Stopping over here for a day on my way to Arkansas for a few days of quail shooting with Bill Dickey, I found that even the winning of the Big Six championship by Missouri and the prospect that the Tigers may be invited to compete in one of the bowl games on New Year's Day couldn't take the edge off the baseball talk.

That's a curious thing about St. Louis. At the gate, it is one of the poorest baseball towns in the country. From a sentimental and conversational standpoint, it is one of the best. Crowds at Sportsman's Park for either the Cardinals or the Browns have been so skimpy for years that there is frequent talk of moving one of the franchises to another town, yet St. Louis has one of the most colorful of baseball backgrounds and has turned out some of the greatest players in the history of the game—and there isn't anybody here, regardless of age or sex, who doesn't seem to like the game or will not talk about it at any season of the year.

The impression here is that the Cardinals are due to win in 1940 and if they do this may restore the enthusiasm that raged when they won the first time, which was in 1926. Many reasons have been ascribed for the decline at the turnstiles in recent years. One of them, of course, is the chronic weakness of the Browns, who have been in the American League's second division for ten years. Another might be that the Cardinals, having won five pennants in nine seasons, haven't won one since.

After Thirty-Eight Years

Thirty-eight years of striving were climaxed by that Cardinal victory in 1926—and to make it complete and drive the town almost crazy with joy, the Cards beat the Yankees in the world series. They missed in 1927 but came back in 1928, missed in 1929 and then won again in 1930 and 1931. There was a two-year lapse and then they crashed through—with the Gas House Gang led by Frank Frisch and including Dizzy and Paul Dean, Pepper Martin, Leo Durocher and Joe Medwick—to win the pennant and beat the Tigers in the most boisterous world series on record.

Right there it looked as though the Cardinals might win for the next three or four years, because most of them were young and in their prime. But ill fortune overtook them and they crumbled and finally crashed and one by one they passed from the scene, so that now only Joe Medwick is left—and it is no cinch that Joe will be here next year.

Whether he is or not, there is a feeling here that 1940 will be a Cardinal year. Ray Blades brought the team back sharply last year and very nearly won the pennant with it, forcing the Reds right down to the last stride. The collapse of the Reds in the world series with the Yankees convinced St. Louis fans that the Cardinals really were the best club in the league at the finish and that the Reds won only because of the early jump they got in the race. And so they expect the Cardinals to win in 1940—with or without Medwick.

Nearing the Wind-up

Meanwhile, the football season moves rapidly to a close, with Tennessee playing Kentucky on Thursday at Lexington and some smashing games on the schedule for Saturday.

Tops in national interest will be Army and Navy at Philadelphia. The fact that the service elevens are below standard this year doesn't matter in the least. This game, with its parade of the Cadets and the Middies, is football's greatest show and draws one of its greatest crowds—100,000 or more. And it may be that this will be an exciting combat because, bad though the teams may be, they are evenly matched.

In New York, Fordham and N. Y. U. will pack the Yankee Stadium for the Battle of the Bronx, one of the year's major clashes in the nation's biggest town. Fordham started slowly but was hitting hard the last time out. N. Y. U., starting fast but slowed down in recent games by injuries to Boell and Barmak, is ready to roll again.

Other games of great local or sectional interest are on the card. Holy Cross, one of the best teams in the East, tackles Boston College, probably the most improved team in the East under the fine coaching of Frank Leahy, who was one of Jim Crowley's assistants at Fordham until he went to Boston last spring. At New Orleans, Tulane, primed for the Sugar Bowl, the Rose Bowl or any other Bowl and having one of the top teams of the country, meets a traditional and therefore dangerous foe in L. S. U. Dallas and Ft. Worth will be turned upside down on Saturday by the clash of Southern Methodist and Texas Christian at Fort Worth. Another Texas classic brings together Rice and Baylor at Houston. On the Coast, Southern California drives on to meet Washington at Los Angeles. At Pittsburgh, unbeaten and untied Duquesne plays Detroit—with a bowl shot in view if it wins.

On Sunday probably the greatest football game of the year will be played at the Polo Grounds, with the New York Giants and the Washington Redskins clashing head on. There is no ivy on this game and no tradition behind it but it happens to be a scramble of some of the finest players the game ever has known with the Eastern professional title on the line. At the same time the Green Bay Packers will be trying to clinch the Western championship in a tussle with Detroit.—(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance).

More Game Lures Deer Hunters to W. Va. Highlands

Whitetail Buck Will Be Legal Game From Nov. 30 to Dec. 2

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 29 (AP) — More game and a bigger hunting territory drew thousands of sportsmen to the highlands tonight in quest of deer.

From November 30 through December 2 the fleet Whitetail buck will be legal game.

And the Conservation Commission, after a survey, predicted the kill would exceed last year's bag of 896 animals.

At the same time, the commission warned:

"They better be legal."

The commission, by reason of new regulations, is better prepared to cope with the huntsmen who violate the law, Director H. W. Shawhan pointed out.

Shawhan also reiterated his cardinal rule of safety:

"Don't shoot until you see antlers."

One Fatality in 5 Years

He cited a record of only one deer hunting fatality in the last five years, that one reported in 1938 when a hunter's own gun discharged accidentally and killed him.

Most stringent of the new regulations requires a tag on the deer's neck before it is removed from the county in which killed.

Approximately 200 checking stations will be set up along roadsides and in the woods of deer counties.

State police will complement a force of nearly 100 regular and special game wardens assigned to the territory.

Deer will be legal game in Preston, Tucker, Morgan, Pocahontas and Lewis counties, and in parts of Greenbrier, Grant, Hardy, Hampshire, Mineral, Randolph, Monongalia, Pendleton and Webster.

Another new regulation Shawhan mentioned is one forbidding the use of shotguns or other weapons firing anything but a ball of .25 caliber or more.

The commission has a record of 86 illegal kills last year, the hunters having been prosecuted in each case.

The machinery has been set up to guard against a repitition of that experience, conservation officials asserted.

Last year's legal kill of 896 compared to 456 in 1937, the gain being credited to larger territory and an additional day of hunting.

Three counties have been added to the list of eleven where hunting was allowed last year for the 1939 season.

Midshipmen Ready for Trip to Philadelphia

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 29 (AP) — They're ready to clear the track Saturday when the Middies make their annual exodus to Philadelphia for the renewal of the Army-Navy football feud.

The Baltimore and Annapolis railroad notified the Public Service Commission today six early-morning trains would be eliminated to avoid a jam on the line.

The first of five trains which will carry the Midshipmen to Philadelphia will leave Annapolis at 8:05 a. m. The others will pull out in short order, the last scheduled to depart at 8:25 a. m. The arrival in Philadelphia is scheduled for 11:30 a. m.

Passing through Baltimore, the regiment will follow tradition and draw the blinds over the windows. If they fail to follow that custom tradition has it, Navy will have bad luck in the game against Army.

Historic Crabtown Is Football Crazy

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 29 (AP) — Historic Crabtown went football berserk today.

Navy's mounting enthusiasm, whipped up by imminence of the Army-Navy classic Saturday, combined the more riotous features of an Indian uprising, old home week in an insane hospital and election night in ward eight.

Greying officers said they could not recall when tension was so high before a game, and abnormal tension is entirely normal before an Army-Navy contest.

The regiment of Midshipmen neared the boiling point. They howled and cheered from sheer exhuberance.

The tide of emotionalism slopped over the academy walls and inundated Crabtown. Street corner conversation was all of the big game. Last week's defeatism was superseded by optimism, and nary a "townie" but believes Navy will take 'em.

Midshipmen staged a monster pep rally tonight, and another was scheduled for tomorrow, centering around a mammoth "get-a-victory" bonfire.

Les Alabaugh of Bill's Seafood broke the all-time league record for a single game when he rolled 254 against Burke. The former mark of 241 was held jointly by Mike Moore of Conway and "Dyke" Proudfoot of Divico.

Although six men or more rolled on each team, two "five-man team" records were broken during this week's session. The marks are figured on the basis of the five top rollers.

Three teams went into a first-place tie in the Temperance League as a result of recent matches on the SS. Peter & Paul hardwood paths. The Bourbons, who had been leading up to this time, were forced to share the lead with the rampaging Scotches who trimmed the leaders 3-0 and with the Cordials who pushed the hapless Brandies deeper into the cellar with a shutout victory.

John King, of the Ryes, set two records in pacing his team to a 3-0 triumph over the Gins in the other match. His game scores of 158, 200 and 171 established a 529 set mark, while the 200 fallen maples in the second game was the best single game score in the league's eleven weeks of rolling. The scores:

Traders Push Shares in Quantity And Leading Issues Drop Sharply

Settlement of Chrysler Strike Taken as Signal for Buying

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Nov. 29. (AP)—Traders pushed shares n quantity at the stock market trading posts in the last quarter hour of today's session and leaders fell back fractions to three points under the previous close.

The decline followed early attempts to rally, led by the steels and motors, in which fractions to around two were added. Announcement the long and costly Chrysler labor dispute had been settled was taken as the signal for buying at the quiet opening and it kept up, more or less, until about 1 o'clock. Then offerings increased and support fell away.

Transfers totaled 780,700 shares. The Associated Press average of sixty representative stocks fell .5 of a point at 50.5

Chrysler, which got up around two points early in the day, fell back at the finish to close down one-fourth of a point.

Other losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Westinghouse Electric, du Pont, Union Carbide, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Santa Fe, New York Central, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda and Air Reduction.

Trimmed fractions to more than a point in the curb were Breeze Corp., American Cyanamid "B", Lockheed and Electric Bond and Share. Nehi Corp. again shot forward, closing up 7⅝. Turnover was 203,000 shares.

"Rulers of the Sea" Stupendous Production

Mr. Lloyd, who invariably makes melodramas which are lucky, this time has chosen the story of steam vs. canvas for his new wartime thriller, "Rulers of the Sea," which opened yesterday at the Strand and continues through Sunday. It is a rousing picture and a vast one, designed to delight all the fans.

Will Fyffe, the Scottish character actor who almost won last year's critics' award for his performance in "To the Victor," plays a conspicuous part in "Rulers of the Sea" and adds to its distinction. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., George Bancroft, Margaret Lockwood are other important figures in the plot.

The story opens in the early nineteenth century, when inventors were heavily absorbed in the possibilities of putting steamships on the sea. Young Fairbanks, mate on a sailing ship, is disgusted with the gruelling life aboard a vessel under canvas, champions the hard-driven seamen, earns the disfavor of his captain.

At a Scotch port, he quits his job, runs into Mr. Pyffe, an inventor, who interests him in a new steam engine. The young man carries his enthusiasm as high as the Admiralty, is not discouraged by high derision. Happily, he finds a progressive American, who approves the venture.

A race across the Atlantic by rival vessels is the dramatic highlight of the film. Encountering fierce storms, combatting disorder among the crew, burning its own furnishings when running out of fuel, the good new ship eventually makes its triumphant entry into New York harbor.

The romantic theme, which is slight, involves the inventor's brave and pretty daughter, who makes the historic crossing.

Storms and fires and riots are the substance of "Rulers of the Sea" and these elements, especially in combination, invariably guarantee the success of any picture. Mr. Lloyd has used them spectacularly and enhanced their value by likewises using a finished and convincing cast.

The added shorts are also good, especially the Hal Kemp orchestra subject. Of course, there is a cartoon and the new News flashes.

Betty Grable and Joe Penner In Liberty Hit

Joe Penner's latest, "The Day the Bookies Wept" opened yesterday at the Liberty and proved to be merry film entertainment.

The plot revolves around the efforts of a group of Brooklyn taxicab drivers to get revenge on the bookmakers who have been taking away their money at the race track. They plan to do this by pooling their savings and buying and racing a horse of their own.

Penner is the one of the drivers whom the others elect to buy and train their steed. Being a trainer of pigeons he must know all about a trainer's duties. He happens to be engaged to the sister of a fellow driver, and the assignment interferes considerably with the course of true love, but under pressure he agrees to neglect his pigeons and love affairs for the horse business.

Moreover, the horse (although Penner doesn't know it) is a confirmed souse, and can't get above a gentle lope unless well lubricated with alcoholic beverages. Se he runs a consistent last in each race in which he is entered, and the odds on him rise steadily while the taximen wait impatiently for the day when their nag is "ready."

That day proves to be wild indeed, and affords one of the year's funniest climaxes for comedy fans. Penner is hilarious as the bewildered trainer, and Betty Grable is his charming heroine.

"Phantom Stage" and "Climbing High"

In the title role, Stewart is unexpectedly appointed to the United States Senate where he thrillingly upholds the glorious traditions of American democracy. Also in the cast of the new Columbia film are Claude Rains, Edward Arnold, Guy Kibbee, Thomas Mitchell and Beulah Bondi.

"GREAT BRITISH"

Will Fyffe, of Scotland, and Margaret Lockwood, of England, bring their charm to the American screen as father and daughter in Frank Lloyd's sea epic, "Rulers of the Sea." They'll be seen co-starred with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., when Paramount presents the film now playing at the Strand Theater.

"Mr. Smith" is Greatest Capra Film

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," Frank Capra's latest Columbia hit, co-starring Jean Arthur and James Stewart, opens today at the Maryland Theater.

Hailed from coast to coast as Capra's most brilliant screen achievement, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" is justifying that acclaim by shattering all records of previous Capra successes, which include "It Happened One Night," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "You Can't Take It With You," adjudged the best pictures of their respective years.

A gay, exciting, warmly emotional comedy drama, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" is enacted by a truly outstanding cast. In addition to Miss Arthur and Stewart, who share the romantic leads, Edward Arnold, Thomas Mitchell, Claude Rains, Guy Kibbee, Ruth Donnelly, Eugene Pallette, Beulah Bondi, Harry Carey and H. B. Warner play prominent roles.

Many others of importance handle the story's record-breaking 168 speaking parts, and 43 impressive settings were utilized to show "Mr. Smith's" sudden ascent to fame and its unexpected consequences.

"Drums of Destiny" and "The Man Who Lived Again"

Closing today at the Embassy Theater will be the double feature consisting of Tom Keene in the thrilling action hit "Drums of Destiny." The second feature being the action drama "The Man Who Lived Again," starring Boris Karloff and a great supporting cast. Also on the same program you will see the last chapter of the serial "Scouts To The Rescue" starring Jackie Cooper.

Valuable Dogs Appear In Mystery-Comedy

Sixty aristocrats of the canine world, valued at approximately $100,000, including just about the best dog of each breed in the country, will appear in Paramount's new mystery-comedy, "Death of a Champion," opening today at the Garden Theatre, the picture in which Lynne Overman brings the popular fiction sleuth, "the human encyclopedia," "Oliver Quade," to the screen.

Afghans, Dalmatians, Dobermanns, Great Danes, Chihuahuas and many other breeds were assembled because the murder, in this picture, rears its ugly head at a society dog show.

As a matter of fact, it is the mysterious death of a champion Great Dane, owned by an aged millionaire, which starts a series of murders in the picture. Three persons who might have known why the dog died, are subsequently murdered. Quade, and his assistant, "Small Fry," Donald O'Connor, are selling encyclopedias at the show when the initial murder occurs. Small Fry's penchant for tracking down clues—inspired by reading detective magazines! — makes him a witness to several of the subsequent murders. Eventually Quade gets him out of trouble by naming the murderer.

The co-feature at the Garden is the action picture, "Five Came Back," featuring Chester Morris, Wendy Barrie, Lucille Ball, Kent Taylor, John Carradine, Allen Jenkins, Joseph Calleia and C. Aubrey Smith.

Only Class of Kind in the Country

Manistee, Mich. (AP) — Manistee High School has a forestry class which, according to United States Forest Service authorities and local educators, is the only high school group of its kind in the country.

The class is currently winding up a job of planting 6,000 jack and scotch pine seedlings on a forty-acre tract in the gigantic Manistee National Forest.

Besides studying theoretical forestry in the class room, the students use the nearby forest preserve as a laboratory. The class is sponsored by the University of Michigan and Michigan State College. Trees planted by the students are cared for by regular forester personnel.

Sudeten Kentuckians

Hopkinsville, Ky. (AP)—The recent Kentucky election was remote enough from German plebiscites but Adolf Hitler received two votes in this county. The fuerher's name was written in with a red pencil in two separate precints.

The number of fires caused by lightning in the 1939 season in the United States national park systems was the greatest in a single year in park service history.

Traders Push Shares in Quantity And Leading Issues Drop Sharply

Settlement of Chrysler Strike Taken as Signal for Buying

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Nov. 29. (AP)—Traders pushed shares n quantity at the stock market trading posts in the last quarter hour of today's session and leaders fell back fractions to three points under the previous close.

The decline followed early attempts to rally, led by the steels and motors, in which fractions to around two were added. Announcement the long and costly Chrysler labor dispute had been settled was taken as the signal for buying at the quiet opening and it kept up, more or less, until about 1 o'clock. Then offerings increased and support fell away.

Transfers totaled 780,700 shares. The Associated Press average of sixty representative stocks fell .5 of a point at 50.5

Other losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Westinghouse Electric, du Pont, Union Carbide, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Santa Fe, New York Central, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda and Air Reduction.

Trimmed fractions to more than a point in the curb were Breeze Corp., American Cyanamid "B", Lockheed and Electric Bond and Share. Nehi Corp. again shot forward, closing up 7⅝. Turnover was 203,000 shares.

"Rulers of the Sea" Stupendous Production

Mr. Lloyd, who invariably makes melodramas which are lucky, this time has chosen the story of steam vs. canvas for his new wartime thriller, "Rulers of the Sea," which opened yesterday at the Strand and continues through Sunday. It is a rousing picture and a vast one, designed to delight all the fans.

Will Fyffe, the Scottish character actor who almost won last year's critics' award for his performance in "To the Victor," plays a conspicuous part in "Rulers of the Sea" and adds to its distinction. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., George Bancroft, Margaret Lockwood are other important figures in the plot.

The story opens in the early nineteenth century, when inventors were heavily absorbed in the possibilities of putting steamships on the sea. Young Fairbanks, mate on a sailing ship, is disgusted with the gruelling life aboard a vessel under canvas, champions the hard-driven seamen, earns the disfavor of his captain.

At a Scotch port, he quits his job, runs into Mr. Fyffe, an inventor, who interests him in a new steam engine. The young man carries his enthusiasm as high as the Admiralty, is not discouraged by high derision. Happily, he finds a progressive American, who approves the venture.

A race across the Atlantic by rival vessels is the dramatic highlight of the film. Encountering fierce storms, combatting disorder among the crew, burning its own furnishings when running out of fuel, the good new ship eventually makes its triumphant entry into New York harbor.

The romantic theme, which is slight, involves the inventor's brave and pretty daughter, who makes the historic crossing.

Storms and fires and riots are the substance of "Rulers of the Sea" and these elements, especially in combination, invariably guarantee the success of any picture. Mr. Lloyd has used them spectacularly and enhanced their value by likewises using a finished and convincing cast.

The added shorts are also good, especially the Hal Kemp orchestra subject. Of course, there is a cartoon and the new News flashes.

Betty Grable and Joe Penner In Liberty Hit

Joe Penner's latest, "The Day the Bookies Wept" opened yesterday at the Liberty and proved to be merry film entertainment.

The plot revolves around the efforts of a group of Brooklyn taxicab drivers to get revenge on the bookmakers who have been taking away their money at the race track. They plan to do this by pooling their savings and buying and racing a horse of their own.

Penner is the one of the drivers whom the others elect to buy and train their steed. Being a trainer of pigeons he must know all about a trainer's duties. He happens to be engaged to the sister of a fellow driver, and the assignment interferes considerably with the course of true love, but under pressure he agrees to neglect his pigeons and love affairs for the horse business.

Moreover, the horse (although Penner doesn't know it) is a confirmed souse, and can't get above a gentle lope unless well lubricated with alcoholic beverages. Se he runs a consistent last in each race in which he is entered, and the odds on him rise steadily while the taximen wait impatiently for the day when their nag is "ready."

That day proves to be wild indeed, and affords one of the year's funniest climaxes for comedy fans. Penner is hilarious as the bewildered trainer, and Betty Grable is his charming heroine.

"Phantom Stage" and "Climbing High"

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy Theater will be the twin hit attraction with Bob Baker in the western drama "Phantom Stage" the second feature being Jessie Matthews in the musical hit "Climbing High" with an all star cast. ## "MR. SMITH" IS IN TOWN

James Stewart is starred with Jean Arthur opening today at the Maryland Theater in Frank Capra's stirring romantic comedy, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." In the title role, Stewart is unexpectedly appointed to the United States Senate where he thrillingly upholds the glorious traditions of American democracy. Also in the cast of the new Columbia film are Claude Rains, Edward Arnold, Guy Kibbee, Thomas Mitchell and Beulah Bondi.

"GREAT BRITISH"

Will Fyffe, of Scotland, and Margaret Lockwood, of England, bring their charm to the American screen as father and daughter in Frank Lloyd's sea epic, "Rulers of the Sea." They'll be seen co-starred with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., when Paramount presents the film now playing at the Strand Theater.

"Mr. Smith" is Greatest Capra Film

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," Frank Capra's latest Columbia hit, co-starring Jean Arthur and James Stewart, opens today at the Maryland Theater.

Hailed from coast to coast as Capra's most brilliant screen achievement, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" is justifying that acclaim by shattering all records of previous Capra successes, which include "It Happened One Night," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "You Can't Take It With You," adjudged the best pictures of their respective years.

A gay, exciting, warmly emotional comedy drama, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" is enacted by a truly outstanding cast. In addition to Miss Arthur and Stewart, who share the romantic leads, Edward Arnold, Thomas Mitchell, Claude Rains, Guy Kibbee, Ruth Donnelly, Eugene Pallette, Beulah Bondi, Harry Carey and H. B. Warner play prominent roles.

Many others of importance handle the story's record-breaking 168 speaking parts, and 43 impressive settings were utilized to show "Mr. Smith's" sudden ascent to fame and its unexpected consequences.

"Drums of Destiny" and "The Man Who Lived Again"

Closing today at the Embassy Theater will be the double feature consisting of Tom Keene in the thrilling action hit "Drums of Destiny." The second feature being the action drama "The Man Who Lived Again," starring Boris Karloff and a great supporting cast. Also on the same program you will see the last chapter of the serial "Scouts To The Rescue" starring Jackie Cooper.

Valuable Dogs Appear In Mystery-Comedy

Sixty aristocrats of the canine world, valued at approximately $100,000, including just about the best dog of each breed in the country, will appear in Paramount's new mystery-comedy, "Death of a Champion," opening today at the Garden Theatre, the picture in which Lynne Overman brings the popular fiction sleuth, "the human encyclopedia," "Oliver Quade," to the screen.

Afghans, Dalmatians, Dobermanns, Great Danes, Chihuahuas and many other breeds were assembled because the murder, in this picture, rears its ugly head at a society dog show.

As a matter of fact, it is the mysterious death of a champion Great Dane, owned by an aged millionaire, which starts a series of murders in the picture. Three persons who might have known why the dog died, are subsequently murdered. Quade, and his assistant, "Small Fry," Donald O'Connor, are selling encyclopedias at the show when the initial murder occurs. Small Fry's penchant for tracking down clues—inspired by reading detective magazines! — makes him a witness to several of the subsequent murders. Eventually Quade gets him out of trouble by naming the murderer.

The co-feature at the Garden is the action picture, "Five Came Back," featuring Chester Morris, Wendy Barrie, Lucille Ball, Kent Taylor, John Carradine, Allen Jenkins, Joseph Calleia and C. Aubrey Smith.

Only Class of Kind in the Country

Manistee, Mich. (AP) — Manistee High School has a forestry class which, according to United States Forest Service authorities and local educators, is the only high school group of its kind in the country.

The class is currently winding up a job of planting 6,000 jack and scotch pine seedlings on a forty-acre tract in the gigantic Manistee National Forest.

Besides studying theoretical forestry in the class room, the students use the nearby forest preserve as a laboratory. The class is sponsored by the University of Michigan and Michigan State College. Trees planted by the students are cared for by regular forester personnel.

Sudeten Kentuckians

Hopkinsville, Ky. (AP)—The recent Kentucky election was remote enough from German plebiscites but Adolf Hitler received two votes in this county. The fuerher's name was written in with a red pencil in two separate precints.

The number of fires caused by lightning in the 1939 season in the United States national park systems was the greatest in a single year in park service history.

Telephone Service For Hardy County To Be Discussed

Committee To Consider Advisability of County-Wide Service

Moorefield, Nov. 29—A committee of ten men selected from all parts of Hardy county will meet next Friday at the County Agents office to determine whether it is advisable to attempt the construction of a county wide telephone service.

E. A. Hawse, Russel May, Guy Ludwig, J. Ward Wood and Dr. William Warden are the committeemen elected from the east portion of Hardy county and W. H. Judy, R. G. Kessel, Sloan Parsons, R. L. Baker and H. H. Sions represent the west portion of the county.

P. M. Miller, superintendent of the Central Electric and Telephone Company for Hardy, Grant, Pendleton and Hampshire counties met with the farmers at the Lost City meeting held last week and estimated that his company could install phone service on the basis of one customer per mile at $1.50 per month.

The committee meeting Friday in County Agent S. L. Dodd's office will begin a preliminary survey as to the potential users in the county and will decide whether the project will be economically feasable. Superintendent Miller of the phone company will meet with the committee. The group to meet are as yet only empowered to make a report based on the survey and a permanent organization will be formed at a later date.

Only the South Branch section of Hardy county has 24 hour service and only limited service is available from the Wardensville office. The mutual lines in the county give only daytime phone service.

E. A. Hawse presided at the meeting held in Lost River and Principal Clerk L. R. Grover presided at the Moorefield meeting. Both meetings were well attended by the interested residents from both sections.

Farm Bureau Plan Considered by Farmers

The Hardy County Farm Bureau will take over the operation of the Cooperative Farm Services warehouse effective January 1st if the stockholders in the Cooperative Farm Services approve of the sale. A meeting will be held Thursday afternoon, November 30, at 1:30 at the Court House in Moorefield.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Hardy County Farm Bureau, the advisory board of the Hardy County Farm Bureau and Carl S. Welton, director of the Cooperative Farm Services Stores and C. B. Boggs, book keeper of the organization met last Saturday to iron out differences regarding items as offered for sale by the Coop.

A special committee of the Hardy County Farm Bureau composed of C. D. Powers, manager of the Co-op warehouse, Joseph T. Frye, F. C. Welton, Winfred S. Park, M. F. Poling, E. A. Kessel and County Agent S. L. Dodd are empowered to complete the negotiations for the purchase of the warehouse.

The tentative arrangements are to exchange stock in the Cooperative Farm Service stores, now held by many Hardy County residents, for stock in the new warehouse organization. Stock will be exchanged share for share on the basis of $100 par value. The Cooperative Farm Services are now repurchasing their preferred stock on the basis of $60 for each share of $100 par value.

Members of the committee pointed out that the local Farm Bureau could operate the local ware house and save administrative costs now charged at the Clarksburg office of the Co-op corporation. Also that under the new federal laws one store could buy almost as cheaply as a buying office for a chain.

Scout Committee Meets

Dr. E. E. Church, president of Potomac State College, addressed the committeemen and officers of the South Branch District of Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America at a banquet held at the Hotel McNeill Monday night.

Dr. Church said, "During the past ten years we have been so concerned with our economic situation of our daily living that we haven't given sufficient attention and interest to the building of character of our youth".

Dr. Church also pointed out that the youth of America was the best asset we had and that if we instilled the proper character in them we need not worry about the future of our country.

Lloyd Keller, council commissioner of Potomac Council, Cumberland, also addressed the group as did R. C. Lalor, scout executive for the council.

District officers and committees elected for the 1940 Scout year for the South Branch District were William B. Michael, Romney, chairman, Judge H. M. Calhoun, Moorefield vice-chairman. Members of the committee on organization and extension were Rev. George W. Strobel, Petersburg, R. E. Fisher, Moorefield and Stanley D. Roth, Romney. Leadership and training-Walter T. ## Coney Club Names Mrs. James Main To Presidency

Homemakers Elect Other Officers, Hear Original Poems Read

Lonaconing, Nov. 29.—Election of officers and observance of Achievment Day featured the meeting of the Lonaconing Homemakers Club in the Odd Fellows hall yesterday.

New officers are Mrs. James Main, president; Mrs. Winnie Stakem, vice-president; Mrs. Elsie Crosser, secretary; and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, treasurer.

A highlight of the program was the reading of several original poems by Mrs. John Grindle Jr.

One of them, "The Song of the Homemaker," is to be sent to Miss Venia M. Keller, of the University of Maryland, for submission to the national council as a suggested theme poem for all Homemakers clubs.

The poem is as follows:

The Song of The Homemaker

I follow my career within the humble walls of home,
Within these hallowed walls
that I have learned to call my own.
Each sanctified and cherished
room is now a part of me.
Each chimney nook and cozy
corner holds a memory.

No great ambition do I have;
no high road do I take,
But I can brew a tasty stew,
and I can bake a cake.
The friends of mine I like the best are all homemakers, too.
We meet and chat together like
old friends always do.

Some women mold their dreams
into a wealth of worldly store;
I weave my dreams into a rug
to grace my polished floor.
Some women like the glitter and
the glamour of the night,
I like the gleaming shine of new-made jelly in the light.

I have no noble heritage, nor boast a family tree,
But I have loved ones in my home that mean the world to me.
Content I am to share with them
the busy, happy days,
Nor long for any deeper joy,
nor any worthy praise.

I ask to reap from life no greater gifts than this—
The sweetness and the wonder
of a child's adoring kiss;
The tender lull that evening
brings, the peaceful, quiet rest.
The homing path that brings to me the man I love the best.

All day for him the ceaseless
grind, the struggle for a goal.
So I must make this place a sanctuary for his soul.
Some women dream of loud acclaim, but this dream is my own,
To hear him say, "My dear, you've made our house into a home."

Also on the program were talks by Miss Ann Sloan and Miss Maude Bean, county home demonstration agent; a dance by Geraldine McIntyre and Anna Lee Fazenbaker; and a solo by Virginia Butler.

W. Va. Business Boom Reaches Crest Now 'Leveling Off,' C. of C. Says

Outlook for Christmas Business Bright, Monthly Report States

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 29 (AP)—The State Chamber of Commerce reported today that the West Virginia business boom apparently has reached its crest, but said there is "substantial ground" for believing business will continue at a relatively high rate for several months.

However, "there is no apparent reason why further general advances should be anticipated," the chamber said in its November business review.

Gains Noted

Among the month's business developments were gains in the production of electrical energy, building and check transactions and a decline in coal production.

"The leveling off of the boom is indicated x x x by the fact that there was a gain of only 8.5 per cent in the sales of 588 selected retail outlets in October, 1939, as compared to October, 1938, which is a substantially smaller gain than that recorded in the three preceding months.

"Christmas business, on the other hand, undoubtedly will show a volume well beyond the average of the past ten years."

Expect Big Christmas Trade

The chamber based its predictions of big Christmas trade on the fact "that thousands of West Virginia's wage earners engaged in the production of coal and chemicals, in construction and other lines of industry have had the steadiest employment at the best rates of pay during the past three or four months that they have experienced in many years."

The report said "a new annual record in the production of electrical energy in West Virginia is assured for 1939 with 2,522,212,000 kilowatt hours having been produced in the first ten months against the all-time record of 2,831,563,000 kilowatt hours recorded for the twelve months of 1937.

Building permits issued in twenty-one of the larger municipalities were reported sixty-six per cent ahead of the first ten months of 1938 with construction contracts, embracing large industrial construction, thirty-six per cent ahead to date.

Check Transactions Up

Check transactions totaling $189,131,000 in twenty-seven communities during October were listed as unequaled since October, 1937.

The report said of coal:

"Coal production undoubtedly reached its peak with the 12,700,000 tons sent to market from West Virginia's mines in October, but the decline in bituminous shipments being noted in the weekly reports for November is largely attributable to the closing of the lake trade in which West Virginia has a substantial share.

"New highs are still being established in various lines but coal production promises to reach only 107,000,000 tons for 1939, which is barely the average production of West Virginia's mines for the ten-year period 1929-38 inclusive."

Garrett Sportsmen Ask Minke Transfer Made Permanent

Grantsville Square Circle Group Petitions Game Commission

Grantsville, Nov. 29—District Game Warden Joseph A. Minke was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Grantsville unit of the Square Circle Sportsmen's Association last night.

Mr. Minke discussed his experiences during the six weeks he has been stationed in this county and the territory through which he traveled. Ray Houck, a deputy game warden, of Oakland, also made a brief address.

It was voted to submit a petition to the State Game and Inland Fish Commission to appoint Mr. Minke to permanent service in Garret county. He was transferred here temporarily from Allegany county about the middle of October.

When questioned as to his opinion in the matter, Mr. Minke said he would not be unwilling to make the change as his work during the past four or fire years had brought him into this county much of the time and he felt thoroughly acquainted with it. If such a petition should be granted, he said he would make arrangements to move his family here.

The group asked Mr. Minke to communicate with State Game Warden E. Lee Compte in an effort to have an additional deputy warden appointed for the five-day deer season, and also a state trooper to patrol the highway during this period so see that no illegal game is transported.

Another matter which was discussed at some length at the meeting was the planting of bass in the New Germany and Pleasant Valley lakes instead of trout. This will be taken up with the conservation department for a decision. The remainder of the meeting was devoted chiefly to a general discussion of the game situation in the county enforcement of the game laws.

Ordnance Plant At Charleston Will Hum Again

Naval Building Program Opens Huge Factory, Idle for 17 Years

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 29. (AP)—South Charleston's big naval ordnance plant, which came to life five months ago after seventeen years of idleness, will run at double its present capacity in five months more.

Announcement was made today that a new contract with the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation will mean that in addition to heat-treating armor plate, the plant will begin pressing plates from semi-ingots.

Since last June about 125 men have operated ten heat-treating furnaces to finish pressed plates sent here from the Carnegie-Illinois plant in Homestead, Pa.

Ralph J. Mills, in charge of the steel company's operations here, said the force will be augmented to about 300.

The ordnance plant, constructed near the end of the World war, was closed in 1922. Guarded by marines, it remained idle until this year when the National Youth Administration took over part of it for a work experience project. Later Carnegie-Illinois began finishing plates.

Mills said that present plans are to bring the plant to within fifty per cent of its total capacity within five or six months.

A 14,000-ton press, one of the largest if its kind, will be returned to use for pressing the armor plate as soon as auxiliary boilers and necessary extra machinery can be put in operation.

Ten more heat-treating furnaces will be fired and the armor plate machine shop will again be put in operation.

The finished plates will be sent from South Charleston to the navy shipyards where eight battleships and a score of cruisers and auxiliary vessels are under construction.

It was announced by the Navy Department in Washington yesterday that $12,000,000 worth of armor plate contracts had been let to Carnegie-Illinois and two other steel companies. The amount for Carnegie-Illinois totaled about $3,400,000.

Lieut. Commander T. G. Haff, ordnance inspector in charge of the plant for the Naval Ordnance Bureau, said no change in his personnel is involved in the expansion.

Telephone Service For Hardy County To Be Discussed

Committee To Consider Advisability of County-Wide Service

Moorefield, Nov. 29—A committee of ten men selected from all parts of Hardy county will meet next Friday at the County Agents office to determine whether it is advisable to attempt the construction of a county wide telephone service.

E. A. Hawse, Russel May, Guy Ludwig, J. Ward Wood and Dr. William Warden are the committeemen elected from the east portion of Hardy county and W. H. Judy, R. G. Kessel, Sloan Parsons, R. L. Baker and H. H. Sions represent the west portion of the county.

P. M. Miller, superintendent of the Central Electric and Telephone Company for Hardy, Grant, Pendleton and Hampshire counties met with the farmers at the Lost City meeting held last week and estimated that his company could install phone service on the basis of one customer per mile at $1.50 per month.

The committee meeting Friday in County Agent S. L. Dodd's office will begin a preliminary survey as to the potential users in the county and will decide whether the project will be economically feasable. Superintendent Miller of the phone company will meet with the committee. The group to meet are as yet only empowered to make a report based on the survey and a permanent organization will be formed at a later date.

Only the South Branch section of Hardy county has 24 hour service and only limited service is available from the Wardensville office. The mutual lines in the county give only daytime phone service.

E. A. Hawse presided at the meeting held in Lost River and Principal Clerk L. R. Grover presided at the Moorefield meeting. Both meetings were well attended by the interested residents from both sections.

Farm Bureau Plan Considered by Farmers

The Hardy County Farm Bureau will take over the operation of the Cooperative Farm Services warehouse effective January 1st if the stockholders in the Cooperative Farm Services approve of the sale. A meeting will be held Thursday afternoon, November 30, at 1:30 at the Court House in Moorefield.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Hardy County Farm Bureau, the advisory board of the Hardy County Farm Bureau and Carl S. Welton, director of the Cooperative Farm Services Stores and C. B. Boggs, book keeper of the organization met last Saturday to iron out differences regarding items as offered for sale by the Coop.

A special committee of the Hardy County Farm Bureau composed of C. D. Powers, manager of the Co-op warehouse, Joseph T. Frye, F. C. Welton, Winfred S. Park, M. F. Poling, E. A. Kessel and County Agent S. L. Dodd are empowered to complete the negotiations for the purchase of the warehouse.

The tentative arrangements are to exchange stock in the Cooperative Farm Service stores, now held by many Hardy County residents, for stock in the new warehouse organization. Stock will be exchanged share for share on the basis of $100 par value. The Cooperative Farm Services are now repurchasing their preferred stock on the basis of $60 for each share of $100 par value.

Members of the committee pointed out that the local Farm Bureau could operate the local ware house and save administrative costs now charged at the Clarksburg office of the Co-op corporation. Also that under the new federal laws one store could buy almost as cheaply as a buying office for a chain.

Scout Committee Meets

Dr. E. E. Church, president of Potomac State College, addressed the committeemen and officers of the South Branch District of Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America at a banquet held at the Hotel McNeill Monday night.

Dr. Church said, 'During the past ten years we have been so concerned with our economic situation of our daily living that we haven't given sufficient attention and interest to the building of character of our youth'.

Dr. Church also pointed out that the youth of America was the best asset we had and that if we instilled the proper character in them we need not worry about the future of our country.

Lloyd Keller, council commissioner of Potomac Council, Cumberland, also addressed the group as did R. C. Lalor, scout executive for the council.

District officers and committees elected for the 1940 Scout year for the South Branch District were William B. Michael, Romney, chairman, Judge H. M. Calhoun, Moorefield vice-chairman. Members of the committee on organization and extension were Rev. George W. Strobel, Petersburg, R. E. Fisher, Moorefield and Stanley D. Roth, Romney. Leadership and training-Walter T. ## Coney Club Names Mrs. James Main To Presidency

Homemakers Elect Other Officers, Hear Original Poems Read

Lonaconing, Nov. 29.—Election of officers and observance of Achievment Day featured the meeting of the Lonaconing Homemakers Club in the Odd Fellows hall yesterday.

New officers are Mrs. James Main, president; Mrs. Winnie Stakem, vice-president; Mrs. Elsie Crosser, secretary; and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, treasurer.

A highlight of the program was the reading of several original poems by Mrs. John Grindle Jr.

One of them, "The Song of the Homemaker," is to be sent to Miss Venia M. Keller, of the University of Maryland, for submission to the national council as a suggested theme poem for all Homemakers clubs.

The poem is as follows:

The Song of The Homemaker

I follow my career within the humble walls of home,
Within these hallowed walls
that I have learned to call
my own.
Each sanctified and cherished
room is now a part of me.
Each chimney nook and cozy
corner holds a memory.

No great ambition do I have;
no high road do I take,
But I can brew a tasty stew,
and I can bake a cake.
The friends of mine I like the best are all homemakers, too.
We meet and chat together like
old friends always do.

Some women mold their dreams
into a wealth of worldly store;
I weave my dreams into a rug
to grace my polished floor.
Some women like the glitter and
the glamour of the night,
I like the gleaming shine of
new-made jelly in the light.

I have no noble heritage, nor boast a family tree.
But I have loved ones in my home that mean the world to me.
Content I am to share with them
the busy, happy days,
Nor long for any deeper joy,
nor any worthy praise.

I ask to reap from life no greater
gifts than this—
The sweetness and the wonder
of a child's adoring kiss;
The tender lull that evening
brings, the peaceful, quiet rest,
The homing path that brings to me the man I love the best.

All day for him the ceaseless
grind, the struggle for a goal.
So I must make this place a
sanctuary for his soul.
Some women dream of loud acclaim, but this dream is my own,
To hear him say, "My dear, you've made our house into a home."

Also on the program were talks by Miss Ann Sloan and Miss Maude Bean, county home demonstration agent; a dance by Geraldine McIntyre and Anna Lee Fazenbaker; and a solo by Virginia Butler.

W. Va. Business Boom Reaches Crest Now 'Leveling Off,' C. of C. Says

Outlook for Christmas Business Bright, Monthly Report States

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 29 (AP)—The State Chamber of Commerce reported today that the West Virginia business boom apparently has reached its crest, but said there is "substantial ground" for believing business will continue at a relatively high rate for several months.

However, "there is no apparent reason why further general advances should be anticipated," the chamber said in its November business review.

Gains Noted

Among the month's business developments were gains in the production of electrical energy, building and check transactions and a decline in coal production.

"The leveling off of the boom is indicated x x x by the fact that there was a gain of only 8.5 per cent in the sales of 588 selected retail outlets in October, 1939, as compared to October, 1938, which is a substantially smaller gain than that recorded in the three preceding months.

"Christmas business, on the other hand, undoubtedly will show a volume well beyond the average of the past ten years."

Expect Big Christmas Trade

The chamber based its predictions of big Christmas trade on the fact "that thousands of West Virginia's wage earners engaged in the production of coal and chemicals, in construction and other lines of industry have had the steadiest employment at the best rates of pay during the past three or four months that they have experienced in many years."

The report said "a new annual record in the production of electrical energy in West Virginia is assured for 1939 with 2,522,212,000 kilowatt hours having been produced in the first ten months against the all-time record of 2,831,563,000 kilowatt hours recorded for the twelve months of 1937."

Building permits issued in twenty-one of the larger municipalities were reported sixty-six per cent ahead of the first ten months of 1938 with construction contracts, embracing large industrial construction, thirty-six per cent ahead to date.

Check Transactions Up

Check transactions totaling $189,131,000 in twenty-seven communities during October were listed as unequaled since October, 1937.

The report said of coal:

"Coal production undoubtedly reached its peak with the 12,700,000 tons sent to market from West Virginia's mines in October, but the decline in bituminous shipments being noted in the weekly reports for November is largely attributable to the closing of the lake trade in which West Virginia has a substantial share.

"New highs are still being established in various lines but coal production promises to reach only 107,000,000 tons for 1939, which is barely the average production of West Virginia's mines for the ten-year period 1929-38 inclusive."

Garrett Sportsmen Ask Minke Transfer Made Permanent

Grantsville Square Circle Group Petitions Game Commission

Grantsville, Nov. 29—District Game Warden Joseph A. Minke was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Grantsville unit of the Square Circle Sportsmen's Association last night.

Mr. Minke discussed his experiences during the six weeks he has been stationed in this county and the territory through which he traveled. Ray Houck, a deputy game warden, of Oakland, also made a brief address.

It was voted to submit a petition to the State Game and Inland Fish Commission to appoint Mr. Minke to permanent service in Garret county. He was transferred here temporarily from Allegany county about the middle of October.

When questioned as to his opinion in the matter, Mr. Minke said he would not be unwilling to make the change as his work during the past four or fire years had brought him into this county much of the time and he felt thoroughly acquainted with it. If such a petition should be granted, he said he would make arrangements to move his family here.

The group asked Mr. Minke to communicate with State Game Warden E. Lee Compte in an effort to have an additional deputy warden appointed for the five-day deer season, and also a state trooper to patrol the highway during this period so see that no illegal game is transported.

Another matter which was discussed at some length at the meeting was the planting of bass in the New Germany and Pleasant Valley lakes instead of trout. This will be taken up with the conservation department for a decision. The remainder of the meeting was devoted chiefly to a general discussion of the game situation in the county enforcement of the game laws.

Ordnance Plant At Charleston Will Hum Again

Naval Building Program Opens Huge Factory, Idle for 17 Years

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 29. (AP)—South Charleston's big naval ordnance plant, which came to life five months ago after seventeen years of idleness, will run at double its present capacity in five months more.

Announcement was made today that a new contract with the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation will mean that in addition to heat-treating armor plate, the plant will begin pressing plates from semi-ingots.

Since last June about 125 men have operated ten heat-treating furnaces to finish pressed plates sent here from the Carnegie-Illinois plant in Homestead, Pa.

Ralph J. Mills, in charge of the steel company's operations here, said the force will be augmented to about 300.

The ordnance plant, constructed near the end of the World war, was closed in 1922. Guarded by marines, it remained idle until this year when the National Youth Administration took over part of it for a work experience project. Later Carnegie-Illinois began finishing plates.

Mills said that present plans are to bring the plant to within fifty per cent of its total capacity within five or six months.

A 14,000-ton press, one of the largest if its kind, will be returned to use for pressing the armor plate as soon as auxiliary boilers and necessary extra machinery can be put in operation.

Ten more heat-treating furnaces will be fired and the armor plate machine shop will again be put in operation.

The finished plates will be sent from South Charleston to the navy shipyards where eight battleships and a score of cruisers and auxiliary vessels are under construction.

It was announced by the Navy Department in Washington yesterday that $12,000,000 worth of armor plate contracts had been let to Carnegie-Illinois and two other steel companies. The amount for Carnegie-Illinois totaled about $3,400,000.

Lieut. Commander T. G. Haff, ordnance inspector in charge of the plant for the Naval Ordnance Bureau, said no change in his personnel is involved in the expansion.

Game Protectors Meet

Chief Game Protector H. P. Farley of the Conservation Commission held a meeting of the Game Protectors of the South Branch District Tuesday morning at the Hardy County Court House to complete plans for the checking of the deer kill for the season which opens for three days Thursday.

Chief Farley announced that not less than ten representatives of the Conservation Commission will be stationed in each of the open counties and that the men will be on patrol.

Seven checking stations have been placed in the county on all the important roads for the purpose of tagging each deer as it is brought from the woods.

Hunters were cautioned not to build fires without permits and that each deer party must make some member of the party responsible for the fire. "Be sure it is a buck before you shoot and be sure that one or both antlers are branched" said Farley. Due to the numerous hunters preparing to enter the woods for the deer season Farley advised hunters to wear a conspicuous red cap or covering over the back so that they may easily be distinguished in the woods.

Penalty for the killing of a doe of illegal kill is not less than $100 fine and a jail sentence.

Game Protectors Meet

Chief Game Protector H. P. Farley of the Conservation Commission held a meeting of the Game Protectors of the South Branch District Tuesday morning at the Hardy County Court House to complete plans for the checking of the deer kill for the season which opens for three days Thursday.

Chief Farley announced that not less than ten representatives of the Conservation Commission will be stationed in each of the open counties and that the men will be on patrol.

Seven checking stations have been placed in the county on all the important roads for the purpose of tagging each deer as it is brought from the woods.

Hunters were cautioned not to build fires without permits and that each deer party must make some member of the party responsible for the fire. "Be sure it is a buck before you shoot and be sure that one or both antlers are branched" said Farley. Due to the numerous hunters preparing to enter the woods for the deer season Farley advised hunters to wear a conspicuous red cap or covering over the back so that they may easily be distinguished in the woods.

Penalty for the killing of a doe of illegal kill is not less than $100 fine and a jail sentence.

Checking stations in Hardy county are Shepp's Esso Station, Moorefield; Golliday's Store, Purgittsville; Ken Vance Store, Peru; R. L. Orndorff, Fabius; Virgil Ely Store, Baker; C. J. See's Station, Wardensville; F. D. Haas Store, Lost River and Grover See's Store, Mathias.

The stations will be distinguished by a three foot square checkered black and white flag.

'Army' of Wardens Moves To Prevent 'Deer Slaughter'

'Spotlight Hunting' Out, Kenney Warns; Season Opens Monday

The mercy killing of a wounded eight-point deer was reported yesterday as District Deputy Game Warden Harry R. Kennedy announced twelve wardens will start patrols tonight to protect deer from spotlight hunters.

"We're out to get the birds who think they can use their automobile spotlights to blind deer along the highways and then shoot them," Kenney said.

"We're going to do everything we can to prevent this kind of illegal slaughter."

The 1939 hunting season for small game closes today, Kenny pointed out, with no hunting at all allowed until Monday, Dec. 4, at daylight, when the five-day deer season opens. The season closes at dark, Friday, Dec. 8.

Kenney said the special night patrols will be on the job until Dec. 15.

The wounded deer found yesterday was reported to Deputy Game Warden Percy Sowers by three grouse hunters, Frank Altice and Fred Kliffner Jr., of Cumberland, and Ralph Henderson of LaVale.

The deer was found in the Maple Run section between Polish mountain and Green Ridge, Sowers said. The hunters shot it because it was no longer able to move.

Sowers said the deer had been shot back of the shoulder with a small calibre rifle, probably a .25-.20. The carcas has been dressed and will be turned over to Associated Charities.

The deer weighed only 110 pounds. It was estimated to be three years old.

Kenney reported that deer hunting should be better in both Allegany and Garrett counties this year than last. Earlier seasons in West Virginia and Pennsylvania will also drive more deer into the Maryland [illegible].

Players Present 'Accent On Youth'

Low, Virginia Keffer In Leading Roles

Samson Raphaelson's comedy, "Accent on Youth," will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at SS Peter and Paul Hall by the Town Hall Players with Carl A. Lowe Jr., and Virginia Keffer in the leading roles.

Other players who will appear in "Accent of Youth" are French Sensabaugh, Betty Teubner, Virginia Heintz, Joseph E. Lewis, William E. Niland, J. Hodge Smith and Richard Hosey.

Tonight's play will be the second production of the Town Hall Players during the current season. The first was "Stage Door."

Curtain time is 8:30 p. m. on both nights.

Third Morals Charge Fails To Stick, But Barber Stays in Jail

Charles W. Goodnow was acquitted on a third morals charge yesterday in Juvenile court and won a reduction in bond at a Circuit court hearing, but still remained in the county jail last night.

Juvenile Magistrate Elizabeth R. Menefee found the 56-year-old Virginia avenue barber not guilty of contributing to the delinquency of an 11-year-old girl, ruling there was insufficient evidence.

Earlier, Goodnow had appeared in Circuit court on a habeas corpus writ to seek lowering of the bond under which he was ordered held after he appealed a Juvenile court conviction on two similar charges.

Associate Judge William A. Huster ordered the bond reduced from $2,000 to $1,000, but Goodnow had not furnished it last night and remained in jail.

On the previous charges, involving two girls, 13 and 14, Goodnow had been sentenced Tuesday to two years in the House of Correction, but noted an appeal through Attorney Edward J. Ryan and Peter J. Carpenti.

Gets Year in U. S. Prison For Passing Bogus Ten

A 28-year-old Eckhart man was sentenced to a year and a day in prison yesterday after he pleaded guilty in United States district court at Pittsburgh to passing a counterfeit $10 note.

The sentence was meted out to Joseph F. Lavin by Judge R. M. Gibson after he admitted passing the bill at McKeesport, Pa., clothing store Aug. 22, the Associated Press reported.

U. S. Deputy Marshal Howard P. Loughrie said that Lavin is also charged with passing another counterfeit $10 bill at a Frostburg shoe store just two days before going to McKeesport.

In both cases, he tendered the bills in payment for shoe purchases, according to Loughrie.

PTA Meeting Tonight

The Gephart School Parent-Teacher Association will meet tonight at 7:30 at the school.

YMCA Campaign Opens; Needs Are 'Critical'

Campaign Chief Roy W. Eves, declaring that "we shall not fail in the discharge of our obligations to those young people who so soon will be taking our places in this world," last night opened the YMCA's annual membership drive.

The YMCA faces the "most critical period of its history," having piled up a deficit of more than $2,000 in the past year alone, Mr. Eves told the nearly 100 campaigners gathered for dinner at the "Y."

A goal of $8,000 worth of memberships was set last night compared with the $6,435 raised through memberships last year. The drive ends next Wednesday.

Address in Full

Mr. Eves's address, which was designed as an explanation to the public of the acute needs of the "Y," follows:

"The Board of Directors know that the YMCA is now going thru the most critical period of its history. They have asked me, in all fairness to their friends, to our membership, and to those who so generously assist us with their time and their money, as well as those others from whom we expect to ask assistance, to take them all into our confidence that they may be awakened to a realization of the imminent danger of the loss of this magnificent and time-tested character building institution to our community.

Greater Need Than Ever

"In times like those through which we are now passing there is so much greater need than ever for expansion and modernization of our program. There was never a time in its history when a YMCA could pay greater dividends per unit of investment by providing for our youth the guidance and direction through the new and rough paths they must take to manhood and womanhood.

The plans for this expansion have long since been made, the personnel trained, and the equipment made available. All that we lack now is sufficient operating revenue to carry out this program, and take our place as leaders in this most important service.

Sources of Revenue

"Our revenue for the past twelve months came from: membership, $6,435; donations, $1,341; and Community Chest, $6,631.

"Briefly our expenses were: Interest, $2,325; Service, $14,421.

"The difference is a DEFICIT—Problem Number One in this country today. According to one of our nationally known experts on deficits, now residing in Washington, the easiest way to decrease a deficit is to increase the income.

"I pass this on to you workers as the key-note of your campaign 'Increase Our Income', get every dollar you can, but get it with the understanding that it is an investment in the character of the youth of this community.

Total Deficit Is $5,358

"The twelve-month deficit, added to that carried over from previous years forms an obstacle of $5,358 that must be cleared away before current expenses can be met or any expansion provided for.

"Our investment in plant and equipment is almost half a million dollars, all but twenty-one per cent of which has been paid for. The Board feels that the time is not yet ripe for taking measures to wipe out this mortgage, but the payment of $387.50 monthly interest is another obstacle to the accomplishment of our purpose.

Faith in Campaigners

"We would not present these facts to you workers and to the public if we did not have confidence in your proven courage in facing difficult problems and in successfully solving them. Digging ones self out of a hole requires much greater skill and strength than to run the race over a smooth course but the satisfaction and the reward is also much greater.

"Do not lose sight of this fact at any time—First, that you are selling to your friends one of the highest grade investments ever known, and second, that we must not fail, that we shall not fail in the discharge of our obligation to those young people, who so soon will be taking our places in this world."

Author-Prisoner To Try New Locale; Efforts Won Rejection Slip Here

Hubert G. Baumhoff will have to continue his short story writing career in a different locale—but he may well continue to use the same theme.

And he may have better success than he had here.

The 45-year-old Johnstown, Pa., man, who has been held here for several weeks for grand jury action on a charge of passing bogus checks, will probably be turned over to Peoria, Ill., authorities today, county authorities said last night.

Baumhoff was arrested here for passing worthless checks on George Eyerman, son of Police Chief Oscar A. Eyerman, and on Cumberland hotels. Washington police wanted him on similar charges.

Today, Baumhoff's affairs had been straightened out in Cumberland and Washington, authorities said, but Peoria police want him mighty bad on a chage of selling scads of phoney stocks.

His affairs here and in Washington were straightened out through the bonding company which had furnished bail for him in Peoria.

The bonding company was willing to pay the comparatively small sums involved in the check-passing episodes in order to keep from having to forfeit the $5,000 bail bond they posted for Baumhoff when he was arrested there—and which he subsequently "jumped."

During his sojourn in the county jail, Baumhoff adopted the pen name of Michael McBee and started writing short short stories. He submitted his first story, "A Court Trial," to a national weekly.

It was rejected.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Isiminger, 583 Arnett Terrace, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lee Plummer, 213 Maple street, Frostburg, announce the birth of a daughter Tuesday at home. Mrs. Plummer was Miss Katheryn Sheetz, of Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Synder, 250 Williams street, announce the birth of a son Saturday.

Hospital Fire Call Only an Accident

Expecting to find Allegany hospital being razed by fire, two fire companies rushed to the hospital yesterday afternoon ready for plenty of action and possibly rescue work.

But firemen soon calmed down after reaching the hospital. It was a false alarm.

Hospital attaches were removing a partition in the building and the fire alarm automatically went off when a wire was touched, firemen said.

The sound of sirens attracted a small crowd to the hospital, but attaches and patients were unconcerned.

City Markets Report Few Turkeys Sold

Some Cumberlanders, but not many, will celebrate today with turkey and traditional Thanksgiving fare, a News reporter's survey of meat markets yesterday revealed.

One of the largest markets reported selling about a dozen turkeys for today's feast, compared with more than 500 last week.

Of ten markets visited, only two reported sales of about a dozen. Others reported several turkey sales, two reported no turkeys sold at all. One market sold a duck.

Apparently one Thanksgiving was enough for Cumberland.

Three Injured As Autos Smash

Five Others Are Unhurt In Crash near Oldtown

Three persons were injured and five others enroute to a religious meeting, escaped unhurt last night in an automobile accident near Oldtown.

Jennings B. Wolford, 37, suffered lacerations about the face when his car crashed into the rear of a machine driven by Albert Leslie Ogden, 34, of RFD 1, Ridgeley, in the driver's seat.

Wolford's wife, Mrs. Olive L. Wolford, 32, had her left leg and arm injured in the crash. Their two-year-old son, Kenneth J. Wolford, was bruised. All three were brought to Memorial hospital. They were released after being treated.

Ogden said he stopped his car, headed toward Oldtown, on the right side of the road to allow Wolford to pass, before making a left-hand turn further down thes road. "We were going to attend a religious meeting at a home nearby," he added.

State Trooper George J. Miller, who investigated, said Wolford told him that "Ogden stopped too quick in the middle of the road."

Trooper Miller placed no charges against the two drivers, pending a further investigation.

Riding with Ogden, besides his wife, were Mrs. Ella Stoine and Misses Marjorie and Dorothy Stine, all of Ridgeley. All were just shaken up by the impact.

Fish Basket Club Boys Off for Pennsylvania For Deer Hunting

Nine members of the Cumberland Fish Basket Hunting Club were to leave town early this morning for a ten-day expedition to the Fish Basket Camp in Potter county, Pa.

Club members who are making the trip are George I. Curtis, Harvey H. Garlitz, Frank E. Smith, Guy Bradour, Francis L. Coyle, Theodore Stegmaier, James Perrin, Casper Taylor and Lester H. Fresh, of Pittsburgh, a former member of the Cumberland club.

Orchard Worker Held In Car Theft Case

A 34-year-old Picardy orchard worker was being held in the county jail today for investigation in connection with the theft of an automobile in South Cumberland Saturday.

Arrested Tuesday night by State Police Sergt. James T. Knight, he was booked as Ralph W. Parker.

Sergeant Knight said Parker took the car Saturday afternoon and abandoned it that night on the Oldtown road below Picardy.

He is scheduled to be given a hearing later this week.

CIO Convention Re-Elects Jones By Acclamation

Gov. O'Conor Speaks, Hears Legislature's Record Flayed

Baltimore, Nov. 29. (AP)—John T. Jones, of Cumberland, was re-elected president of the Maryland-District of Columbia CIO today by acclamation.

Sidney R. Katz, of Washington, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. The election was held late in the final day of the convention, highlighted in its final session by an attack on the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

Condemning the work of the committee, the delegates adopted a resolution calling for its dissolution and for denial of further appropriations to it.

O'Conor Speaks

Earlier the delegates heard Governor O'Conor promise reforms in the State Industrial Accident Commission, criticized by CIO officers yesterday, to make it function "in the interests of employes."

"I have appointed a committee, with your president as one of the members, to investigate certain reports that have reached me about its (the Industrial Accident Commission) work," the governor said. "I am determined to accept the findings of this committee and will stop at nothing to bring the commission to the highest plane of efficiency."

Disappointed by Legislature

Jones, who followed the governor on the speaker's platform, told O'Conor and delegates:

"We were very much disappointed by what we accomplished at the last legislature.

"We asked for bread and they gave us a stone and we cannot digest stones."

The convention also condemned the U. S. Maritime Commission's recent approval of transfer of American-flag ships to the registry of South American nations.

By a unanimous vote the 153 delegates representing 68 locals and councils of three industrial unions, declared the commission was injuring rather than helping the American merchant marine by the act.

Rap "Neutral" Labor Department

Another resolution urged local government for the District of Columbia, with the right of District residents to vote, and condemned work weeks "of from 60 to 72 hours" in government positions as a "bad example" to private business.

The delegates went on record against the "present set-up" of the federal labor department as a "neutral agency," and in a resolution urged that it work for the interests of labor.

Also criticized was a recent decision of the attorney general's office warning labor unions against acting in restraint of trade through their activities. Such an interpretation of the Sherman anti-trust act, a resolution stated, was "indicative of an attempt to hamstring and restrict trade unions."

Jones, who is head of the Western Maryland district committee of the United Mine Workers of America, will be serving his third term as president of the state organization.

Trainmen's Lodge Elects Officers

Eugene W. Law heads the slate of new officers elected for 1940 by William M. McKaig Lodge No. 440, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Other officers include W. Marshall Willison, vice-president; Denton G. Hansroth, secretary; and G. Edwin Parker, treasurer.

Trades Council Promises Backing To Bus Union

Action Follows New Local's Defeat In Tie Election

The full support of thirty A. F. of L. affiliated unions today had been given to the newly organized bus drivers' local at the Potomac Edison Company in their fight for recognition.

Announcement was made last night by Grayson Lucas, secretary of the Allegany Trades Council, that the central body had voted to throw their whole support to the new union.

Promises United Stand

"All of our affiliates in Western Maryland have been informed of the action taken by the trades council," Lucas said last night.

"We will back the Potomac Edison Company union in their fight for recognition and will continue to do so until they get it," Lucas declared.

Lucas said that the members of the thirty Western Maryland affiliates, claiming thousands of members, would demand to see the union cards of Potomac Edison bus drivers before riding in the buses.

Action Follows Last Election

The action of the Allegany Trades Council was taken Tuesday night a few hours after Local 1110, of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, had lost an NLRB election at the Potomac Edison Company car barn.

The election, which resulted in a tie vote, spelled a defeat for the union, which is required to have a fifty-one per cent majority to obtain bargaining rights.

Organizer To Stay Here

No statement was made by Floyd W. Kreisel, international union vice-president who has been representing the bus drivers local, following the action of the Trades Council.

Kreisel, who has been in Cumberland for several weeks, last night indicated that he expects to be here for some time.

Endeavor Groups Rally Tomorrow

Frostburg Man To Talk At Cumberland Church

Members of the Christian Endeavor societies of Allegany county will hold their quarterly rally tomorrow at the Zion Reformed Church, North Mechanic street, at 7:45 p. m.

The Rev. Irvin F. Kracke, of the Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, Frostburg, will make the main address.

The program has been arranged by George Tedrick, state vice-president; Walter C. Clark, county president, and William Layman and W. W. Markel, county vice presidents.

Awards will ge given to societies having the largest percentage of attendance. The Christian Endeavor of Allegany county is inter-denominational and is affiliated with the international society of Boston, Mass.

The local county union has recently formed a School of Religion open to anyone in the county. The school is being conducted once a week in Frostburg and Cumberland.

Woman Driver Charged With Carelessness

Mrs. Leah S. Thompson, 429 North Mechanic street, was arrested yesterday morning by Officers R. C. Cassen and J. H. Newhouse for careless driving. She is scheduled to be given a hearing Saturday in Police court.

Yesterday, Laten W. Phares, 19 West Oldtown road, was fined $5 on a careless driving charge. He was apprehended Monday on Wineow street after his car crashed into a parked truck bearing Virginia tags. Officers W. B. Lovenstein and T. T. Griffin preferred the charges.

Musical Program

The weekly luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Fort Cumberland hotel today will be featured by a musical program presented by pupils of Joseph Williams.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

We noticed Commissioner Edwards and Mayor Irvine pausing on Baltimore street the other morning to gaze long and fondly at as brilliant display of Christmas neckties.

We hope that these City Fathers gaze as fondly at the neckwear that ends up in their Christmas stockings. There's often a difference, you know, between the neckties a man admires and the neckties his womenfolks pick out.

The good people of Grantsville and vicinity must have plenty to be thankful about. We read on the tri-state page that stores there will close for the traditional Thanksgiving today, just as they closed for Mr. Roosevelt and the governor's Thanksgiving last week.

If all labor board examiners were as charming as Miss Muriel Ferris, the young lady who conducted the bus drivers election at Potomac Edison, there would probably be an epidemic of labor disputes in Cumberland.

We don't know whether it was Miss Ferris's smile or what, but every man eligible to vote came around to cast his ballot, and that's most unusual in any election.

A reporter remarked to Judge Walsh, company attorney, that it was quite a surprise to have a pretty young woman come here to boss a bus drivers electoion.

The attorney-general chuckled. "Wait until you're married, young man," he said. "You'll find out the women run a lot of things in this world."

That's right, judge, but most men wouldn't admit it.

Tables at the "Y" campaign banquet last night were decorated with candles, tinsel and bright red Christmas tree balls. Very attractive, and a bit unusual, since you'd expect to find such decorations only on a Christmas tree.

The Lions had a Professor Quiz program at their meeting yesterday, and one question stumped them all. It was, How long is the Potomac River?

Do you know? The answer is approximately 450 miles, which includes the length of the North Branch.

Unless Allegany county sportsmen want to lose Game Warden Joe Minke to Garrett county permanently, they'd better get busy.

Word comes from Grantsville that the Square Circle Sportsmen's club there has petitioned the game commission that Minke be permanently stationed in Garrett county.

Joe has made himself mighty popular in Garrett county the month or so he's been stationed up there in a new plan being tried by the game commission, and sentiment seems strong behind the Square Circle resolution.

Joe's mighty popular in Allegany county, too, and most sportsmen, we think, would be sorry to see him leave. We know we would.

Of course, the game commission's idea is to keep game wardens on the move, more or less, not letting them get in a rut by staying too long in one place. But, according to Fulcher P. Smith, one of the commissioners, this is just an experiment.

Men of City Hall Hold Stag Party

The men of City Hall last night held a stag party at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. A fish dinner was served.

Commissioner Harry A. Manley had charge of arrangements.

One Big Family Celebrates Today; It's Golden Wedding Anniversary

This day, Nov. 30, has long been a day for rejoicing and the giving of thanks in the home of Antonio Ruffo, 186 West Main street, Frostburg.

But never before will there be such rejoicing as today.

For fifty years ago today in a village church in far away Italy, Antonio Ruffo and Rosana, his sweetheart, were married. And it was more than an ordinary wedding. For already in the village there was much talk of the new land, America, and Antonio had plans to seek a new home for his bride in that land.

So in the following March, in the year 1890, Antonio kissed his bride goodbye and with a group of fellow townsmen came to America. Antonio came to Frostburg, and soon he was able to send for his bride, and there was a happy reunion.

For the celebration of their golden wedding today, Mr. and Mrs. Ruffo who are aged 74 and 67 years respectively, will open wide the doors of a home they have occupied for the past forty-three years.

Besides the many friends who will call during "open house" today there will be nearly fifty children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren to take part in the festivities.

Twelve children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ruffo, eleven of whom are living in Frostburg or nearby. One son, Antonio, was killed in a mine accident years ago. Now there are also thirty-three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The children of the celebrating couple are Mrs. Rosa Maley, Frank Ruffo, Nutzy Ruffo, Mrs. Emma LaMana, Mrs. Antoinette Pretti, Mrs. Margherita Maley, of Eckhart, Joe Ruffo, Miss Mary Ruffo, John Ruffo, and Carl Ruffo.

Church Crowded As Dr. Steffens Marks Jubilee

Veteran Pastor Also Honored with Dinner At Shrine Club

Trinity Evangelical Church last night was the scene of a beautiful service commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. D. Henry Steffens, retiring pastor of the church.

The church was filled to overflowing, and chairs were placed in the aisles.

"Your ministry has been marked by peace and beauty," the Rev. E. F. Englebert, pastor of the Martini Lutheran Church, Baltimore, told Dr. Steffens in his commemoration sermon.

Wisdom and Generosity Praised

The Rev. Englebert, who succeeded the Dr. Steffens as pastor of the Baltimore church in 1918, reviewed the retiring pastor's triumphs in the ministry, praised his wisdom and his generosity.

Two gifts, one from the Cumberland congregation and one from the Baltimore pastorate, were presented to Dr. Steffens by the Rev. Mr. Englebert after the sermon.

Pastor Expresses Appreciation

Before pronouncing the benediction, Dr. Steffens walked to Mrs. Steffens, asked her to stand and then declared, "We want to thank these people."

Walking to the altar, the pastor told his congregation that he would not try to make any remarks, but would let his benediction be his blessing.

Flowers Decorate Church

The organ prelude at last night's service was played by Miss Marie Dreyer. The liturgy was read by the Rev. Harold W. Romaser of Pittsburgh.

The anthems, "Praise the Lord, O My Soul," and "Seek Ye the Lord," were sung by the Trinity choir.

The front of the church was decorated with flowers sent to Dr. Steffens. Many letters and telegrams were also received by the pastor.

Honored with Dinner

Tuesday night, a group of Cumberland citizens honored Dr. Steffens with a testimonial dinner at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

F. Brooke Whiting was toastmaster. The Rev. Hixon T. Bowersox gave the invocation.

Short talks praising Dr. Steffens's work in the community in the last twelve years were made by George Henderson, Paul Heuer, Mayor Harry Irvine, A. W. Keight, William P. Rizer, and James C. Shriver.

Guests at Dinner

Ordained in Duluth

Dr. Steffens was ordained in Duluth, Minn., Nov. 17, 1889. He went to Baltimore in 1900 and represented the Lutheran synod in Washington during the World War. After the war he had two charges in New York State and then came to Cumberland in 1927.

Dr. Steffens's retirement will be effective Dec. 1, and was granted by the Trinity congregation at his request.

He and Mrs. Steffens will move to Bryantown, in Charles county, where they have built a small home near the home of their son.

New Diesel Engine Hauls Freight Across Mountains With Greatest of Ease

A new Diesel engine Tuesday proved to the satisfaction of Baltimore and Ohio Railroad men that it could be used for hauling freight cars over West Virginia mountain ranges.

Accordnig to John Edwards, Jr., Grafton, Monongah division superintendent of the B&O, the new engine pulled 2,000 tons of freight from Grafton to Cumberland in four and one-half hours without any help on the grades.

Coming west with the same tonnage, the Diesel made the trip in four hours and fifteen minutes, Edwards said.

Edwards said that this was the first time a Diesel had been used for freight movement in this territory and if further experiments prove successful, they may be put on regular runs.

The mountainous tracks over which the Diesel pulled the 2,000 tons are considered by railroad men as the most difficult in West Virginia.

'Spotlight Hunting' Out, Kenney Warns; Season Opens Monday

The mercy killing of a wounded eight-point deer was reported yesterday as District Deputy Game Warden Harry R. Kennedy announced twelve wardens will start patrols tonight to protect deer from spotlight hunters.

"We're out to get the birds who think they can use their automobile spotlights to blind deer along the highways and then shoot them," Kenney said.

"We're going to do everything we can to prevent this kind of illegal slaughter."

The 1939 hunting season for small game closes today, Kenny pointed out, with no hunting at all allowed until Monday, Dec. 4, at daylight, when the five-day deer season opens. The season closes at dark, Friday, Dec. 8.

Kenney said the special night patrols will be on the job until Dec. 15.

The wounded deer found yesterday was reported to Deputy Game Warden Percy Sowers by three grouse hunters, Frank Altice and Fred Kliffner Jr., of Cumberland, and Ralph Henderson of LaVale.

The deer was found in the Maple Run section between Polish mountain and Green Ridge, Sowers said. The hunters shot it because it was no longer able to move.

Sowers said the deer had been shot back of the shoulder with a small calibre rifle, probably a .25-.20. The carcas has been dressed and will be turned over to Associated Charities.

The deer weighed only 110 pounds. It was estimated to be three years old.

Kenney reported that deer hunting should be better in both Allegany and Garrett counties this year than last. Earlier seasons in West Virginia and Pennsylvania will also drive more deer into the Maryland [illegible]s.

Third Morals Charge Fails To Stick, But Barber Stays in Jail

Charles W. Goodnow was acquitted on a third morals charge yesterday in Juvenile court and won a reduction in bond at a Circuit court hearing, but still remained in the county jail last night.

Juvenile Magistrate Elizabeth R. Menefee found the 56-year-old Virginia avenue barber not guilty of contributing to the delinquency of an 11-year-old girl, ruling there was insufficient evidence.

Earlier, Goodnow had appeared in Circuit court on a habeas corpus writ to seek lowering of the bond under which he was ordered held after he appealed a Juvenile court conviction on two similar charges.

Associate Judge William A. Huster ordered the bond reduced from $2,000 to $1,000, but Goodnow had not furnished it last night and remained in jail.

On the previous charges, involving two girls, 13 and 14, Goodnow had been sentenced Tuesday to two years in the House of Correction, but noted an appeal through Attorney Edward J. Ryan and Peter J. Carpenti.

Gets Year in U. S. Prison For Passing Bogus Ten

A 28-year-old Eckhart man was sentenced to a year and a day in prison yesterday after he pleaded guilty in United States district court at Pittsburgh to passing a counterfeit $10 note.

The sentence was meted out to Joseph F. Lavin by Judge R. M. Gibson after he admitted passing the bill at McKeesport, Pa., clothing store Aug. 22, the Associated Press reported.

U. S. Deputy Marshal Howard P. Loughrie said that Lavin is also charged with passing another counterfeit $10 bill at a Frostburg shoe store just two days before going to McKeesport.

In both cases, he tendered the bills in payment for shoe purchases, according to Loughrie.

PTA Meeting Tonight

YMCA Campaign Opens; Needs Are 'Critical'

Campaign Chief Roy W. Eves, declaring that "we shall not fail in the discharge of our obligations to those young people who so soon will be taking our places in this world," last night opened the YMCA's annual membership drive.

The YMCA faces the "most critical period of its history," having piled up a deficit of more than $2,000 in the past year alone, Mr. Eves told the nearly 100 campaigners gathered for dinner at the "Y."

A goal of $8,000 worth of memberships was set last night compared with the $6,435 raised through memberships last year. The drive ends next Wednesday.

Address in Full

Mr. Eves's address, which was designed as an explanation to the public of the acute needs of the "Y," follows:

"The Board of Directors know that the YMCA is now going thru the most critical period of its history. They have asked me, in all fairness to their friends, to our membership, and to those who so generously assist us with their time and their money, as well as those others from whom we expect to ask assistance, to take them all into our confidence that they may be awakened to a realization of the imminent danger of the loss of this magnificent and time-tested character building institution to our community.

Greater Need Than Ever

"In times like those through which we are now passing there is so much greater need than ever for expansion and modernization of our program. There was never a time in its history when a YMCA could pay greater dividends per unit of investment by providing for our youth the guidance and direction through the new and rough paths they must take to manhood and womanhood.

The plans for this expansion have long since been made, the personnel trained, and the equipment made available. All that we lack now is sufficient operating revenue to carry out this program, and take our place as leaders in this most important service.

Sources of Revenue

"Our revenue for the past twelve months came from: membership, $6,435; donations, $1,341; and Community Chest, $6,631.

"Briefly our expenses were: Interest, $2,325; Service, $14,421.

"The difference is a DEFICIT—Problem Number One in this country today. According to one of our nationally known experts on deficits, now residing in Washington, the easiest way to decrease a deficit is to increase the income.

"I pass this on to you workers as the key-note of your campaign 'Increase Our Income', get every dollar you can, but get it with the understanding that it is an investment in the character of the youth of this community.

Total Deficit Is $5,358

"The twelve-month deficit, added to that carried over from previous years forms an obstacle of $5,358 that must be cleared away before current expenses can be met or any expansion provided for.

"Our investment in plant and equipment is almost half a million dollars, all but twenty-one per cent of which has been paid for. The Board feels that the time is not yet ripe for taking measures to wipe out this mortgage, but the payment of $387.50 monthly interest is another obstacle to the accomplishment of our purpose.

Faith in Campaigners

"We would not present these facts to you workers and to the public if we did not have confidence in your proven courage in facing difficult problems and in successfully solving them. Digging ones self out of a hole requires much greater skill and strength than to run the race over a smooth course but the satisfaction and the reward is also much greater.

"Do not lose sight of this fact at any time—First, that you are selling to your friends one of the highest grade investments ever known, and second, that we must not fail, that we shall not fail in the discharge of our obligation to those young people, who so soon will be taking our places in this world."

Author-Prisoner To Try New Locale; Efforts Won Rejection Slip Here

Hubert G. Baumhoff will have to continue his short story writing career in a different locale—but he may well continue to use the same theme.

And he may have better success than he had here.

The 45-year-old Johnstown, Pa., man, who has been held here for several weeks for grand jury action on a charge of passing bogus checks, will probably be turned over to Peoria, Ill., authorities today, county authorities said last night.

Baumhoff was arrested here for passing worthless checks on George Eyerman, son of Police Chief Oscar A. Eyerman, and on Cumberland hotels. Washington police wanted him on similar charges.

Today, Baumhoff's affairs had been straightened out in Cumberland and Washington, authorities said, but Peoria police want him mighty bad on a chage of selling scads of phoney stocks.

His affairs here and in Washington were straightened out through the bonding company which had furnished bail for him in Peoria.

The bonding company was willing to pay the comparatively small sums involved in the check-passing episodes in order to keep from having to forfeit the $5,000 bail bond they posted for Baumhoff when he was arrested there—and which he subsequently "jumped."

During his sojourn in the county jail, Baumhoff adopted the pen name of Michael McBee and started writing short short stories. He submitted his first story, "A Court Trial," to a national weekly.

It was rejected.

Births

Hospital Fire Call Only an Accident

Expecting to find Allegany hospital being razed by fire, two fire companies rushed to the hospital yesterday afternoon ready for plenty of action and possibly rescue work.

But firemen soon calmed down after reaching the hospital. It was a false alarm.

Hospital attaches were removing a partition in the building and the fire alarm automatically went off when a wire was touched, firemen said.

City Markets Report Few Turkeys Sold

Some Cumberlanders, but not many, will celebrate today with turkey and traditional Thanksgiving fare, a News reporter's survey of meat markets yesterday revealed.

One of the largest markets reported selling about a dozen turkeys for today's feast, compared with more than 500 last week.

Of ten markets visited, only two reported sales of about a dozen. Others reported several turkey sales, two reported no turkeys sold at all. One market sold a duck.

Apparently one Thanksgiving was enough for Cumberland.

Five Others Are Unhurt In Crash near Oldtown

Three persons were injured and five others enroute to a religious meeting, escaped unhurt last night in an automobile accident near Oldtown.

Jennings B. Wolford, 37, suffered lacerations about the face when his car crashed into the rear of a machine driven by Albert Leslie Ogden, 34, of RFD 1, Ridgeley, in the driver's seat.

Wolford's wife, Mrs. Olive L. Wolford, 32, had her left leg and arm injured in the crash. Their two-year-old son, Kenneth J. Wolford, was bruised. All three were brought to Memorial hospital. They were released after being treated.

Ogden said he stopped his car, headed toward Oldtown, on the right side of the road to allow Wolford to pass, before making a left-hand turn further down thes road. "We were going to attend a religious meeting at a home nearby," he added.

State Trooper George J. Miller, who investigated, said Wolford told him that "Ogden stopped too quick in the middle of the road."

Trooper Miller placed no charges against the two drivers, pending a further investigation.

Riding with Ogden, besides his wife, were Mrs. Ella Stoine and Misses Marjorie and Dorothy Stine, all of Ridgeley. All were just shaken up by the impact.

Orchard Worker Held In Car Theft Case

A 34-year-old Picardy orchard worker was being held in the county jail today for investigation in connection with the theft of an automobile in South Cumberland Saturday.

Sergeant Knight said Parker took the car Saturday afternoon and abandoned it that night on the Oldtown road below Picardy.

He is scheduled to be given a hearing later this week.

CIO Convention Re-Elects Jones By Acclamation

Gov. O'Conor Speaks, Hears Legislature's Record Flayed

Baltimore, Nov. 29. (AP)—John T. Jones, of Cumberland, was re-elected president of the Maryland-District of Columbia CIO today by acclamation.

Sidney R. Katz, of Washington, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. The election was held late in the final day of the convention, highlighted in its final session by an attack on the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

Condemning the work of the committee, the delegates adopted a resolution calling for its dissolution and for denial of further appropriations to it.

O'Conor Speaks

Earlier the delegates heard Governor O'Conor promise reforms in the State Industrial Accident Commission, criticized by CIO officers yesterday, to make it function "in the interests of employes."

"I have appointed a committee, with your president as one of the members, to investigate certain reports that have reached me about its (the Industrial Accident Commission) work," the governor said.

"I am determined to accept the findings of this committee and will stop at nothing to bring the commission to the highest plane of efficiency."

Disappointed by Legislature

Jones, who followed the governor on the speaker's platform, told O'Conor and delegates:

"We were very much disappointed by what we accomplished at the last legislature.

"We asked for bread and they gave us a stone and we cannot digest stones."

The convention also condemned the U. S. Maritime Commission's recent approval of transfer of American-flag ships to the registry of South American nations.

By a unanimous vote the 153 delegates representing 68 locals and councils of three industrial unions, declared the commission was injuring rather than helping the American merchant marine by the act.

Rap "Neutral" Labor Department

Another resolution urged local government for the District of Columbia, with the right of District residents to vote, and condemned work weeks "of from 60 to 72 hours" in government positions as a "bad example" to private business.

The delegates went on record against the "present set-up" of the federal labor department as a "neutral agency," and in a resolution urged that it work for the interests of labor.

Also criticized was a recent decision of the attorney general's office warning labor unions against acting in restraint of trade through their activities. Such an interpretation of the Sherman anti-trust act, a resolution stated, was "indicative of an attempt to hamstring and restrict trade unions."

Jones, who is head of the Western Maryland district committee of the United Mine Workers of America, will be serving his third term as president of the state organization.

Trainmen's Lodge Elects Officers

Eugene W. Law heads the slate of new officers elected for 1940 by William M. McKaig Lodge No. 440, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Trades Council Promises Backing To Bus Union

Action Follows New Local's Defeat In Tie Election

The full support of thirty A. F. of L. affiliated unions today had been given to the newly organized bus drivers' local at the Potomac Edison Company in their fight for recognition.

Announcement was made last night by Grayson Lucas, secretary of the Allegany Trades Council, that the central body had voted to throw their whole support to the new union.

Promises United Stand

"All of our affiliates in Western Maryland have been informed of the action taken by the trades council," Lucas said last night.

"We will back the Potomac Edison Company union in their fight for recognition and will continue to do so until they get it," Lucas declared.

Lucas said that the members of the thirty Western Maryland affiliates, claiming thousands of members, would demand to see the union cards of Potomac Edison bus drivers before riding in the buses.

Action Follows Last Election

The action of the Allegany Trades Council was taken Tuesday night a few hours after Local 1110, of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, had lost an NLRB election at the Potomac Edison Company car barn.

The election, which resulted in a tie vote, spelled a defeat for the union, which is required to have a fifty-one per cent majority to obtain bargaining rights.

Organizer To Stay Here

No statement was made by Floyd W. Kreisel, international union vice-president who has been representing the bus drivers local, following the action of the Trades Council.

Kreisel, who has been in Cumberland for several weeks, last night indicated that he expects to be here for some time.

New Diesel Engine Hauls Freight Across Mountains With Greatest of Ease

A new Diesel engine Tuesday proved to the satisfaction of Baltimore and Ohio Railroad men that it could be used for hauling freight cars over West Virginia mountain ranges.

Accordnig to John Edwards, Jr., Grafton, Monongah division superintendent of the B&O, the new engine pulled 2,000 tons of freight from Grafton to Cumberland in four and one-half hours without any help on the grades.

Coming west with the same tonnage, the Diesel made the trip in four hours and fifteen minutes, Edwards said.

Edwards said that this was the first time a Diesel had been used for freight movement in this territory and if further experiments prove successful, they may be put on regular runs.

One Big Family Celebrates Today; It's Golden Wedding Anniversary

This day, Nov. 30, has long been a day for rejoicing and the giving of thanks in the home of Antonio Ruffo, 186 West Main street, Frostburg.

But never before will there be such rejoicing as today.

For fifty years ago today in a village church in far away Italy, Antonio Ruffo and Rosana, his sweetheart, were married. And it was more than an ordinary wedding. For already in the village there was much talk of the new land, America, and Antonio had plans to seek a new home for his bride in that land.

So in the following March, in the year 1890, Antonio kissed his bride goodbye and with a group of fellow townsmen came to America. Antonio came to Frostburg, and soon he was able to send for his bride, and there was a happy reunion.

For the celebration of their golden wedding today, Mr. and Mrs. Ruffo who are aged 74 and 67 years respectively, will open wide the doors of a home they have occupied for the past forty-three years.

Besides the many friends who will call during "open house" today, there will be nearly fifty children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren to take part in the festivities.

Twelve children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ruffo, eleven of whom are living in Frostburg or nearby. One son, Antonio, was killed in a mine accident years ago. Now there are also thirty-three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The children of the celebrating couple are Mrs. Rosa Maley, Frank Ruffo, Nutzy Ruffo, Mrs. Emma LaMana, Mrs. Antoinette Pretti, Mrs. Margherita Maley, of Eckhart, Joe Ruffo, Miss Mary Ruffo, John Ruffo, and Carl Ruffo.
